Modern Etiquette

- 1. Does a man's social calling card have the title "Mr." engraved on it?
2. Is it all right to give a bride-to-be wearing apparel as a wedding gift?
3. When a man is dining in some public place with a woman, and a friend of this woman stops at the table to talk what should the man do?
4. Is it necessary for a new-comer to a neighborhood to return a first call by one of her new neighbors?
5. When entering a dining car on the train should one find a seat for himself, or wait to be shown a seat?
6. What should a woman wear to a daytime affair when she has been asked to speak to an audience?
7. Is it all right to acknowledge wedding gifts with engraved cards of thanks?
8. Shouldn't a man and his wife be seated together at a dinner party?
9. What are a few simple rules of behavior for servants?
10. Is it proper for a bridegroom to begin arranging his cards before the deal has been completed?
11. Is it proper to wear any vivid colors when attending a funeral?
12. How far from the edge of dinner table should one seat himself?

DO YOU KNOW
Whooping cough caused the death in six recent consecutive years, of 42,555 persons in the United States. Eighty-five to 90 per cent of the deaths from whooping cough occur in children under age three.

Answers to Modern Etiquette

- 1. Yes, always. And if the card is to be faultlessly correct, a given name, and not just the initials, must be engraved on it—as, "Mr. Robert Lee Hunter," or, "Mr. R. Lee Hunter."
2. Not unless she is an intimate friend. Linens, odd pieces of furniture, books, chinaware, silver are not in better taste as wedding gifts.
3. The man should rise and stand as long as the person remains.
4. Most certainly. To neglect to return a first call is both rude and unkind, as it indicates clearly that one does not wish to keep up an acquaintance. A visit, however courteous and kind enough to call upon you first deserves the courtesy of a return call.
5. Stand at the entrance until the steward approaches and conducts you to a seat.

- 6. She should wear street clothes and a hat.
7. No, this is extremely rude. A bride should acknowledge all gifts just as soon as possible with a personal note on her personal stationery.
8. No. Each should be seated with a different partner.
9. The well-behaved servant keeps the voice low, walks as silently as possible, does his work quietly, and is always courteous.
10. No, this is very rude. He should not touch nor pick the cards up until the last one has been dealt.
11. No, this shows a crude disregard for the feelings of the mourners, and a distinct lack of consideration and fine judgment.
12. The chair should be neither too near nor too far from the table. A distance of about eight inches is usually just right.

YOUR HEALTH

Clever—those Chinese! That's an old adage—and still holds. The Japs are crowding in on smartness. Their cleverness has a sinister note. Quoting from Paragraph 15 of the Book of Regulations for Japanese soldiers: "The use of narcotics is unworthy of a superior race like the Japanese."

Only inferior races that are decadent, like the Chinese, Europeans, and East Indians, are addicted to the use of narcotics. "This is why they are destined to become our servants and eventually disappear."

Japan has defied all international commitments by promoting the opium trade. The United States Commissioner of Narcotics has abundant proof of the fact. Japanese officials have three objectives in such traffic. First, to gain revenue. Second, to corrupt Western nations.

Third, to invade the people of lands already invaded or marked for invasion. To enslave another race through the use of narcotics is neither original nor humane.

Pestilence and war are historically associated with each other. It has been left to the Japanese to find a way of making a pestilence pay for war. The Japs are not honorable fighting men.
