- 1. How is all service made at a dinner table, from the right or left?
2. What is the chief obligation when visiting at a friend's home?
3. Are correspondence cards in good taste?
4. When should the clergyman be consulted about a wedding?
5. Should decorations be used when giving a musicale?
6. Is asparagus ever eaten with the fingers?
7. When a young man becomes interested in a girl he has recently met, should he wait for an invitation from her to call?

- 8. What is the most charming kind of voice for one to possess?
9. Should a woman include her husband's name on the invitations to a tea?
10. Shouldn't a man leave his business problems and worries at his office, instead of bringing them into his home?
11. Should the meat be carried to the mouth with the fork in the left hand?
12. What size should a woman's visiting card be?

Answers to Modern Etiquette

- 1. From the left, and using the left hand. Glasses are refilled when necessary from the right, and without being picked up or moved. The dishes may be removed, however, from either the right or the left, whichever is more convenient; and they should not be stacked, but removed singly.
2. To be an appreciative and charming guest.
3. Yes; they are very popular and in good taste for the short, informal notes. It is becoming more and more customary for men and women to use these cards. However, they should not be used on occasions of great formality.
4. He should be consulted as soon as the plans for the wedding are discussed.
5. Use as few decorations as possible. Palms and ferns may be used but never flowers, as the heavy scent annoys the artists.
6. No. It is ill-bred to take up one's dripping vegetable with the fingers. It should be taken with the fork, the tip being cut off with blunt edge of the fork, and so conveyed to the mouth.

- 7. No. "Paint heart never won fair lady." The period of waiting might be indefinite. He should ask permission to call.
8. According to an old adage, "The voice with a smile wins." And by a "voice with a smile" is meant a pleasant voice, low, gentle, without any strident or harsh quality. It is important to remember that if you yourself are pleasant, cheerful, and kindly, your voice cannot fail to reflect these qualities.
9. No. The wise man will do so. He will abide by the old proverb, "Drive thy business, let not that drive thee."
10. The American custom is to sniff the fork from the left hand to the right hand when eating, but either form is correct.
11. The woman's card rarely measures more than 3 to 3 1/2 inches wide by from 2 1/4 to 2 1/2 inches high. For the young girl, the card is a little smaller. It is usually more square in shape, about 2 1/2 inches wide by 2 1/4 inches high.

HOUSEHOLD SCRAPBOOK

- Glossy Linen
Here is one way to give starch a brilliant luster. Soak for five or six hours, one ounce of white gum arabic in one quart of water; then add two ounces of borax and heat to the boiling point. Now add one ounce of glycerin. When cool, strain and bottle for use. Stir one tablespoonful of this mixture into every three quarts of starch used.
Perfume Spots
Perfume spots on furniture should be smeared with linseed oil, olive oil, camphorated oil immediately. Mop up and apply more oil on a woolen cloth.
Walnut Stain
Anyone can make a good walnut stain by mixing one quart of boiled linseed oil, one quart of turpentine, one pint of whiting, one tablespoonful of burnt umber, one-half teaspoonful of Venetian red, and one-half teaspoonful of yellow ochre.
Window Sills
Refinished window sills will be kept in perfect condition if a fine floor wax is rubbed on them periodically.
Bandages
A bandage that has stuck to the wound can be loosened by moistening it with peroxide of hydrogen.
A Tight Shoe
When the toe of a shoe binds, wring out a cloth in hot water, fold it, and lay across the toe while the shoe is on the foot. This will cause the leather to expand and conform to the shape of the foot.
Double Blankets
It is much easier to handle double blankets, both in laundering and on the bed. If they are cut apart and bound separately, then, on a warmer night, if both prove to be too warm, one of them may be removed.
Cleaning Tiles
Use a soft cloth dipped in kerosene for cleaning tiles in the bathroom or kitchen. Then wash the tiles with warm water and wipe dry with a soft cloth.
Bleaching White Goods
When white material has turned yellow after being stored for a long time, dissolve two tablespoonfuls of borax in one quart of water. Boil them good in this solution then place in the sun to dry. Repeat the treatment if necessary.

