to see if Mr. Glasgow would go along over to the house. They all went over to the house and found he had passed away. Mrs. Benner said he must have died early because his time of rising for his day's work was 5 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Benner had been boarding and caring for the little girls each day while Mr. Crust was working in the fields, but this was the only time the little girls had ever come over alone. Mr. Crust always accompanied the girls to Mrs. Benner's home every morning. Then he would go back to the farm and do his work and call for the girls when his work was done. Mr. Crust's wife was struck by lightning four years ago and since then Mr. Crust cared and reared his two little girls up to the time of his death. Mr. Crust moved from Madisonburg in April this year on the Prof. Grau's farm here at Rock, where he had been working hard with his farm crops and was also carpentering and repairing the house and buildings. The night of his death he was heard ploughing in the field until 10 o'clock. The community mourns the loss of a good and accommodating neighbor, and one that was well liked by very person that knew him. He lived with the Ira Benner family for 13 years before he married Helen Benner, daughter of William Benner. He was buried from the Wetzel funeral home Saturday forenoon, with interment in the Myers cemetery. The funeral sermon was given by the Rev. W. O. Brooks of Bellefonte.

Wounded Navy Flier Gives Graphic Story

planes that were fighting the far-flung battle of Midway.

Carrier Afire One of the larger carriers already burned fiercely, while enemy cruisers and destroyers wheeled around it waiting to rescue personnel.

Gunner Hit In the face of terrific anti-aircraft fire and enemy fighter attack, the American planes leveled for the assault.

Suddenly an explosive shell from a Zero fighter ripped through his torpedo plane's rudder controls.

His gunner was dead, and in the emergency landing his radioman was unable to pull free.

Plane Sinks At 11 a. m. Gay alone, watched the tail surfaces of his plane disappear.

Gay figured his chances quickly and accurately. There had been reports of Japanese strafe helples.

Five Carriers Hit "For some reason," Gay recalled, "I put it in my mouth. Maybe I wanted a souvenir. Anyhow, I lost it before long."

Then from his fish-eye view at sea level, Gay saw two other Jap carriers hit squarely by United States bombers.

Tremendous fires burst from these vessels. Great billows of smoke churned upward with the flames flaring from the apex in dark columns.

Internal explosions sent new gusts of smoke and fire belching from the carriers at momentary intervals, he said.

As the ferocious Pacific fleet attacked, the second Kaga class carrier was on fire from bow to stern.

Surface craft gave Gay some narrow brushes. One enemy destroyer appeared to be driving straight at him as she sped to aid a stricken carrier.

WAE ROUND-UP: Even though the war news has been encouraging for the past week, there's no reason to believe that the battle is practically over. The United Nations have to turn the present Russian stalemate; trounce Hitler; drive the Japanese out of most of the Pacific southwest; get rid of the Libyan campaign; and perform sundry other feats before we can settle back and wonder when the first new cars will be on the market.

PUBLIC SALES: The war seems to be exerting a beneficial effect on public sales in this vicinity. Attendances this season have been exceptionally large and most items have been bringing slightly higher prices than
