

Echoes From the Past

Fifty Years Ago

Bartges' carriage shop near the depot, is doing a booming business this season. They have a constant rush of all kinds of work on hand and are turning out some of the noblest rigs seen on our streets.

The Sugar Valley Journal says huckleberries are selling at 5 cents per quart. The crop on the mountains surrounding the valley is very large and the price was expected to drop to 3 or 4 cents a quart.

The Bellefonte Bicycle Club recently purchased new uniforms, which are "beauties". The uniforms are of blue cloth, trimmed with a heavy braid, with caps to match.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following couples: Harry Daughenbaugh and Alice Fries, both of Port Matilda; George H. Hazel, Alexmann, and Verdilla Slotman, Alexandria; Lynn Kerstetter, Millheim, and Mary A. Raymond, Poe Mills; Adam Neese and Blanche L. Korman, both of Spring Mills; Frank S. Gray, Philadelphia, and Laura Peters, Bellefonte; Charles C. Small and Elsie B. Breon, both of Rebersburg; Charles W. Royer and Hannah Gertrude Musser, both of Millheim.

Mr. A. Austin Brew, a prominent and respected citizen of Bellefonte, met an untimely and fearful death last Thursday evening at Cedar Run, by being caught by several rolling logs which passed over his body.

On Monday evening Mr. Daniel Horner, a respected farmer living near Tusseyville, died very suddenly at his home, of neuralgia of the heart. Mr. Horner in the afternoon had been working in the fields assisting in harvesting his grain, when he experienced a severe neuralgia pain in the head. He at once went to the house and in a short time improved. After partaking of supper he went out on the porch and sat down to smoke a cigar. The neuralgia pain returned to his head and then affected other parts of his body.

Twenty Years Ago

W. F. Thompson, of Pine Grove Mills, had leased the old Academy grove near that town and planned to build it for a recreation park. Buildings were to be erected, and light and water provided. The park was to be available to the public.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following couples: Birney F. Fleming and Carrie B. Brown, both of Normal, Ill.; William F. Gilmartin, Scranton, and Essie E. Bechtel, Bellefonte; Ellis B. Shaffer, Lock Haven, and Lillian I. Diehl, Nittany.

While Robert Colyer was engaged in mowing grass in a field in the northern part of Millheim, Clifford Wilson was hunting for a groundhog and stepped in front of Colyer's mower. The knives caught one of young Wilson's legs and inflicted a severe wound.

Two sheep growers of Ferguson township suffered heavy losses when lightning killed six of the animals on the John Dreibelis farm, and nineteen fell victims of stray dogs on the Samuel Hess farm. The bolt which killed the Dreibelis sheep did no other damage. Two of the dogs which attacked the Hess sheep were killed and a third got away. None of the dogs had collars.

While members of the military organizations in Bellefonte and vicinity were getting things in preparation for the annual encampment, they received orders to cancel plans for camp and prepare to go to the western part of the state for service in connection with a coal strike. As a result, Troop A, of Boalsburg, and Troop B, of Bellefonte, boarded a special train here for transportation to the strike area.

Miss Durmer, a nurse at the Bellefonte Hospital, injured a painful injury when her foot caught in the ascending elevator at the hospital. Her cries brought other nurses to the scene and a Miss Hoy succeeded in forcing her way through a small aperture and releasing the injured nurse. The injury was not serious. Miss Fry, another nurse, had the end of a finger nipped off while operating the bread slicing machine in the hospital kitchen.

The Centre County Commissioners posted a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the murder of George M. Marks, of Taylor township, on June 14, 1921. Marks, an aged recluse and Civil War pensioner, accumulated considerable savings which he allegedly carried on his person. He was slain by a blow on the head. Although State Police and other officers worked on the case for many months, no solution ever was reached. (Ed. Note: Wonder if the reward is still in active force.)

Authorities had a pretty good suspicion who killed Marks, we've been told, but they could never get enough evidence to warrant an arrest.

