- 1. Isn't one permitted to leave paper wrappings and refuse on the table and ground after picnicking?
2. When a girl is applying for a position isn't it an asset for her to pretend that she is very efficient?
3. Have the bridesmaids any duties after the wedding ceremony?
4. Is it correct to eat cake with the fingers?
5. Would it be all right to send an invitation to a person who is in mourning?
6. Isn't it rude for people to talk while an outdoor concert is in progress?

Answers to Modern Etiquette

- 1. Six; seldom more than eight.
2. No. Allurement has no place in the office.
3. Never. This child should be treated just the same as every other pupil.
4. A good rule to go by is to invite only the men he would be willing to invite to his home, or to know his sister.
5. Do not try to introduce friends in a crowded aisle. If necessary to make introductions, make them in the lobby or wait until you are seated. Even then two persons who are seated some distance from each other should not be introduced.
6. The first course may be cantaloupe, grapefruit, unhusked strawberries, or the favorite cocktail of iced fresh fruits.

Former Local Girl Is Attacked

the same business for several years before returning to his former location near Pleasant Gap. Some years ago he moved to Lock Haven. Mrs. Peters is a niece of Mrs. Anna Johnson, of Valentine street, Bellefonte, who went to Lock Haven Tuesday night to call at the Peters home.
Dr. Henry G. Hager, who was called to attend the girl at the Lock Haven Hospital, reports that she has a fractured skull, a three-inch scalp cut back of the left ear, bruises on the back and top of her head and on her right forehead. He said she might have been struck with a smooth, blunt instrument. An examination showed that she was not criminally assaulted.
Discovery of the attack was made by Alderman E. A. Ryan, of Lock Haven. Mr. Ryan had just returned from his usual evening stroll about 10:45 o'clock and was smoking on his front porch at 545 West Main street, when he heard a sound which resembled a small child crying. The faint cries grew louder and when he looked across the street he saw a young girl's figure emerge onto the sidewalk from between two residences. Mr. Munro also heard the noise, came onto the porch and turned on the light as the girl came out from between the two houses.

Bills Outline Procedure for Birth Records

would be filed and recorded and indexed in the office of the clerk of the Orphans' Court, upon payment of a filing fee of $2.50. A fee of 50 cents would be charged petitioners for a certificate of the birth.
The proposed bills provide that petitions must contain as much as possible of the following information: full name and sex of petitioner; whether a twin or other plural birth; whether birth was legitimate or other wise; name, color or race, of the child; date and place of birth; names of both father and mother, their residences and occupations if living and known; and other facts.
Certificate from doctor or midwife in attendance at the birth.
Baptismal record kept by a bona-fide ecclesiastical body and certified by a priest, minister, or other officer of such body.
Certificate signed by parent or near relative of petitioner who has knowledge of fact contained in the affidavit.
Certificate from persons who have had adequate means of knowledge of the facts contained in the petition. These persons need not be related by blood or marriage if they have been connected with the family so long and so intimately to have acquired knowledge of the facts.
The various counties, under the terms of the proposed bill, would be required to furnish a docket or registered wherein records of births approved by the court would be entered.
Records so established and entered would become prima facie evidence of all matters therein contained and would be admissible in all judicial proceedings.
The penalty for making false statements in the petition is fixed at not less than $100 nor more than $300 and costs, or in default, imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 90 days.
The bills would become effective immediately upon enactment. Reports here yesterday were to the effect that early enactment is expected, although inquiry at the Governor's office yesterday revealed that neither bill had come up for the Governor's signature.
Now that the United States has adopted a foreign policy, designed to protect American interests, the isolationists will probably be isolated.

