EFFECTIVE BLACKOUT LIGHTING IS SIMPLE

An effective blackout light for use both indoors and outdoors can be easily assembled, according to D. L. Markle, professor of electrical engineering at the Pennsylvania State College, who has just completed laboratory tests of such lights.

"By covering the glass of a twocell flashlight of the non-focusing type, fitted with a 3.8 volt bulb, with two thicknesses of onion skin paper, no bright spot will exist. This, is the kind of lamp usually used with a three-cell type of flashlight." Professor Markle said.

Such light is favorable for seeing nearby, but will not be easily detected from a distance, he pointed out, Although the light will not be reflected from street surfaces, Professor Markle warned that no light source should be pointed upward. For use outdoors, it was suggested that a visor be made of cardboard tubing or other suitable material which would provide additional safety from detection.