YOUR HEALTH

- Careful driving will add miles to tires.
Sensible living will add years to life.
Are we living correctly and giving our bodies the fullest opportunity for proper function?
Who knows?
The doctor does.
That is his business.
And that is why a periodic audit of one's physical equipment is so essential to maximum health.
Such an examination may discover the earliest sign of some infectious or organic deterioration.
The average person cannot detect these.
When disorders are discovered early by means of a physical check-up, very often their progress can be stopped or the cause removed.
A complete physical examination nowadays is a thorough and complex procedure.
It includes a careful investigation of the ability of most of the organs of the body to carry on their functions.
The eyes, ears, nose and throat are tested, also the blood, heart, lungs and kidneys.
There are numerous modern devices which aid the doctor in making this inventory for his patient.
After all physical tests are made, the doctor will inquire carefully regarding one's habits including sleep, exercise and work.
There may be no need for medicines or drugs but there may be need for advice as to diet, relaxation and social adjustments.
It is good to know, following this review, that all is well with one's body.
It is also smart to learn as soon as possible where danger lurks within.
DO YOU KNOW?
Army medicine in the United States began with the Revolutionary period when Dr. Joseph Warren, a major general of militia, and several other medical men fought in the line during the Battle of Bunker Hill.
Workman Severely Burned
Current was shut off for seven minutes in the Pennsylvania Power and Light sub-station at Sunbury, to permit workmen to save from death, Clarence Baylor, a lineman. Baylor was disabled by a short circuit of high voltage, and lay helpless on a cross arm of a pole, his clothes ablaze, while fellow workers climbed the pole, ripped off his clothing and lowered him to the ground with a rope. His chest, hand and back of his neck were badly burned.
The nation that permits a minority to control its politics will eventually have a new government.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

- Every housekeeper likes to get most preparation out of the way, that is why jellied dishes are indispensable. From these recipes you will be able to make many different meat dishes; take your pick.
De Luxe Pressed Chicken
1 large hen
1 cup small English peas
1-2 cup chopped almonds
2 cups diced celery
1 cup mayonnaise
1-2 cups chicken broth
5 teaspoons tomato catsup
4 hard-boiled diced eggs
1 box unflavored gelatin
Salt
Boil hen until tender. Remove meat and cut in small pieces. Mix all dry ingredients and add salt to taste. Add 1-cup broth and the catsup and gelatin which has been dissolved in the remaining broth. Mold and chill. When ready to serve, slice and serve on lettuce.
Luncheon Salad Mousse
1 tablespoon gelatin
6 tablespoons cold water
6 tablespoons heavy cream
1-4 cup mayonnaise
1-2 cups cold minced lamb
1-2 cups cold minced pickle
1-2 tablespoons minced parsley
Salt-paprika
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Sprinkle gelatin in cold water, dissolve over hot water. Whip cream, combine with mayonnaise. Fold in gelatin. Add remaining ingredients. Pour into mold which has been greased with salad oil. Chill thoroughly. Unmold on lettuce, serve with French dressing and capers.
Salmon Mold
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-2 teaspoons sugar
1-2 teaspoons flour
1 teaspoon mustard
2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon gelatin
6 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon butter
1-4 cup vinegar
1 one-pound can salmon
1-2 peeled cucumber, diced
For the Peas
1 can condensed pea soup
1-2 cup milk
1 tablespoon gelatin
1-4 cup cold water
Juice of 1-2 lemons
1 teaspoon minced onion
Mix salt, sugar flour and mustard together and mix with the egg yolks. Scald the milk and add to the egg mixture. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add butter and vinegar. Soften the gelatin in the 1-4 cup of cold water and add to the hot mixture. Stir until dissolved. Cool. Remove the skin and bones and flake the salmon. Add with the cucumber to the gelatin mixture.
Mix the pea soup with the milk. Heat to the boiling point and add the tablespoon of gelatin which has been softened in the cold water. Add lemon juice gradually and the minced onion. Pour into a mold which has been greased with salad oil. Chill until set. Then pour over the salmon mixture. Chill until firm. Serve with salad greens.
Beets a la Russe
8 to 10 beets
1/2 cup flour
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vinegar
1-2 cup water
1-2 cup sour cream
1-2 teaspoon salt
Pepper
Cook beets. Peel and grind in a meat chopper. Mix all other ingredients in a saucepan, stir until the sauce is cooked. Mix the beets in the sauce and cook for 10 to 15 minutes. Add 1-2 cup of sour cream and serve. Serve with breaded veal chops and mashed potatoes.
Tuna and Tomato Aspic
1 tablespoon gelatin
1-4 cup cold water
2 cups tomato juice
1-7-ounce can flaked tuna fish
3-4 cup chopped celery
1-2 teaspoon capers
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Sprinkle the gelatin over the cold water. Dissolve in the tomato juice which has been heated. Combine all other ingredients and add to the tomato juice. Pour into mold which has been greased with salad oil. Chill until firm. Serve with French dressing.

