SHADOWS.
Tis a habit as we grow older To look back upon past years Think of things which made us laugh And others, which made us shed tears.

And life seems a disappointment Not up to our expectations, We look forward to years to come With hope and anticipation.

For the years that are gone are shadows Which somehow we can't forget, But still we are living today Not knowing, but wondering, what can happen yet.

Life is just a jig-saw puzzle The pieces not all in place Till we come to the end of the trail And win or lose in life's race.

Five Families Homeless

Fire believed to have been caused when an oil furnace exploded resulted in a loss of about $10,000 at the five family apartment house of G. D. Klinger, in Sunbury. Most of those living in the apartments were out of the building at the time of the fire. The stubborn blaze was fought from both front and rear of the building. After the explosion dense smoke filled the entire interior and caused much damage to furnishings.
