Cash returns to Pennsylvania growers and shippers totaled $1,983,459 last year for fresh fruits and vegetables sold through the Atlantic Commission Company, produce-buying affiliate of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, it was reported this week.

The report on operations in Pennsylvania was part of an analysis of the food chain's national produce operations made by John A. Hartford, A. & P. president, showing that continual shortening of the route from farm to family dinner tables enabled the company in 1941 to return to its farm suppliers 7.8 cents more of each dollar spent by consumers for fresh fruits and vegetables than in 1937 and 1.1 cents more than in 1940. This represents increased returns to growers of 16.7 per cent over 1937 and 2.06 per cent over 1940, he pointed out.

Hartford reported that the company's 1941 purchases of Pennsylvania fresh fruits and vegetables totaled the equivalent of 3,603 carlots. These purchases included mushrooms, carrots, cucumbers, peaches, broccoli, apples, corn, beans, spinach, strawberries, cabbage, peppers, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, onions, beets and miscellaneous fruits and vegetables.

The bulk of these purchases were made directly from growers and shippers in producing areas, with the balance made up by spot purchases at terminal points, the food chain's president said. He explained that the greater part of these purchases were moved to consumers through A. & P. stores in many states with some tonnage sold through trade channels.

Growers and shippers last year received an average of 54.6 cents of each dollar spent for fresh fruits and vegetables in A. & P. stores, he said, or about eight cents more than the national average for produce marketed through all trade channels. He attributed this high return to reduction in company expenses of buying and retailing these foods from 16.8 cents of the consumer dollar in 1937 to 11.9 cents in 1941. Coupled with this was a decline in warehouse and cartage costs and reduction of losses from damage and spoilage. Close cooperation and teamwork between the company and grower and shipper groups also helped to insure a continuing volume of uniformly graded and packed produce, and to increase returns to producers, he declared.
