DURING BLACKOUTS (Friendly Warning)

West Penn Power Company power stations and substations are at all times heavily guarded by special armed officers and, some points, by United States Soldiers. To make this guarding effective during blackout periods, it is essential that no West Penn employe, nor any other person, attempt to approach or enter these properties without having made previous arrangements. To disregard this would be unsafe.

Employes who are required to enter these properties must do so only under special arrangements.

West Penn employes, state, municipal, Civilian Defense or other officers assigned to guard specific electric properties dur-ing blackouts should make their assignment and their plan of guarding known, well in advance of the blackout, to the Company's district office and the guards or attendants on duty at the specified properties. Compliance with these directions will assure safety;

We are sure that our friends will fully understand and appreciate the necessity for these measures.
