

Modern Etiquette

1. Is it necessary to give a gift to a person just because this person gave you one?
2. Is it considered proper to wave a handkerchief as a means of greeting an acquaintance or attracting his attention?
3. Is it obligatory to include a man's wife when one doesn't know her and wishes to invite the man to dinner?
4. If one has been called on the telephone during a particularly busy part of the day, what can be done?
5. If an employer always gives his stenographer a Christmas check, should she give him a gift?
6. "May I have the next dance?" or "Do you have the next dance taken?"
7. Should one use the most ornate and flowery words he knows when writing a letter?
8. What is the first test of correct dressing?
9. Is it correct to use candles on the table for Christmas dinner, served at noon?
10. Should one cultivate the friendship of a person who is always impertinent?
11. Is it good manners for a person to clear his throat with harsh "a-hems"?
12. Which woman should a man seat at dinner, the woman on his right or the one on his left?

Answers to Modern Etiquette

1. No. Too much of this so-called "exchanging gifts" is done. The true spirit of giving is ruined when the giver expects equal value in return.
2. No. This is not only a breach of etiquette, but it should be forbidden by health authorities as a germ spreader.
3. Yes; both of them should be invited.
4. If a telephone call is too much of an interruption, one may say, "May I call you again in half an hour?"
5. No; thank him for his gift and wish him a merry Christmas.
6. "May I have the next dance?" is the correct form.
7. Not unless such words are really a part of your general speaking vocabulary and it is your practice always to use them. Under ordinary circumstances, such words in letters sound forced, unnatural, and affected. Simply correct language is always in the best taste.
8. Comfort. No style is good if it results in discomfort. The second test is to select color combinations that are harmonious.
9. No. Such a friendship is not worth while. Lavater wrote, "Refrain from intimacy with a person who is so full of himself that he is not content with his own company."
10. No. It is this done intentionally. It is discourteous; if unintentional, it is due to nervousness.
11. No. It is this done intentionally. It is discourteous; if unintentional, it is due to nervousness.
12. The woman on his right.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class
No matter how much we like to cook, it becomes tiresome at times when we have to prepare three square meals a day. It is then that we turn to something new; if it isn't new foods, we can at least try serving the old ones in a new way. Make use of your extra cooking appliances, the toaster and waffle iron. There are numbers of savory sandwiches which when toasted seem much more of a meal than just a plain sandwich. Try serving them with a hot gravy or sauce. Try to make your food interesting, give every dish you prepare a little personal touch.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class
Spinach Timbales
1 cup cooked spinach
1 tablespoon fat
1 egg lightly beaten
1-2 cup milk
1-2 teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
Few drops onion juice
1 teaspoon vinegar
4 round slices bread fried
4 slices tomatoes
Combine first 8 ingredients. Fill greased timbale molds. Bake in a pan of hot water in slow oven 30 degrees for 30 to 45 minutes until firm. Cover bread with slice of tomato and turn a spinach mold on each. Serve with Hollandaise sauce.
Roquefort Cheese Dressing
Crush 1-4 pound of Roquefort cheese in a bowl. Add 9 tablespoons of salad oil, little by little, until you have a smooth, even mixture. Then add 1 tablespoon vinegar. You will find the dressing thick and creamy, it just barely pours. Season with 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 teaspoon salt and 1-2 teaspoon paprika. Serve with head lettuce.

Poets' Corner

WAKE ISLAND!
It was only a tiny island
And it really couldn't hope
To be so much to save itself—
But its spirit never broke.
It wasn't fighting a man or men—
But only creatures small,
Brood of a beast whose breath was
To whom honor meant nothing at all.
It hadn't a chance—Ah, there you're wrong
For its seemingly futile fight
Has made of its loss a victory
To those who uphold the right.
The Right that makes Might in America
From whence its gallant came,
Who will teach those yellow curs
The veriest meaning of shame.
The smoke that rises from tiny Wake
Will be the funeral pyre
Of that Dragon's breed whose traitorous
Knows naught of Freedom's fire.
The flame that burned in the souls
Of the men
Who fought on the Island of Wake
That flame that their brothers will
Keep alive
And when they wily Nipponese
Think of Wake, they'd best prepare
To meet the might of the selfsame
stuff
They first encountered there.
—Uncle Sam, Jr.

Answers to Poets' Corner

It was December the seventh,
and the year forty-one,
The Japs bombed Pearl Harbor,
then a great war begun.
It was only a day or so, later on
The Germans like Japs, against U. S. had gone.
Since then this country is in great distress
With our President making so many addresses.
To the Congressmen, Senators, and
his fellow-men
Of this terrible war, we are everyone
in.
This is not only a war, but a long
and a hard one.
I quote Roosevelt saying after the attack on Pearl Harbor:
If we all keep our health, our patience
and faith,
We'll win it regardless of the time
that it takes.
We'll all try to buy some Defense
Stamps and Bonds
To help our boys and Uncle Sam on.
We'll sacrifice many things here at home.
And bring back our boys across the deep foam.
You, boys, don't feel lonely, dreary
or blue,
We're doing everything in our power
for you.
We'll all protect dear old Uncle Sam
by willingly giving a big helping hand!

Illness Fatal To Mrs. Grether
In ladies' bands on the Pacific Coast for 20 years or more. She was a member of the Pleasant Gap Band until illness forced her retirement.
The deceased is the last member of the Harrison clan, descended from Thomas Harrison, her grandfather, who laid out Hornstown in Pleasant Gap, and donated land to the Hornstown school to be used as long as needed for school purposes. The entire Hornstown section was at first known as Harrisonville, and is still so marked on original maps.
Mrs. Grether is survived by a grand-niece, Miss Madeline Harrison, and a nephew, Thomas Harrison, who is educational director of the Philadelphia County Prison, Philadelphia, and an employee of the Philadelphia Board of Education. Other relatives include the Griffiths and their descendants in the Pleasant Gap vicinity.
Elta (Harrison) Grether was one of five children born to Thomas and Mary Jane Griffith Harrison about the time of the Civil War. Her body is to be cremated and the ashes will be interred in the family burial lot in the Lutheran cemetery at Pleasant Gap.
