BUSH HOLLOW

We were beginning to think Bush Hollow would be snowed in the way it snowed on Saturday but a few were able to get out Sunday morning although only 17 were out to Sunday School. Hope for a larger attendance next Sunday. Everybody welcome. The attendance at the afternoon service was not as largely attended, due to the snow we suppose, but we had a good service.

HOWARD NEWS

Mrs. L. E. Kline, Moses Nelle and Ann Holter spent Wednesday in Lewistown at the annual conference of the Evangelical church.

On last Friday evening Mrs. Richard Wolfe gave a birthday surprise party in honor of her husband. He received many beautiful and useful gifts and the affair was one of great enjoyment for about twenty-five guests. Five hundred and fifty dollars in prizes were played. Friends of Miss Louise Kingsley will be sorry to hear of her illness in a sanitarium in Arizona for which place she flew by plane last week. Her mother Mrs. B. S. Kingsley recently broke her arm when she fell from her porch at their home in Philadelphia.

Dr. Walter Kurtz recently returned from a trip to Pittsburgh, where he received treatment for a sore arm. L. H. Neff is in Scranton, Pa., being drawn as a juror for Federal Court.

Mrs. Fisher of the Maples Tea Room recently returned from the Teah Hospital in Lock Haven, where she had been a patient for some time.

There will be a sale of household goods at the home of Mrs. Maggie Kane March 22.

Mrs. W. E. Conner who broke her hip March 6, is getting along nicely in the Centre County Hospital at Bellefonte. She received fifty three cards, ten letters and three packages the first week she was there and is very grateful to those who remembered her so kindly.

The apartments of Harold Kline at Look Haven are now completed and will be ready to move in very shortly. Modern apartments consisting of heat from stoker furnace and bath in each apartment. Howard needs more of just such places. These were rented far in advance of readiness.

Miss Jane Allison of Harrisburg spent the weekend at the home of her parents. The snow Friday night, Saturday and all night Saturday night was the deepest of the season and kept the snow plows moving and every one shoveling side walks both Saturday and Sunday a. m.

Mrs. Willard McDowd is resting more comfortably after her fall two weeks ago. She had three fractures, a dislocation and torn ligaments on one leg. Mrs. Thurmond Hustler is visiting her mother and sister while Rev. Hustler attends conference.

Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Kline are attending conference of the Evangelical congregation. Rev. Kline has served this charge for six years and stands many friends, not only in his own congregation, but a wide circle in the whole community who will miss him if he is moved. Rev. Kline was a member of the School Board and took an interest in many other civic activities.

Earl Diehl and family left for Illinois where he has secured employment. Ferris Walker and wife have bought the home where Mr. Diehl has had extensive repairs upon it. They expect to move as soon as repairs are completed.

Sarkis Joseph, barber of this place was injured on his hands during the fire March 6 and infection has resulted in the right hand. Unfortunately, our firemen have no insurance for injuries thus received. Mr. Joseph's left hand is also badly burned and he is experiencing much pain and of course not able to work.

PINE GROVE MILLS

Don't forget our 2 farm clean-up sales. Irvin Walker on March 20 on the John H. Baileys farm and J. Earl Smeltzer March 21st on the J. Newt. Hoy farm both all day sales.

General Banker and Merchant Miller, Mr. C. Y. Wagner of Bellefonte was a pleasant caller among some of our farmers last Thursday purchasing grain for his modern mill.

Albert W. Fry recently accepted a position with the Hillside Ice Co., in State College.

Five car loads of members of our Lady Ferguson Rebekah lodge attended last Monday night, the District meeting in Millheim.

A large crowd assembled last Saturday despite deepest snow of the season, for the Sally Barr Estate sale. Many antique searchers on hand with long winks and nods, good prices were realized for all.

Mrs. E. J. Parsons who has been quite ill the past two weeks at her home under her M. D.'s care, is much improved at this writing and able to around part time.

Its No. 2 for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cori a chubby girl, Cora Jean, born Thursday last in Centre County Hospital. Both Mother and babe are doing fine, now a boy and girl and we'll all get big cigar at least 15 cents.

The LeRoy Barto family are now snugly fixed in the Smith home on West Main street, having fitted Tuesday. Roy is a janitor at Penn State College. Paul Campbell and wife will occupy the Barto homestead on Tadpole.

L. E. Biddle of Bellefonte, Mr. and Mrs. John Reynolds, Rev. Claude Cori and family of Jefferson, Md. were among those from a distance Monday attending the funeral of Samuel J. Cori at Pine Hall. One of our best known farmers, widely known as also agent and well known granger, one that has left a host of friends.

One of our best known dairy farmers Mrs. Carrie Wert is going out of the dairy business and will sell at public sale in near future here.

has long been known as the land where old friends meet and new acquaintances ripen into friendships. The lady, Mrs. John M. Jacobson, of Westbury, Long Island, N. Y., whose acquaintance I had made while teaching school in that city, and whose husband were visiting the former's sister, Mrs. E. C. Balle in Bradenton. It was our pleasure to be entertained in the latter's home and to know the graciousness of true Southern hospitality.