Recalls Earlier Attack

Police Chief Martin J. Peters said he sees no connection between this attack and the one reported to the police last week by Miss Dorothy Straker, who told officers she was struck on the head by an unknown man on First street, near the Bellefonte avenue intersection.
Mrs. Peters, mother of the girl, looking for Dorothy, shortly after her daughter was injured last night, saw the police and others putting her into the cruiser car to take her to the hospital, but thought nothing of it until about midnight when Dorothy's brother, Frank, with whom she had gone to the carnival, returned without her.
Frank's account is that he and Dorothy left the Roxey Theatre at 10 o'clock exactly and walked to the carnival grounds at East Park and Walnut streets. There he stopped to talk to a friend and saw Dorothy ahead talking to a friend of hers, Miss Betty Rote, from Flemington.

Could Recognize Men

Frank told his sister that she was to look him up before she left for home. A short time after the free act, which Frank estimates was about 11 o'clock or afterward, he and a friend drove from the carnival to the Peters home to see if Dorothy had come home yet.
When Mrs. Peters found that Dorothy was not with her brother, they all realized then that the girl they had seen being placed in the police car was the missing girl.
At the hospital, Frank identified his sister. He said when she regained consciousness about 5 a. m., Tuesday, he asked if she knew her assailant, and she said she didn't, but she "would recognize the men if they were brought before her."

Check Canning Equipment To Avoid Disappointment

This year—with all America defense minded—both home and commercial canning are taking on new importance. Home canning, of course, is most economical on farms or in villages where families have the land to grow their garden stuff.
The homemaker who plans to "can as usual" this season will want to check her equipment and supplies before she gets into the full swing of the busy summer season. Here are some of the main points she will need to check, according to Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative, Centre county.
To can acid foods—fruits and tomatoes—it is best to use a water bath canner. There is little that needs to be checked on such a canner except to see that all the parts are together. Any simple vessel may be used that can be fitted with a rack for the bottom to set cans or jars on. Discard any jars or caps that show cracks, chips, or dents. Also throw away porcelain-lined

Water Bath Canner

The safest way to can non-acid vegetables, chicken, or meat is in a steam pressure canner, for only in such a canner is it possible to get temperatures above boiling. These high temperatures are needed to be sure the organisms that cause spoilage are killed. The processing period is shortened considerably by the steam pressure method.
If you have a steam pressure canner it needs to be rechecked each year to see that the pressure gage registers correctly. If these gages are taken off and sent into the factory where they were made, manufacturer will check and adjust them.
A steam pressure canner is a wise investment for any family or a group of families in the community. Containers may be glass jars or tin cans. Always test glass jars for leaks or defects before beginning to can. Discard any jars or caps that show cracks, chips, or dents. Also throw away porcelain-lined

Found Lying on Grass

Crying pitifully, she went on down the sidewalk in an easterly direction. Perturbed, Mr. Ryan began to follow her and he came across her body stretched face downward on the grass between the sidewalk and curb.
Frank was still when he got there. Raising her to her feet he made several unsuccessful attempts to establish her identity and then laid her back down; face up, on the grass. She lapsed into unconsciousness. City police immediately were summoned.
From there he called Sheriff D. Edward Greenoble and the sheriff's office, then communicated with Sta's Motor Police detectives at Williamsport and Rockview. Two officers from the latter detail arrived there an hour and a half later and went over the ground with Alderman Ryan.

metal lids if the lining is the least bit loose. Always buy new rubber rings for glass jars. Good rings stretch to twice their length.
If the wire clamps on glass jars are loose, tighten them by bending the wires down in the middle on top and inward at the sides.
The vacuum-sealing jar has a lacquered metal disk top. The under surface of the disk has a small groove filled with a hard wax-like compound which softens and adheres to the glass when heated. During the processing period, the top is held in place with a metal band. As the jar cools, the compound hardens, sealing the jar. Remove the metal band 24 hours after canning. Wash and dry the screw bands and store in a dry place until the next canning.
It is necessary to have new lids each year for vacuum-sealed jars. Miss Butler will be glad to answer any canning questions you may have. Call or write her at the Agricultural Extension office in Bellefonte, Pennsylvania.