CAN WE ERADICATE MALARIA?
The human race has been plagued with malaria since the dawn of history.
The presence of the anopheles mosquito has destroyed many advanced civilizations of the past, and permitted magnificent cities to sink into the slime of noisome marshes.
For centuries malaria was supposed to be due to breathing infected air, particularly that of swamps at night. Hence the name malaria, which means bad air. The real culprit that carried the disease was discovered, however, when scientists went to work with their microscopes and found queer parasites in the blood of patients with malarial fever.
After years of painstaking toil it was ascertained that the anopheles mosquito was the intermediary host that transmitted the deadly parasites to human beings.
Practical demonstrations were made particularly in Italy, where men allowed themselves to be bitten by infected mosquitoes. They came down with malaria within a few days. It was shown by further experimentation that by protecting the individual from the bites of mosquitoes, or by exterminating the insects, malaria could be eradicated from any community or locality.
During the last fifty years, the disease has diminished in extent and globe, but it is still a scourge that it is impossible to entirely eradicate.
Today the war is raging in some countries where malaria prevails the year round. It is useless under present conditions to attempt to eradicate it.
We are told by great malariologists that in quinine we possess a specific remedy against malarial infection. Each soldier, while in malarial infested areas, must carry his own quinine, which will serve to protect him from the disease. If he fails to take his daily prophylactic dose he may become the victim of a mosquito borne fever, that may prove more deadly to him than the enemy's bullets.
There are many who are suffering from the effects of latent malaria. They do not have the paroxysms of chills and fever, but they complain of not feeling well. They are chronically tired, and usually awaken in the mornings with dull headaches, which may wear off later in the day or disappear after a cup of coffee. These people have no pep, and lack energy and strength. They are chronic carriers of the malaria parasites which are in a quiescent state. If they become underfed, chilled, or take an intercurrent disease, then the parasites would multiply, and the patient would shake with chills and fever. This could be prevented by the timely taking of quinine. Fifteen grains a day for four or five days should suffice. If fever is present, it will be necessary to take twenty grains of quinine a day from five to seven days. Begin early in the morning, and take five grains every four hours.
If you go into a malarial district from an area that is free from the disease, then as a prophylactic dose take 10 to 15 grains of quinine a day during the malarial season.
It is very important that these precautions be observed while so many soldiers are scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land. No matter in what malarial districts, or after going into them, a word to the wise is sufficient.

