OUR BABY

You who have never been a mother Don't know what you've missed, Two tiny arms around your neck And lips just made to be kissed. Skin as soft as velvet Eyes that shine like stars, We would not exchange for all the gold In this land of ours. Tiny little footsteps, To be guarded every day, Guarded every minute Let's try go astray.

Hurt fingers to be kissed, Tears to be wiped away, And then be rocked to sleep, At the closing of the day. And as they grow older Day by day, and year by year, We almost wish they'd stay Just a baby dear. L. S.
