Bellefonte Man Gets Sentence

employed at a fraternity house at State College, and when driving to Altoona in company with his brother-in-law, John Oliver Orblison who was killed and a hitch hiker, Arthur Roman, of Saxton, now of New Jersey, at a speed exceeding fifty miles per hour, about 5 p. m., veered to the left side of the road, striking several cars, all of which were badly damaged. Mr. Wray said that there was still enough daylight left to see and that there was no fog.

Attorney Samuel H. Jubeliner counsel for the defendant though admitting the gravity of the offense in question, said that his client never was in trouble before and bore an excellent reputation at State College. He said the defendant had only taken one glass of beer and that a bottle of whiskey almost empty, (exhibited in court) found in his car at the time of the accident, was not put there by him, but by the hitchhiker, and that Pendleton did not drink any of it, but Roman did. He said an attempt had been made to locate Roman the hitchhiker, who had been traced to New Jersey where he now resides and exhibited a letter from him saying he was sick and unable to come as a witness.

It was stated that Pendleton was severely injured and was confined to the hospital for two months.

BASEBALL TEAM IS ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

The management of the Bellefonte baseball club of the Tri-Valley League closed the season with a dinner at the Fleisher tea room, Julian, last Thursday night.

A feature of the program was to have been the presentation of a leather jacket, purchased by team members, to business manager Glenn Aumiller, in appreciation of his services, but owing to illness Mr. Aumiller was not present and the gift later was delivered to his home. The team presented Paul Walizer with a dress shirt in token of appreciation for his work during the season.

During the dinner Toastmaster James R. Hughes called for brief speeches from Dick Peters, State College sports writer; "Crabby" Gordon, one of Bellefonte's older baseball players; Pleasant Gap's stellar pitcher Price; Basil Miller, of Milesburg; Burton Tingue, who represented the umpires, and several others.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. Has the Government set a quota to be raised through the sale of Defense Savings Bonds?

A. No; there is no quota and no time limit. The Defense Savings Program is to be a continuing effort, and both Defense Bonds and Stamps should be purchased steadily and regularly.

Q. Why were the Nation's retail stores asked to sell Defense Savings Stamps?

A. American retailers were not asked—they volunteered through their national organizations to undertake the sale of Defense Savings Stamps on a vast scale.

NOTE.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps now are on sale at most retail stores.

TWO INJURED IN AUTO MISHAP AT COLLEGE

BLIND FRESHMAN MAKES HIGH MARKS

A blind freshman, Charles Hall, of Philadelphia, was one of 37 new students exempt from the basic course normally required of all freshmen at the Pennsylvania State College.

Nearly 1600 freshmen took the routine placement test which is designed to classify new students as to ability in English composition and grammar.

Those who were exempt may select advanced English courses as a substitute for the basic work.

FIRE DAMAGES HOUSE NEAR STATE COLLEGE

Hot embers falling from a stove to the floor caused a fire which resulted in some damage to the W. A. Strouse home at Woodcrest, near State College, early Friday afternoon.

Most of the furniture of the Thomas Houtz and Charles Breon families, occupants of the house, were removed by neighbors. Members of the Alpha Fire Company, State College, soon had the blaze under control with water from a booster tank.

Three Women Suffer Fractures

Three elderly Lock Haven women are patients at the Lock Haven hospital after suffering fractures in falls at their homes recently. Mrs. Rose Dubler, 78, suffered a fracture of the hip in a fall from a chair on Wednesday; Mrs. Anna Shade, a fracture of the right shoulder in a fall down the cellar steps, and Mrs. Ellen M. King, a fracture of the hip in a fall. All were said to be in good condition.

THE WAR IN EUROPE

The course, if not the outcome, of the war may be determined by the outcome of the great German offensive, launched early this month against the Russians.

The stupendous struggle that began when Hitler made his surprise attack upon the Soviet is hardly appreciated by people in other lands. With an admitted 6,000,000 German troops involved it is safe to assume that the Russian forces are much larger and the huge losses that are apparent indicates that the battle is easily the world's greatest conflict.

Hitler Underestimated Russians

Hitler has frankly stated that he underestimated the Russian capacity for war. He admits that Germany could not undertake the invasion of the British Isles as long as the Red army was in its rear, with the capacity to attack. Hence, he decided to come to grips with his ally and to remove the menace before becoming engaged in an all-out offensive against the British.

Losses of planes, tanks and guns in the thousands have been suffered by both sides. German sources, of course, stress the heavy Russian losses. Moscow does the same with German casualties. From the conflicting statements, however, can be gleaned the fact that both sides have suffered enormously, in men and material.

Reserves to Decide Battle

This deduction emphasizes what has been said before, in these columns, that the outcome of the Russian struggle will be decided by the extent of the reserves possessed by the belligerents. It is impossible to estimate this decisive factor and the only thing that one can do is to watch the course of the fighting to see which antagonist shows signs of depleted reserves.

Already the battling has convinced the world that the Red army is composed of soldiers, ready to die in the defense of their native land. The morale of the Russian soldier is attested by heroic resistance. There is no suspicion that the battle will be lost through failure of morale but as this war abundantly shows, there is no substitute for the equipment of battle and the munitions of warfare.

Germany's Alternative Campaign

As Prime Minister Churchill advised the British people Germany is still strong enough to move offensively against the British islands in North Africa and aeer, Spain and Portugal at the same time. He qualified this utterance with the proviso that the Germans stand on the defensive in Russia, which is significant and important.

The present German offensive against the Russians is evidently an all-out effort, designed to knock-out the Russians before the snow begins to impede fighting. Failure to score the great triumph the probabilities are that Germany will go on the defense in Russia, attempting to hold and organize the areas won and seek new victories in other lands.

The Situation in Africa

The British situation in Africa has been greatly improved in the past few months but, very likely, the Italians and Germans are also much stronger than they have been. German activity has been observed in the Mediterranean where both sides have been using large convoys to transport men and material. While the British have scored some decided successes against Axis shipping it is freely admitted that the air force and the fleet have been un-able to prevent the flow of reinforcements to Africa.

British troops in Africa, as we gather the information, are in need of heavy tanks and heavy bomber planes. The failure of the recent British offensive is attributed to superiority of enemy tanks and the inability to effectively bomb Axis held ports is explained by a lack of heavy bombers, necessary to maintain a continuing aerial attack on a scale sufficient to put the ports out of action.

Russia's Face: Foe Alone

The Russians, it seems certain need supplies from the United States and Great Britain but it is more and more apparent that the Germans are attempting to win a decisive victory before the supplies can be transported to Russia. Hence the great battle now underway must be decided largely upon the basis of Russian and German reserves. This is not an optimistic report because, before the battle began, nobody imagined for a minute that Soviet Russia could stand up to the full force of the Nazi military machine.

It may as well be conceded that Germany possesses sufficient power to advance into Soviet Russia, perhaps to an alarming depth. This capture of territory will not be decisive if the Russian army manages to retire, even if it retreats behind the Ural mountains.