This series of letters is concluded with this issue. We hope to be at home in Centre Hall the week of March 17th. Written with no more than the desire to bring to the reader a very imperfect picture of a land that casts its spell upon all who journey here; a land where palm trees grow, and the day for strenuous labor always tomorrow. A land of glorious weather, fine sports, golden fruit and perfect health.

Sincerely yours, R. F. and MRS. R. F. WILLIAMS.

APPEARANCE NOT ALWAYS SIGN OF GOOD QUALITY

To keep expenditures within the family income, the budget-minded homemaker buys furniture as carefully as she chooses her clothing and food.

The customer can spend considerable money on a piece of furniture and not always realize that the quality cannot be judged by appearance alone. It is wise for the buyer to learn all she can about furniture, believes Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre County. She recommends buying from a reliable firm and a well-informed, dependable salesman.

More than 50 different woods go into furniture the consumer buys. Of all the woods used only about one per cent is true mahogany and two per cent true walnut. Other woods can be made to look like these, but they do not make satisfactory furniture. However, it is important for the buyer to know whether she is paying for fine mahogany and walnut or for cheaper woods finished to resemble them.

Good plywood construction may be better and more economical than solid wood, especially in wide surfaces. Solid wood is more likely to swell, warp and check than plywood that has been properly dried and glued. Solid wood furniture of this kind is heavier and more substantial. If it is chipped or marred, it can be sanded and refinished.

Construction is an important factor to consider when buying furniture. Joints should fit and be put together with good glue. If glue has seeped out and dried in a brittle mass that flakes easily, it generally means poor glue and poor construction. In the best made pieces, screws or wooden pins reinforce the glued joints, and corner blocks are used where bracing is needed.

Well-finished furniture is smooth and has a satiny-like glow. Drawers usually have dove-tailed joints and run smoothly, and wood for various parts is cut to withstand strain. The consumer will find that high-priced furniture often is of solid or plywood mahogany, walnut, maple, oak or cherry. These pieces are generally woods stained to resemble high-priced ones, but the construction may be as good. Lower-priced pieces are found in kitchen type furniture and unfinished pieces.

In Third Accident George M. Tippery, of Jersey Shore, engineer for the New York Central Railroad, hopes that the popular superstition regarding the charm of the number three holds good for him. He has been involved in three accidents since Dec. 8, 1940, which is enough for him. On Dec. 8, the accident was at Karthaus; Jan. 19, at Mowry, and Sat. night last, his train struck the automobile of Lynn Hull, Lock Haven, in that city. Hull was unable to see in the snow storm and drove onto the tracks.

Several weeks ago we had the pleasure of entertaining for a day some of the Centre Hall folks, Mr. and Mrs. John Duirow and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Delaney. Sarasota's weather was at its best and we feel that the home folks had a delightful time. Though here for so short a time we rigged up enough fishing tackle to take them fishing and did the fish take them. They saw the Lido beach and some of the finer homes of the city.

We feel that the highlight of our stay here this winter centers around the meeting of a friend, whom we had not seen for 29 years. Florida places most homemakers prefer to sew during odd half hours. An upstairs sewing room is convenient where much sewing is done at one sitting, but many houses are too compact to have a separate sewing room.

In many homes there is a closet that can be turned into a sewing center. With a little carpentry, an ordinary closet may be transformed into a convenient sewing closet. Drawers may be built for storing patterns, thread, mending pieces and other equipment.

A convenient outlet for the electric sewing machine is a necessity, and of course light is needed to see articles in drawers or on shelves.

There's an excellent plan for a sewing closet in a new bulletin, "Closets and Storage Spaces," recently issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The bulletin gives measurements for the various fittings of a sewing closet, and a sketch showing the finished arrangement. Court Dissolves Bus Injunction

(Continued from page 1) Ifs stating that he did not elect to take any testimony to establish the right of the plaintiffs to the preliminary injunction and no motion made to renew the same, said preliminary injunction is hereby dissolved.

At the hearing former Judge M. Ward Fleming, of Bellefonte, representing the plaintiffs, reviewed the history of the bus situation and gave reasons why the public is interested in retaining a bus stop at Co-Op Corner.

John G. Love, of Bellefonte, counsel for State College Borough Council, contended the burden of proof was on the plaintiffs side to show why the injunction should be continued.

Unless some new step is taken, the ordinance is now in effect and buses may not stop to load or unload passengers or baggage at Co-Op Corner or on College avenue.

Pennsylvania Grayhound Lines, operating through State College, is reported to be going ahead with its plans to build a modern bus depot on the former Foster Coal Yard property on North Atherton street. Rumored cost of the proposed new bus terminal is $25,000.
