DEER ON A JAG

John Gabel, of Narrowsburg, N. Y., found a buck lying beside the highway, with no signs of injury but apparently dead. He heaved the animal into the trunk of his car and took it to the Game Warden. The latter, failing to rouse the deer, carried it into his barn. The next morning he found the animal on its feet, apparently in perfect health, and liberated it. "There's no way of proving it," declared the warden, "but if ever a deer got a jag on from eating apples, that one did."
