Words Often Missed
Do not say, "The horse's intuition guided it towards home." Say, "The horse's instinct."

Spilled in Oven
When a baking article of food spills over in the oven it creates an offensive odor and unpleasant smoke. Sprinkle some salt over the spilled food and it will stop both of these.

FARM AND HOME

Accurate Repair Order Insures Correct Parts

Accuracy is the watchword when ordering farm machinery repairs. Nothing is more discouraging than to order a repair part for a farm implement, and then to discover that the wrong part has arrived, because of an error made in ordering it.

The repair shop should be heated in some way. If the building does not have a chimney a ventilated metal thimble should be used around the smokepipe where it goes through either the roof or floor.

Where the width of the shop permits the best arrangement for the equipment is along the side wall. A window here also provides the best light. For a right-handed man the bench should have plenty of room on the right end and for a left-handed man the open space should be at the left end.

CURING INFLUENZA WITH QUININE

At Pearl Harbor this country has just had a lesson in the want of vigilance that led to most disgraceful and disastrous conditions. The commanding officers were apparently not on the alert. Consequently, many lives were lost, much material damage done, and our prestige suffered. Are we going to pay as little heed to the warnings that we have received in regard to the threatened flu epidemic, and be caught unawares in that respect, too?

Scientists have been telling us that the comparatively mild epidemic during World War I, are almost precisely duplicated today. We are in the throes of a world war which in many respects is worse than the first, and more people were killed by influenza in 1918-19 than by the combined military losses of all the nations.

While some research work has been done in seeking for a remedy, especially a vaccine that will prevent or cure influenza, it has not been found. However, many valuable and practical experiments have been made in Europe and America by physicians and others.

Dr. A. M. Showalter of Christianburg, Va., read a paper before a medical society, which was published in the Virginia Medical Monthly, January, 1941, in which he states that his attention was first directed to the use of quinine during the flu epidemic of 1907 while an interne in St. Vincent's Hospital, Norfolk, Va., where some of the staff men used larger doses of quinine with good results.

In the epidemic of 1918 he took larger doses of it himself while running a temperature of 103 and 104. He felt better, and his temperature dropped to normal in 72 hours after he began taking the quinine. On account of the shortage of doctors and the great number of sick people, he lost no time from work, yet suffered no ill effects.

AIDS OIL PROSPECTORS BY USE OF NEW FORMULA

How much you should invest in wild-cat oil prospecting if you should invest at all can be computed statistically, according to Dr. Sylvain J. Piron, in charge of petroleum and natural gas engineering at the Pennsylvania State College.

Applying a formula by which the break-even value of wild-cat land—where no oil is known to be present—can be computed. Dr. Piron's method now makes it possible for the speculator to know the maximum price he should offer for such properties.

Statistics recently compiled have shown that by drilling a well at random, the chances of discovering an oil field are only about 1 in 17.

Dr. Piron said, "If the property is studied by geological methods, the chances increase to 1 in 10. If both geological and geophysical methods are applied, the chances increase to 1 in 4."

The Last Few Drops

The last few drops of fat can be removed from the top of the soup by throwing a lettuce leaf into the pot. This will absorb the grease and can be removed as soon as it has served its purpose.

Cake Baking

A cake can be baked and frosted at the same time as follows: Over the batter of a spice, chocolate or white cake after it's in the pan, spread some chopped raisins and nuts and a little crushed pineapple. When baked, the frosting is all done and very tasty.

Frost Bite

An effective treatment for frost bite is to rub the affected parts gently with snow, or with cloths wrung out of ice cold water. Also, keep the patient warm from any direct source of heat.

Paraffin Protection

Should the inside of the silver-plated lid of the mustard jar or horseradish jar be inclined to turn green, coat it with a thin layer of paraffin.

Kitchen Oilcloth

Instead of tacking the oilcloth to the kitchen table, put it on with ordinary floor paste. It will last longer and stay smoothly in place. Another good idea is to purchase some brass fittings for the corners. These are inexpensive, attractive, and will last a long time.

Chocolate Stains

The stain left by spilling chocolate or cocoa on the tablecloth can be removed if it is immediately washed out with cold water. If left awhile, use a solution of cold water and borax and allow to stand for a few hours in this solution before laundering.

The Oil Mop

The oil mop can be cleaned by using hot water, ammonia, and a small amount of washing powder.

