TIOUS FOODS

Sitting in cafeterias or other public places watching adolescent boys and girls puffing cigarettes is not a pleasant pastime. They are deliberately poisoning themselves and sixteen weighing about a hundred weakening their bodies.

The modern girl also thinks that it is ultra-fashionable to be very thin. She is constantly dieting with that end in view. The result is often disasterous not only to looks but to health as well.

The teen-aged girl especially should eat a nutritious diet and avoid snacks and lunches of unwholesome sweets such as sundaes, syrup drinks, colas, and other apother tappetite-destroying concoctions between meals.

Breakfasts should consist of substantial foods, such as cereals, whole wheat, soy bean, rye, or corn breads. Cheese is concentrated but should be included in the list. Tea and coffee are not needed and are really harmful. Milk is the best beverage. It contains calcium which build sound teeth and bones that are so necessary to the body. It is seldom that poor teeth are found among those who eat and drink properly.

Orange fuice is cheap and abundant in winter and should be drunk every day. The vitamin C which it contains contributes to the health particuluarly of the mouth and gums. In summer this valuable vitamin is found in many fresh fruits and vegetables. It is destroyed by improper methods of cooking, such as adding soda to the water, prolonged heat, etc.

Raw vegetables and fruit salads not only supply needed bulk to the diet and help to prevent constipation, but they contain essential minerals and vitamins.

A moderate amount of meat and eggs should be provided in the diet of youth for the protein content. Nuts are also a source of protein of a high order and are free from delectrious substances found in Dishes that are a combination of cheese and carbonhydrates or starches such as macaroni are nutritious and palatable.

Puddings made from left over whole wheat bread are delicious, so are milk and egg custards. Summer deserts should be made from