Merrill Showers, of Bellefonte, purchased the William Showers farm at Hecla and planned to occupy the premises in the spring. He was a grandson of the former owner.

Hon. Joseph P. Guffey and two sisters, of Pittsburgh, were Sunday dinner guests at the Bush House, having stopped here while on a motor trip through the central part of the state.

Theodore Cherry, engineer on the L. & T. branch railroad had reached retirement age and had applied for retirement. Mr. Cherry's father was among the first engineers employed on the branch and Theodore learned the vocation as fireman from his father.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ard were home over the weekend from Aberdeen, Md., where he is employed on a federal project. They left for their place of employment on Monday.

Mrs. George Bechtel was taken to the Bellefonte Hospital one day last week and was operated on Monday for an infected leg caused by a bad fall. She is improving nicely.

Carl Motz and Harwood Kremer arrived at their respective parental homes on last Wednesday noon, July 15, from the New Cumberland barracks for a ten-day furlough. The boys look fine in their new uniforms as privates. They were the guests of their respective parents until Friday, July 24.

On Thursday evening the local E. L. C. E. Society held their regular monthly business and social meeting on the upper church lawn. The meeting was opened by an impressive devotional exercise. The pastor, Rev. H. A. Houseal, nobly assisted in all of the evening's activities including song hour. The society was glad to have our soldiers, Carl Motz and Harwood Kremer, with them and help them throughout the entire program.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Haines and Sonny, who left on Sunday of last week for Philadelphia, returned home last Friday. Mr. Haines returned to the city where he is now employed, last Sunday.

William Haines had a slight attack of paralysis at 6:30 o'clock on Sunday morning. His entire right side was paralyzed as a result.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burd of Aaronsburg, were Sunday evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Benner. Mr. Benner has not recovered any at all and for the most part of the time is confined to his bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Gurney Musser of Millheim, were Sunday dinner guests at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Musser. His father accompanied them to their home near Millheim for a few days visit.

John Eisenhuth of Philadelphia, George Stover and Harry Logg of near Chambersburg, and Nevin Bowersox of Camp Hill, were weekend guests with their respective families.

It certainly was astonishing to notice how heavy the traffic was on Sunday. This was surely not what the federal government directs our people to do. This didn't save tires nor gasoline to win the war. Are our people not awake yet? Please, reader, help to save for our soldier boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Meyers of Baltimore, Md., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bollinger and baby, and Miss Charles Furl of Yorkville, Md., visited with home folks over the weekend.

Over the County News

Pvt. Russell L. Spayd, son of Paul C. Spayd of Centre Hall, has arrived at the Armored Force Replacement Training Center at Fort Knox, Ky., to begin training for duty with the Armored Force.

If and when it becomes possible to apply oil and stone chips on the newly built stretch of road at the north end of the Narrows, to make a lasting job of it, it may be necessary to rebuild the base. Already it has large holes and deep depressions that are usually the forerunner of decay. Failure to complete it now may be an expensive operation later on.

A State College student, Henry L. Yeagley, and a Bellefonte young man, M. K. Eckley, were formally sworn into the Army Air Force Enlisted Reserve in a special ceremony at the College last Wednesday evening. Oaths were administered to 36 by Lieut. H. S. Engart, recruiting officer in charge of the Harrisburg Aviation Cadet Examining Board, which closed its fifth visit to the College, recently.

The mystery of the fast Army plane which disappeared last Sunday at State College last Sunday was finally solved when it was learned from Sam Lutz, manager of the State College Air Depot, that the plane was just saying "thanks for a swell time" to members of Sherm's staff. The pilot was Robert M. Stanley, chief test pilot for Bell Aircraft Corporation; the ship an Alracobra fighter. Stanley dropped by to thank the boys at the field for their hospitality when he cracked up a plane there on June 27.