Baked Bananas

Baked bananas make an ideal food for children, and for nervous persons. Bake in the skin for 15 or 20 minutes, until soft and then burst the skins. Remove from the skins and lay them in a baking pan with very little water. Dust sugar over the top and sprinkle with lemon juice. Serve hot.

YOUR HEALTH

Dermatitis is an inflammation of the skin.

Contact dermatitis is due to occasional, continuous or intermittent contact with a skin irritant.

Skin irritants cover a wide variety of substances.

Among the most common are plants, chemicals, dyes, soaps, drugs, and various substances found in the home or in industry.

There are certain substances to which all skin is sensitive, such as a powerful chemical.

Other substances affect only those skins which are sensitive to them.

Persons with thin, sensitive skins are especially predisposed to contact dermatitis.

Industrial dermatitis has been a serious problem for some time.

It has been estimated that one out of every 100 workers in industry in the United States is annually affected with industrial dermatitis.

The continual introduction of new chemicals and new processes are expected to increase this number.

Some of the substances causing industrial dermatitis are: petroleum oil and greases, alkalis, including cement and concrete, solvents, chromic acid and salts, metals and metal plating.

There are also dyes, rubber and its compounds, paints and varnishes, synthetic resins and plants.

The Negro is less susceptible to skin irritants than the white man.

Men with thin blonde skins are more easily irritated than those with thick oily skins.

Young people are more readily irritated than older ones.

There is more industrial dermatitis in warm weather because less clothing is worn and there is more perspiration.

The problem of finding the irritating agent is often difficult.

Milk Is Foundation of Every Good Diet

Milk is one of the protective foods because it provides proteins, vitamins, and minerals which are needed each day by every individual.

Because of its qualities, milk should be the foundation of every diet, believes Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre County.

The calcium requirement of infants and growing young people can be met easily by including one quart of milk in the diet each day.

Adults need calcium, too, to aid in the contraction and relaxation of the muscles and to help in coagulating the blood. These needs can be met by using at least a pint of milk each day, either in cooking or as a beverage. Pregnant and nursing women need at least a quart of milk a day.

That milk is fattening is a mistaken notion. Milk is no more fattening than any other food that gives the same number of calories. Milk also provides vitamins A, B, and G, necessary for growth and well-being.

Milk need not always be served as a beverage. Use it in soups, creamed or scalloped dishes, and puddings. For a change cook cereals in milk.

Sour milk never should be wasted, for it is just as nutritious as sweet milk and can be used in cooking or for cottage cheese. Skim milk is the same food value as whole milk except for vitamin A which may be obtained by eating extra butter or cream or yellow colored foods.

One Good Gadget Has Many Uses in Kitchen

Kitchenware departments are full of a thousand and one fascinating gadgets, all designed to make the homemaker's lot easier. If she is susceptible, she could in a short time succumb to enough of them to overcrowd the kitchen.

The homemaker's problem, according to Miss Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre County, is to select only those which will pay for the space they take up in the kitchen. Many gadgets seem practical at the fetching price, but after the novelty wears off they often become useless.

Gadgets will pay their way if (1) they do things that either cannot be done by hand or require more time and energy if done by hand; (2) they do more than one thing; (3) they can be used again and again; and (4) if they are simple, easy to set up and use, and easy to clean.

As you stroll past tempting displays of gadgets, adopt an attitude of resistance, unless they will meet these tests.

Measuring cups and spoons are among the common and most often used gadgets. Modern and efficient cups and spoons come in nested sets either in tin or bright colored composition to match your kitchen color scheme. The set consists of cups 1-3, 1-3, 1-2 and 1 cup capacity, and spoons 1-4, 1-2 and 1 teaspoon and 1 tablespoon.

Cups of this type have a distinct advantage—sifted flour can be heaped into the cups and leveled off with the back of a knife to give correct measure. However, you must be careful to select those of standard measurement. Cups with wooden handles are easier to use for melted fats or hot liquids.

Light and Warmth Aid Repair Work

Machinery repair this winter will be easier if done in a warm, well-lighted room with ample working space. On most farms a handy place to do repair work can be provided in an existing building. The place should be large enough for a sturdy bench, supply shelves, and space for an implement with room to work around it, states County Agent R. C. Blaney. A room 16 feet wide by 20 feet long with a double and single door in one end provides a neat arrangement. In many cases the present garage can be used by the addition of an easily constructed shed roof, made at least 6 feet wide across the back end to house the bench, supplies and tools.

Where there is electricity, numerous outlets should be provided for plugging in extension cords. Farmers not having electricity frequently use flashlights to light work under or in the machines.
