Would Expand Security Plan

President Seeks to Double Number of Those Who Will Get Benefits

President Roosevelt projected a vast expansion of the Social Security system Tuesday, intended to bring within its benefits double the number of people now covered. He guessed it would jump the total of those involved from 40,000,000 to 80,000,000.

The Chief Executive long has advocated spreading the system into new territory, but in announcing the plan this week he advanced two reasons why it would be helpful in the present situation. The higher taxes to be collected would help as an inflation deterrent, and unemployment benefit payments would ease the economic readjustment phase which will come with the end of the defense production emergency.

Soon, he said at a press conference, he will send a special message to Congress on the subject. He apparently was hopeful of action in a short time.

Several Steps

While the details of the plan were not disclosed several steps have been under discussion:

1. Extension of the contributory old-age insurance system to classes now exempt, that is farm laborers, domestic servants, self-employed persons, farm operators, the casually employed, and workers in charitable institutions.

2. Extension of unemployment insurance to maritime workers and employees of small firms (concerns employing less than eight persons are now exempt).

3. Severance pay, designed for example to tide over workers who lose their jobs in defense industries when the present emergency is over.

4. More liberalized grants to states for non-contributory old age assistance and other benefits.

Mr. Roosevelt said a formula had already been worked out for giving greater Federal aid to the poorer states. Under the present system the states allocate certain sums of money for old age pensions and other benefits, and the Federal Government matches that amount.

But because of low property valuations and for other reasons, some states can advance only such sums as $4 or $5 a beneficiary a month, while in more prosperous states, non-contributory old age assistance runs as high as $20 monthly.

As for the contributory old age insurance system, both employer and employer pay the Government a payroll tax with which the cost of the program is defrayed. Mr. Roosevelt indicated that the tax rates might have to be increased. At present the rate is 1 per cent each for the employer and employee.

Mr. Roosevelt conferred with his Social Security advisors during the day and later one official said that a system of severance pay to workers when they lose their jobs was under consideration to supplement the present unemployment insurance. At the press conference, however, Mr. Roosevelt said there had been no discussion of such a plan.

The President was uncertain whether the top limit on old age benefits would be increased. The Administration, he said, was working on principle, rather than on figures, and proposed to reverse the old formula that to those who have it shall be given.

Promoter Mike Jacobs announces that movies of the Louis-Nova fight would not be released for public showing. Mike made the decision after a conference with the producers. "There wasn't enough action to warrant a commercial film of the fight," Jacobs said.
