Two handsome and distinguished gentlemen of Rome, N. Y.; Ernest Rosenberg, Commissioner of Public Works in that city, and Stewart Schuler, city engineer of Rome, spent the weekend in Bellefonte. Mr. Rosenberg, an uncle of Mrs. W. W. Sieg, of East Linn street, who long has contemplated a visit to Bellefonte but who never before had visited this community, is a politician and gentleman of more than average merit, and in addition is blessed with a rich baritone voice. To prove his ability in this line he entertained members of the local Elks club at a party in the evening which were greatly enjoyed. During their brief stay here the two visitors became acquainted with a number of local citizens and made a most favorable impression. They promised to return during the coming summer and if they do, we can band together that they'll be warmly received.
