FARM & HOME

Protect Barns Against Lightning-Caused Fires
This is the season of barn fires. It will continue throughout the summer with one of the chief causes, lightning, taking its toll.

County Agent R. C. Blaney reports that a good lightning rod system is rated as 98 per cent effective in protection. Although new material is practically unobtainable, half-inch water pipe, or larger, which has been split by frost can be used to ground metal roofs and patch old systems. One-inch pipe, at least 10 feet long, usually is recommended for driven grounds and can be coupled to the down conductors with wire cable clamps or by tightly wrapping the two for several inches with fence wire.

Metal hay racks should be connected to the rods, usually at both ends, with at least two lengths of No. 9 wire. This usually can be placed under the hanger bolt and should be securely anchored at both ends. It can be stapled to wooden surfaces, since insulators are not recommended.

The whole subject of lightning protection is covered in the U. S. Department of Agriculture Farmers' Bulletin 1512 which can be obtained from the Agricultural Extension Association office in Bellefonte. A mimeographed sheet, "Grounding Metal Roofs for Lightning Protection," also is available.

More Canned Fruits Will Replace Jellies
Because it is impossible to cut down much on sugar in making jellies, it is necessary for homemakers in Centre county to adjust their fruit preservation plan. They will want to increase the number of jars of canned fruit and fruit juices and reduce the number of glasses of jelly or jam, says Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre county.

Besides actually sweetening jelly, sugar helps preserve the fruit since jellies are covered with paraffin. Sugar gives jelly its characteristic consistency.

Sugar is essential in jelly making, but it is possible to reduce the amount required. First, homemakers may use a minimum amount of sugar. Instead of using three-fourths to one part of sugar to each part of fruit juice, they may use three-fourths part of sugar to one part of fruit juice. With this lesser amount of sugar, the product will have more of the natural fruit flavor.

Part of the sugar needed for jelly making can be replaced with honey or corn syrup. Products made with sugar substitutes are less sweet than those made with all sugar.

Miss Butler suggests the following rules to stretch the sugar quota when making jelly:

1. With less sugar, use three-fourths cup of sugar to each cup of fruit juice.
2. With part honey, replace up to one-half the sugar called for with an equal measure of honey.
3. With part corn syrup, replace up to one-fourth the sugar called for with an equal measure of corn syrup.
4. When using either honey or corn syrup, cook the mixture slightly beyond the jelly stage.

Fruit juices may be canned without any sugar now and jellies prepared as needed next winter. When canning juices, process pint jars 15 minutes and quart jars 20 minutes in a hot water bath at simmering temperature.

Laundering the Right Way Saves Clothes
It is patriotic this summer to give your laundering special attention. Clothes laundered carefully last longer than those carelessly washed according to Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre county.

The following are hints for economy:

1. Avoid getting materials too dirty before washing. Hard rubbing and scrubbing or extra time in the machine wastes fabric.
2. Mend rips and tears before washing, they usually get bigger in laundering.
3. Have the right amount of suds and water of the right temperature. Too much soap is difficult to remove from fabrics; too little does not clean thoroughly. If water is hard, use a water softener. Too much softener is wasteful, yellows clothes, and may weaken fabrics.
4. Don't overload the machine. Follow the manufacturer's instructions for a maximum load. Overloading requires more power, there is likely to be improper washing and overloading may cause mechanical trouble.
5. Clothes hung properly on the line are easy to iron. Fold large pieces over the line to distribute the weight evenly. Be kind to the clothespins.
6. Save in ironing. Not all pieces
