Altoona Man Convicted 2nd Time

as John Hamilton, employed by a garage in Hollidaysburg. Stating that if she wanted to ride home she was welcome to it, the driver opened the door of the car, according to testimony, and the girl accepted the offer.

Drives to Woods

Miss Lovett stated that as soon as she entered the vehicle the driver drove away at a fast rate of speed going up Seventh street toward the east end of the city, coming to the main highway and turning at Kettle street, found his way to a deserted woods past the Rose Hill cemetery.

During the course of the wild ride Miss Lovett told the jury she confronted the man with the fact that they were not traveling in the direction of her home.

Upon stopping the car the driver turned out the lights of the car and held the struggling girl by placing his legs across her knees as she was trying frantically to open the door and escape, she testified.

Upon the demand and refusal of his alleged attempt to have intercourse with her, the driver, she said, voiced a threat that if she didn't co-operate he would accomplish it anyway and then, kill her.

Becoming angry at the girl's persistent refusal, Stoltz, she declared, said "take off your clothes or I'll kill you."

Miss Lovett stated that the defendant had blankets in the car and after succeeding in tearing the clothes off her body proceeded to disrobe himself.

Tells of Assault

Her attacker, the girl testified, assaulted her viciously. Later, she declared, he threw one of her garments out the window.

Taking the girl back to the outskirts of town the man was said to have forced the girl from the car back in an alley at Third avenue and Fifth street, about a quarter of a mile from her home and left her with the threat that if she mentioned the affair to anyone he would kill her.

"I arrived home at about 15 minutes till 3 o'clock in the morning of September 29, 1940, and on arrival home I told my mother what had happened and she immediately called the police," Miss Lovett said.

On December 15, Miss Lovett was asked to identify a man said by a motor police to have been the man who assaulted her. This she did, she said, the man being Eugene Stoltz.

A white slip and undergarments were entered as evidence. Both articles of clothing were blood stained. Taken to the office of Dr. Gettemy of Altoona at 10 a. m., the girl was examined by the doctor and found to have been injured.

The girl's mother on the witness stand, testified as to the story related to her by her daughter that morning and told the court and jury the condition of her clothes and of taking her to the doctor for examination.

Defendant Testifies

After the defense attorney announced to the jury that he would attempt to prove Stoltz to be a man of good character; also that the man was keeping regular company with another girl, and that the young woman, Miss Lovett, was mistaken in her identification of the man, Eugene Martin Stoltz, the defendant, was called to the stand to testify in his own behalf.

Formerly employed in the Juniata blacksmith shop, Stoltz stated that he was bound to work the day of the assault and had returned home about 3:15 p. m. After washing and reading the newspaper, Stoltz stated that he ate dinner and then went out to tend the 600 turkeys which he was raising in the back yard of his father's house.

This took until about 8:20 p. m. when he loaded a sack of turkey feed into the car and set out for the home of Miss Staley, regular friend of Mr. Stoltz.

Stoltz testified that he and Miss Staley had attended the theatre that night and had left at 11:20 o'clock, following which he had gone to the Casa Neva hotel, and stayed until closing time.

Taking Miss Staley to her home, Stoltz said that he had stayed there until about 2:30 a. m., when he left for his home.

Stoltz attempted by this alibi to prove that he could not have been the man who assaulted Miss Lovett.

Character witnesses were presented by both sides, whose testimony occupied considerable time during the first day's session of the trial.

Wants Prices Reduced To keep retail prices from pushing holes through the March ceilings, Price Administrator Leon Henderson intends to reduce numerous wholesale prices below March levels. Plans already have been made for rolling back prices of soap and certain canned goods.

Pack in Glass Jars The WPB is urging housewives to get away from tin cans and to pack food in glass jars. It says "an adequate supply of rubber sealing rings is assured for the purpose." The OPA, however, is restricting the amount of sugar allowed housewives to pack foods.

Rubber Is Far Off Even if synthetic rubber production "reaches unprecedented heights" the WPB warns "civilian relief will not be felt for at least two years." Therefore, there is to be no rubber except for "absolutely essential" uses.