- Recalls Old Lumbering Days
ed there to build foundations for houses or barns. Old Mitchell Smith, grandson of Catherine Smith, the woman gun-borer of the Revolution said his grandfather, Peter Smith had bought the island from the Indians for a red blanket, a long rifle, and a keg of rum. The grandsons sold it, I think it was the Dunn family, because they were to be thrown at the cattle, and opened a water mill at the mouth of Smith's later called McElhattan Run, one of the rockiest streams in the state. When they sold out to the McKeagneys they settled on two stony upland farms, where the cattle had a hard time to find grass between the rocks.
The IXL plows generally won the contests but the Brungart's were always contenders; there was another plow, with a double bitted share, that was a good one, it was so rigged up, when one share as we called it, became dull, could use the other and sharper, and, but it did not sweep the country like the double-bitted axe. In front of the IXL Plough Works, where the bank is located, was a wagon works where they made extra good farm and lumber wagons. Nearby a foundry where they turned out spuds for the bark peckers, and a good single-bit lumberman's axe, but they could not compete with the new double-bit axe or mass production at Mann's factory up the hollow, but on a small scale they produced an axe the equal of Mann's best.
"Lumbermen from Norway have told me the Mann double-bit axe was as well known there as in the Black Forest of Pennsylvania. One old Gipsy man was always making little packages of twigs, fastened together. None of us boys could guess what they were for, and the aged wanderer would not tell. Once after we had left the camp, and walking home, Prof. Sharp said, 'boys I'll explain these twigs, but don't say a word to the old Gipsy. Those are "patterns" to put on the road to show the direction in which the caravans are traveling, or to hide at front gates to indicate if the Chi-Keners will get a good or bad reception, cusswords, cross, shot gun, etc. After that we always respected more than ever that shrewd old Gipsy who ran an "AAA" for the tribe.
The little Indian kids were the best marksmen I ever saw, and picked up a few coppers by their skill. They would ask to have a penny, not a big copper, then they'd hold the way out, but the small Indian head pennies fastened to the bark of a tree, and hit it with their arrows, every time, at 100 feet, keeping the cent as the prize." Where these traveling Indians came to or were going, I never learned, but they came back year after year, like the Gipsies, and their favorite camps, in groves of big trees all through the Bald Eagle Valley. The Gipsies, like the Indians always camped by a stream, as they were great bathers, and I have seen the old Gipsy grandmothers dousing the swarthy kids late in October, but their beadings never seemed to catch cold. The Gipsies, being true Orientals, tried to bathe everyday, the men bathed apart from the women and children, but the pretty girls, who told our fortunes, were even more modest and retiring and had their private bathing places further up the stream.
Gipsies have told me they missed bathing in West Philadelphia where they wintered in old houses near to the Bull's Head Horse Bazaar; water was harder to get there than on the road. The Indians were also regular bathers, and in addition took steam baths, to cure various ailments, burying themselves up to the neck in hot mud," the interesting Mr. Wolfe concluded.
WARRIORS MARK GRANGE MEMBERS ARE HONORED
Five members of Warriors Mark Grange were honored, one receiving the Golden Sheaf certificate for 50 years continuous membership and receiving the Silver certificate for 25 years' service.
Mrs. Robert S. Ross was the recipient of the Golden Sheaf certificate, the presentation being made by Kenzie S. Bagshaw, master of the Pennsylvania State Grange. Silver certificates were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kurtz, Elmer Baney and C. E. Beck.
More Scarlet Fever
With nine cases of scarlet fever, Millville authorities have acted to close the school term without the last day of examinations and the closing commencement exercises. Other public meetings in the borough have been canceled until further notice.

Random Items (Continued from page one) for more news. Finally we became an addict of domestic radio broadcasts. But that source, too, became inadequate, and we turned to broadcasts from London, shifting to Rome, and Berlin, for variety. As a result we found that at the close of the day, our idea of the war was so conflicting and varied that we had no idea whatever of what was going on about it. In the other night while listening to a fine news summary as a night-cap we stumbled upon a jewel in the 19-meter band. It was a British Broadcast'ing Company news roundup to foreign countries. We listened to the war news in the Indian language and in the Egyptian tongue. Halfway through the Turkish broadcast we were informed we were sure we'd heard the man say Hitler and Mussolini were dead; that the Allied nations had sunk the entire Japanese fleet; and that General MacArthur had taken the Philippines and was marching on Tokio! BANDMEN: The other day a stooge told us what happens to band instrument players as age creeps upon them. It seems that you can't play band instruments unless you have your own teeth. When you lose your teeth you have to be satisfied with showing your friends photos of yourself when you still had home-grown ivory. AXIOM: Henry A. Brockerhoff coined a new axiom the other day during one of those conversations which although pleasant, add practically nothing to the fund of human knowledge. "Dignity," Henry declared, "is the essence of respectability." The phrase is nicely turned and sounds well. But it's a phony from the word go.