Two cars collided head-on last Tuesday evening about nine o'clock on the town square. One car, driven by Paul Bowersox, of Coburn, was coming down North street, and Albert Shreckengast, of Loganton, was driving his Buick coupe up Penn street. James Koch, a passenger in Shreckengast's car, had his eye glasses broken in the shake-up, and was scratched by the pieces of glass. The Bowersox car had a broken front bumper and bent fender, with probable other damage, while we could not determine that the Shreckengast car was damaged to any extent, although it may have been. The two principals apparently settled the matter amicably without assistance.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fyde and daughter Esther, and Grandsons Doyle, visited with their son, Ernest and family, Sunday. Mr. Fyde had been shut in for some time. It is gratifying to see him out with a cane.

Capt. and Mrs. Henry B. Fitch and two daughters, Peggy and Susan, of Middletown, spent from last Wednesday until Sunday in their home here. The place was recently vacated by the Dr. H. F. Coopers, who moved to Centre Hall, but the Fitches "camped" there and did odd jobs around the property.

Gray Furey, former coach at Mill Hill High School of the Centre-Clinton Basketball League, and well-known Bellefonte native, has assumed head coaching duties at Enola High School. Furey, who produced four championship football teams and one cage title-winner, will teach physical education at Enola as well as coach the grid and basketball teams. He attended Penn State for one year, playing freshman football and basketball, and then transferred to Slippery Rock State Teachers College, graduating in 1935. He played three years of varsity football and basketball at Slippery Rock.

Centro countians collected a total of 560 tons of scrap rubber in the drive which ended last Friday, according to G. D. Krumrine, of State College, chairman of the campaign in the county. Mr. Krumrine described the amount donated or sold at the penny-a-pound price prescribed by the government as being "far more than we expected." It was well over the quota of five pounds per capita. Bulk stations in the county, which gathered the rubber from gasoline dealers, report that they have received no orders as yet on shipping the mountains of scrap rubber. Phillipsburg turned in the largest amount of any community.

Pilot Cadet Donald S. Wert, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Sparr Wert, of Aaronsburg, recently was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Army Air Force at Turner Field, Albany, Ga. Colonel John B. Patrick, Commanding Officer, Turner Field, an advanced flying school, is one of a group of air bases which composes the Southeast Army Air Force Training Center. It is there Air Force Training Cadets, both pilot and navigator, are sent for their final phase of training, which culminates in their receiving their much coveted wings and commission as Second Lieutenants in the Army Air Force. Lieut. Wert is now on furlough at his parental home before being assigned to duty.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Reed spent Saturday evening in Tyrone on a business trip and also did some shopping.

Mrs. J. L. Williams and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry Williams, are spending a few days with relatives in Bellefonte.

Last Sunday morning while making a round among the ore banks that look very promising for operation, I wound my way to the Grays bank and parked my car. As I was about to enter the washers I was told by the men that the washers were about ready for operation. I met one of the old Scotchies who had worked at the ore washer for quite a number of years. We discussed the new way to where they were built there, and, of course, a few things that happened some years ago. Paul then said to me, is there anything going on up at Scotia. I told him that they were putting in an ore washer there. This was the first I had heard of. Tomco at the mines in Scotia is a number of years. Paul, you know, is the general foreman at the quarries for the McPeely Brick Co. at Port Matilda.

Don't you folks forget that the twentieth annual Scotia picnic will be held on the 1st of August at the Scotia picnic grounds. Come, as many as you can, and we will all have a good time and enjoy the day together. A guest speaker has been engaged for the occasion and the members of the Grays M. E. church will serve sandwiches, ice cream and soft drinks. Come one and all, old and young, and visit the land where once your fathers labored so hard to make it the place it once was; and also visit the new ore washers that again are being built around these two mines. You will be sorry if you don't come and attend this year's picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Rumberger and son spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lucas of this place.

Sunday visitors at the Martin Spotts home were Mr. and Mrs. Edgar King, Mrs. Myrtle King and Jean Spotts, all of Coleville. They also attended church here Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burd and Mrs. Edith Burd visited friends and relatives at Unionville Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Burd and family of Pleasant Gap, attended church at this place on Sunday.

