Sunday School Lesson

JESUS AND FALSE LEADERS International Sunday School Lesson for April 19, 1942.

Golden Text: "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth."—Luke 11: 23.

Lesson Text: Luke 11: 15-54; 12: 21-35.

A virtue greatly needed in this modern age is sincerity. Simple candor and straight dealing in our commercial, political, social and religious life. Hypocrisy and falsehood are always the masks for the evil and imperfect. Truth can harm no honest cause and every deviation therefrom or concealment thereof has its motive in wrong being accomplished thereby.

Particularly in the religious sphere of action we should condemn cant and hypocrisy. We should eternally and courageously seek the truth, which can and will make men free—of superstition, of bigotry, of evil. Every man has the right to demand of his neighbor, not agreement with his own principles and ideals, but honesty and sincerity in presenting and exhibiting what ever of opinion and judgment that has come to him.

The conduct of Jesus and his disciples was often the subject of carping and criticism from the Pharisees and scribes. The Sabbath was not observed properly, their personal associates were not fit, and in today's lesson, he was denounced for eating with unwashed hands. This did not imply that his hands were physically dirty or filthy, but that the ceremonial requirements of washing had not been observed.

The "tradition of the elders" referred to that body of the law, handed down verbally and by interpretation and elaboration, which had grown so comprehensive and so burdensome and which had been so exalted that the keeping of its letter and technicalities was considered of more moment than genuine and simple religious worship and a life in harmony with the principles of righteousness.

The critics of Jesus and his disciples, seeking to discredit him with the crowd, then as always, very conservative and intolerant of religious advance from any accepted existing standards, accused them of violating the traditional Jewish religious rites as established by the ancient authorities and upheld by the ecclesiastical leaders of the day in the Sanhedrin and the synagogues.

The defense of Jesus was by way of counter-attack. He replied by charging that these same critics violated the law of God, not that of the elders, and proved the accusation by exposing the hypocritical casuistry whereby many Jews escape the divine laws regarding their duty to parents (Exodus 20: 12 and 21: 17) by falsely pretending that their wealth had been pledged to the church, thus "making void the word of God by such tradition," which allowed such equivocation to satisfy the requirement of the law.

In a simple, unanswerable presentation, Jesus showed the vital distinction between the Pharisaical insistence on unnecessary ceremonial ritual and his own teaching about righteousness. How foolish it was to believe that any man could be rendered unclean and sinful by merely associating with or having incidentally brushed the idea that the eating of food not killed and cleaned in certain prescribed and mechanical method could make a man wicked.

Religion was not Jesus, deified, nor is it now, a matter of observing such rules and regulations, but a mode of living. The evil in the lives of men came not from without but from unclean and impure hearts, "for not from without, but out of the heart of man proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, thefts, covetousness and evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness—all these things come from within and defile the man."

In our day these words have a potent application. True religion and genuine worship does not consist in formal beliefs, traditions, and ecclesiastical forms, intellectual patronage of the moral and philosophical truth of Christianity, or any superficial and hypocritical conformity to the popular, accepted notions about these things, but in the full, free, honest and everyday life in accordance with the fundamental requirements of love, justice, purity, honesty, mercy and service.

The Christian should uphold and support the church only as a means to righteous living, not as receiving an independent virtue in forms and customs in themselves.

That an individual is an end-in-himself and is not to be taken as a tool or an instrument by anyone but himself without his own consent is a maxim that I think of as peculiarly the aim of America," said Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of New York City, recently. "This is a doctrine and policy which separates us from our enemies at bottom of the principles for which we are fighting. There is small, if any place with Nazis, Fascists, or Japanese for any such doctrine. If we are to fight with conviction in the present struggle and not just because the nation may submit hymns that have appeared in print other than in hymn books. The hymns chosen in each group will remain the property of the society which plans to introduce them into new hymnals, etc. The society will appoint judges for each category, and will announce the winners in connection with its twentieth anniversary celebration in October. All manuscripts should be in the hands of the Hymn Contest Committee, Hymn Society of America, 297 Fourth avenue, New York City, by Oct. 1, 1942."

MILESBURG

Harold Peace of Ft. Meade, Md., spent the weekend at his home here.
Our boys from Camp Sutton, N. C. home on furlough last week, had their time shortened and were ordered to report for duty Friday last.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peters and daughter Elizabeth of Lewistown, were Sunday afternoon callers at the W. S. Walker home.
Mr. and Mrs. Guyer Fisher and family moved to Tyrone on Friday last. Those who helped with the moving were Mrs. William Eckenroth, Mrs. Clair Lingde, Mrs. Oliver Bittner and Mrs. Joseph Flick and daughter Louise, the latter two of Bellefonte. Mr. and Mrs. Cassidy of Winata, have moved into the home vacated by the Fisher family.
James Wensel is able to be about again without the use of crutches, but has not returned to work.
William Eckenroth and son Harry, motored to Tyrone Sunday, and visited relatives. Mrs. Eckenroth, who had been there since Friday returned home with them.
We think Bellefonte deserves a great deal of credit for taking care of stranded soldiers and sailors the way they do. And we know the boys appreciate it.
Mr. and Mrs. Guyer Fisher had the misfortune to lose a $x12 conglom rug, practically new, off the truck on Friday when they moved. When found it was badly torn and useless.
Mr. and Mrs. Clay Hall of Osceola Mills, were Sunday visitors with relatives here.
Mr. and Mrs. William Keen spent Sunday with relatives at Philipsburg.
The author of the following poem is unknown, but there is a lesson in it for all.
AS YOU SHAVE—LOOK AT YOURSELF
Pray don't find fault with the man who limps,
Or stumbles along the road,
Unless you have worn the shoes he wears,
Or struggled beneath his load,
There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt,
Though hidden away from view,
Or the burdens he bears placed on
Might cause you to stumble, too,
Don't sneer at the man who's down today,
Unless you have felt the blow
That caused his fall or felt the shame
That only the fallen know,
That may be strong, but still the blows
That were hit, if dealt to you
In the same way at the same time,
Might cause you to stagger, too,
Don't be too harsh with the man who stirs,
Or pelt him with words or stones,
Unless you are sure, ye doubly sure,
That you have no sins of your own;
For you know, perhaps, if the tempter's voice
Is the whisper soft to you,
As it did to him when he went astray
'Twould cause you to falter, too.

Electric Ranges Make Better Cooks

That's because electric ranges take the guesswork out of cooking. Why? Because electric heat is always under perfect control. A turn of the switch gives the exact amount of heat needed—every time. Good food, plus the exact amount of heat for exactly the right length of time, means perfect results.

Another big advantage to electric range users is that this controlled cooking is the Vitamin-Saving way to cook. Old-fashioned cooking methods waste Vitamins—electric cooking conserves them. And in war time, when nervous tension exacts a tremendous toll of energy, all of us need a full quota of Vitamins to build strong healthy bodies.
