Many Attend First Cookingschool Session

petite-provoking odors, party salads and ice cream. As each finished product was shown under the lighted mirror, there were "ohs" and "ahs" of approval from the audience. The fact that there wasn't a smudge or a wrinkle on Mrs. Bathgate's trim frock at the close of class, attested to the operating ease, cleanliness and dependability of her electric kitchen equipment.

Second Cooking Class

Mrs. Bathgate is conducting her second class this afternoon for another eager group of "student" cooks.

Highlight of today's program is a skit in which she acts as commentator while Mrs. Lema Parry cooks a meal that is a "quicker" for those occasions when the housewife comes home late from a club meeting or an afternoon's shopping. Mrs. Bathgate and the audience watched Mrs. Parry, while Mrs. Parry cooked with "one eye on the clock." She won at a walk, and supper was ready on the dot, with Mrs. Parry still looking as fresh as a daisy.

During the entire program, Mrs. Bathgate points out ways of saving time and pennies, of letting modern kitchen equipment work for you to serve meals with zip and zest.

Winners

After all the cooking was finished and the questions answered, names were drawn to see who would take home samples of Mrs. Bathgate's electric cooking and the other worthwhile gifts from local cooperating merchants. The winners at Wednesday's class were:

Final Session

"Budget Busters," the final class of the Centre Democrat Homemaking School tomorrow afternoon, is one of the most interesting and practical of the classes. Mrs. Bathgate will present a series of real low-cost meals that may be prepared for only a few cents a serving. Yet they are meals that would tickle the palate of the most finicky, for the every-day foods that are inexpensive the year round are prepared and seasoned to a turn. With the type of foods that are available in our markets today, with the food preservation possible with modern electric refrigeration in the home, and with cooking equipment such as the electric range and roaster that do a grand job at a minimum cost, Mrs. Bathgate feels that every housewife can beat the budget. And being a trained home economist, Mrs. Bathgate feels that beating the budget includes not only the saving of money, but economy of time and effort in food preparation. Her "Budget-Busters" program tomorrow afternoon deals with all these phases of budgeting.

In her stream-lined kitchen, Mrs. Bathgate will cook inexpensive foods by various methods, giving actual costs to prove that modern electric cooking methods are thrifty.

Again, there will be a skit and plenty of gifts for the lucky "students."

Also scheduled for induction at that time are Paul Francis Snyder, Bellefonte, R. D. 1; and Samuel Miles Egler, 113 Hester street, State College.

They will replace two rejections in Wednesday's contingent. Highest local order number called by the board was 748.

Each of Centre county's two local draft boards will furnish ten men in the May 13th quota, the tenth announced since the Selective Service Act went into effect last fall.

Induction of the group on May 5 will bring the county's number of men in Selective Service training to 128. Forty-three were inducted in April and as many are expected to go in May's three calls.

The five from Local Board No. 1 are as follows: Leo George Jordan, of Port Allegheny, formerly of State College; James Adams, 250 Ridge avenue, State College; William Joseph Leader, Mifflintown; Eugene Fleisher, McClintan, Centre Hill; Joseph Louis Erasmus, 136 S. Allen street, State College.

How The Money Goes Here's the way money was spent in Centre county in 1939 according to figures just released by the Department of Internal Affairs: for highways, $322; for local operation and maintenance, $138,124; for interest and state tax, $8529; for capital outlay, $33,329.

Three Jailed In CCC Fight

and Frank Murphy, colored who is an instructor in the camp. All CCC Camp members are colored.

Murphy was the chief witness against the three in court as well as at a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace, Harold Cowher, of East Bishop street, Bellefonte, Saturday morning.

He related that about 7:10 o'clock Friday evening while he was conducting a first aid class at the camp, the two doors of the classroom were opened and a crowd of camp members entered, headed by Wright, Olden and Hollis. They looked about the classroom and Hollis walked over to Allen Payton, a member of the class, and struck him in the face, knocking him to the floor under the table.

Murphy said Olden then upset the table, exposing Payton to kicks and blows by Wright and Hollis. He added that after the fighting had ceased Wright went to him and said that if officials of the camp learned of the incident, he (Wright) would get his gun and that Murphy would be "a dead man in the morning."

Payton, a resident of Clearfield, testified at the preliminary hearing that he saw the group enter the room and that he received a sudden blow on the face which threw him to the floor under the table. There he curled up, put his arms over his face and head for protection, and didn't see who was raining blows and kicks at him. Payton suffered bruises but was not seriously injured.

Judge Ivan Walker like Squire Cowher before him, tried to determine the reason for the fight, but met with no success. The three defendants claimed they saw a group of camp members headed for the first-aid station and joined the group. When the fighting started they joined in, they said, but did not know much what it was all about. They said they had no grudge against Payton. Wright denied that he threatened Murphy.

Camp officials hinted that friction has existed for some time between a group of Pittsburgh boys and other members of the camp. The Pittsburgh group had been quartered in a barracks to themselves and remained together for the most part. Since the fight, the Pittsburgh group has been broken up and scattered among other members of the camp.

Officers said that Wright, Olden and Hollis have been trouble-makers at camp and have been warned in regard to their conduct. The three youths denied any knowledge of a gun which one of the camp members is believed to have in his possession. The Commanding Officer declared at the preliminary hearing that two shots were fired in camp on the night of the fight.

The trio was arrested by members of the State Motor Police at Rockview sub-station and were brought to the county jail. After the arrest other officers were called to the camp because of the belief that further trouble was brewing.

12 More Men Sent to Army

A total of 1050 questionnaires have been sent out.

Philip Mignot, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mignot, of East High street, Bellefonte, who registered with a draft board in San Francisco, Cal., has volunteered for service and will go to Altoona Monday.

Names of the five men who will make up State College's ninth group of selectees were announced by Local Draft Board No. 1, State College.

Induction of the group on May 5 will bring the county's number of men in Selective Service training to 128. Forty-three were inducted in April and as many are expected to go in May's three calls.