SPRING MILLS

Spring Mills and vicinity sweated for several days last week in temperatures which reached nearly 100 degrees as the summer heat forced a number to seek the nearest swimming pool.

If the necessary oil and chips are not applied on the newly built stretch of road along Sinking Creek to make a lasting job, it may become necessary to rebuild the base, as it already shows holes and depressions. The road leading from Penn Hall to Green Grove, is also in very bad shape with large holes and deep depressions, in fact almost impassable. People are commencing to wonder what becomes of the money they are paying for their auto licenses and are getting fed up on it and of course will vote accordingly at the November election.

Sunday School Lesson

A PIONEER OF FAITH: ABRAHAM.

International Sunday School Lesson for August 2, 1942.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward."—Genesis 15: 1.

(Lesson Text: Genesis 11: 31-12: 9; Hebrews 11: 8-12.)

In considering our lessons from Genesis, we should bear in mind the benefit sought in Bible study, not a record of men or of science, but a progressive revelation of God the Creator, and his ideals for man.

The record of creation opens our Bible to present a compelling reason for obedience to high purposes subsequently to be unfolded. From then onward, the spiritual books show us by specific lives how God reached men and how men sought to understand God.

The short sketches of Adam and Eve and the start of sin (disobedience to God), the harmony between God and Noah, which caused his family alone to be saved to the world. Today, we take another character, Abraham, and we are shown how obedience to God developed life to its fullest for him.

Abraham is revealed first as following Terah, his father, from Ur to Haran, and it is noteworthy that no definite cause is stated for this departure although subsequent writers interpret it religiously, perhaps rightly, maybe not so.

From Haran Abram (as he was first called) was directed by God to leave his kindred although the divine voice only promised to show him his destination later, and for such obedience great blessings were vowed. Abram obeyed the call that came into his heart, and journeyed forth into a strange country on faith. So, his name became synonymous in years with absolute confidence in God's providence.

All of Abram's record is not in writing. During a sojourn in Egypt, driven by famine as was Jacob later, he passed his wife off as his sister, very profitably to himself. The ruling Pharaoh was attracted by the beauty of Sarai, and courted her, by means of presents and gifts to her "brother."

However, the deception is discovered in time to prevent serious sin, and Abram leaves Egypt "rich in cattle, in silver, and in gold." Later in life the same episode is repeated, this time with Abimelech, a Philistine king, ending exactly as before—no harm done and Abram enriched again!

The record of this early chieftain wasn't written to picture him as perfect, yet a modern writer dilates on the refusal of Abram to take the spoil of war, and distinguishes the cases by calling the Egyptian Pharaoh noble and the Sodom ruler wicked; The reason for the last refusal to receive gifts is plainly stated by Abram himself—then powerful and rich in his own right.

The story of the battle between the kings is interesting. Some scholars question it, while others identify the names in the 14th chapter with other ruling monarchs of that early day. The most striking feature of the story is the meeting of victorious Abram and Melchizedek, King of Salem and "Priest of God Most High." This religious figure is one of the many mysteries encountered in the Bible. How came he, in Canaan, to know God and be recognized as his priest? Had God revealed himself to other peoples of whom we have no record? Centuries later we find Paul comparing the priesthood of Christ as like unto Melchizedek's.

However, in Abram's life we see the story of a man who allowed God to control his life. He broke from well-known surroundings at the divine command, and he made his home in the land where the same spirit spoke to him. There he created his altars.

We are not supplied with all the why's and wherefore's, but the extolled virtue of Abraham was his confidence in God. He was content for his life to be moulded by the higher power.

No one thing would contribute more to contentment and peace for an individual than to listen to the spiritual calls in life and follow them. Man sacrifices quiet enjoyment and satisfaction in a mad scramble for the things he wants—sacking the faith to be patient and trust in God for the future.
