Morale Is Big Victory Factor

In the army, the speaker stated, the health, comfort and contentment of the soldier are a prime requisite; and also in civilian life. During the days before us we need to keep all of our people from hunger, cold, and sickness. Their ought to be a doubling of the work of welfare agencies in the various types of work being carried on.

In the second place, Dr. Warneck said, we should not let our troubles get us down. Sacrifices are going to be demanded. Taxes will rise and increased prices will make a higher cost of living. There will be many headaches; some of these have come in the administration of the Selective Service Act; in the unemployment coming through inability to obtain materials. These will call for courage.

Another factor in public morale, the speaker stated, is in the administration of government and public agencies. There are many people who never have reasoned out things, but who go only by what they see. If government is efficient and honest, if our schools do a good job, if fire companies and other services command themselves by their excellent work, these people will be persuaded that democratic processes can get things done. In this period we ought to see that every service clicks in its work. There will be situations too when folks will get panicky. There should be a gathering and training of leaders for such moments, who can be depended on for sanity of action and foresight.

In the period before, Dean Warneck declared, there may be in every community some anti-American factors. The names of individuals and their suspected subversive activities should be made known to the county sheriff, the police or other officials to investigate. There should be no witch-hunting, name-calling and other uncharitable action. The head of the Pennsylvania State Police has made the statement that fifty per cent of the investigated cases have been the product of mean grudges, rather than having been founded on a reasonable suspicion. It is in this way that the dictator Adolf Hitler has worked. Agents were sent into communities to arouse suspicions and to play up every kind of difference, to get the people fighting among themselves, using racial differences, labor troubles and such things as dividing wedges between groups of people. When unity had been broken down the German army stands for and what we are fighting for, to spread everywhere the fundamental principles of our nation and democracy. If our people understand the difference between totalitarianism and our American freedoms and way of life they will stand firm for our country and the principles which belong to us. There is much fog in the thinking of many Americans and men need to know what their national blessings have been and whereupon to stand; and when they do know they will stand for our nation and her institutions.

Guests at the meeting were Prof. Julius Kauffus, State College; Samuel H. Hays, Lewistown; Fred G. Hoffer, Philipsburg; Robert H. Miller, Pitsburgh; and George Vonda, Bellefonte.

V. F. W. In 10th Annual Dinner

(Continued from page one) the United States increased from 500 a month last July to 2,114 a month in September 1941. Next January the monthly output will be 3,000 while by the fall of 1942 a total of 4000 planes will be made each month, he said.

In three factories now being completed, VanZandt said, it will be possible to buy four four-motored bombers every month. The United States is planning 49 panzer divisions, for which will be needed a total of 47,500 tanks. The tank requirements are as follows: 20,000 medium tanks costing $20,000 each; 25,000 light tanks costing $25,000 each, and 2,500 heavy tanks, weighing from 150 to 180 tons and costing $150,000 each. In addition, VanZandt continued, there will be needed thousands of trucks, scout cars, jeeps, and motorcycles. Each of the 49 divisions will consist of about 1200 vehicles and 10,000 men, he continued.

Plans also call for 400 infantry divisions of 30,000 men each. In the nation's 147 shipyards a total of 2,321 ships, of which 331 are combat ships, are under construction or are scheduled for construction.

When the naval program has been completed, the U. S. will have the greatest array of battleships in history, VanZandt declared. There will be 61 fighting ships, of which 32 will be capital ships, ranging from 35,000 to 45,000 tons; 18 aircraft carriers; 91 cruisers; nearly 200 submarines; 360 destroyers and 300 or more auxiliary and supply ships.

The Merchant Marine also is to be expanded to a total of 1600 ships. The first of this month the shipyards were turning out a new 10,000 merchant vessel every day. Next fall, three such ships will be turned out daily, VanZandt said. When the defense program is fully under way we will surpass Hitler in the production of everything, he continued.

The Home Nursing committee, headed by Miss Margaret Broderhoff, of Bellefonte, is in need of old bed linens. Persons having usable linens, or linens from which cloths may be obtained, are asked to call Miss Alice Fox, Bellefonte.
