

MISS ELLA LEVY REVIEWS EARLY HISTORY OF MILESBURG

(Continued from page one) At the age of sixteen he joined a company of Militia under Isaac Wayne, father of Gen. Wayne, and served his country in the French and Indian War and also the Revolutionary War. In the Revolution he was Colonel of two battalions of riflemen; fought in the battle of Long Island where he was taken prisoner and remained in prison 21 months.

In 1790 he was elected Mayor of Philadelphia, thus having the distinction of being the first Mayor of Philadelphia after the Revolution. In all, he filled twenty positions of trust in the City of Philadelphia. The records of the First Baptist Church of Philadelphia say: Samuel Miles, Catherine Wister, both of Philadelphia, were (Gov. Hamilton's license being first obtained), legally joined together in holy matrimony at Philadelphia, on the 16th day of February, 1761. By the Rev. John Gane, N. D. M.

Catherine Wister was the daughter of a prominent Quaker family. They were the parents of fifteen children: five sons, James (1767-1797), Samuel (1774-1808), William Wister (1776-1811), John (1778-1829), Joseph (1780-1841) figured in the development of Milesburg, and four are buried in our cemetery.

This land was conveyed by Col. Samuel Miles on June 30, 1804 to Hon. Robert Boggs, Joseph Green, Samuel Miles, Jr., and Joseph Miles, sons of Samuel Miles.

There is another characteristic in the life of Col. Miles which has likely contributed more to our civilization than either his public or military and that is his Christian influence.

He united with the First Baptist Church of Philadelphia in its early twenties, Sept. 4, 1762. One year later, Dec. 10, 1763, he was ordained a deacon and also filled the offices of clerk and treasurer. His home was often used for the meetings of the church and his financial support always liberal. In 1769, he advanced $500 to the treasury of the church. His children followed in his footsteps uniting with the same church, and later at his country seat, Cheltenham, by the pastors of the said church.

It is a privilege to be able to quote from his letters to his son, Joseph of Milesburg. The following letters are interesting:

"June 22, 1803. I encouraged my sons, John and Joseph to prepare for erecting a large near Milesburg and they have been at some expense already in the defraying of which I have been obliged to advance several hundred dollars."

In another letter dated Feb. 23, 1804, to his son Joseph, he says: "I have sometimes a glimmering hope of seeing Milesburg in May. I am able to come up. I know my presence will be useful to you. If your trials should come on and it is little consequence where my bones are laid I should never return to Cheltenham."

"To save postage . . . stated the account said to be inclosed below. Remember me to all.

SAMUEL MILES.

This hope was realized, for in a letter dated July 1804, is the proof, begins: Dear Joe—and after telling of his return trip and safe arrival at Cheltenham, says he has not met the friends in the city and at the killing of Mr. Hamilton, in duel by Aaron Burr is the disturbing item of interest at the present. Hamilton was killed in July 1804. This is a most interesting fact the writer because it proves beyond doubt that Col. Samuel Miles sided the town named for himself and it is probable his son Joseph, living in the home now owned by Mr. Ernest Hess.

His last service to his country was a member of the Assembly of Pennsylvania. At the meeting in Lancaster in 1805 he was taken sick; Dec. 29, 1805, at his home in Cheltenham and was buried Dec. 31, 1805 in a vault in the graveyard of the First Baptist Church of Philadelphia, 67 years old. Dr. Rogers, and that the industries of town required such outlets for transportation.

Canals 1826—By this time the iron industry had increased to such an extent that more rapid transportation was demanded to carry the output. The Milesburg Forge was capable of making 400 tons annually. Connected with it was a rolling mill for rolling boilers, sheets, nail and slit iron, also nail manufacturing, all of which do a considerable business and are owned by Gen. Miles (Joseph Miles) and Co. The markets for these products were Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and Baltimore.

January 23, 1826, a large meeting was held in Bellefonte with Gen. Benner presiding, which passed resolutions in favor of a canal to connect the eastern and western waters of the State. The act providing for the construction of the Penna. Canal became a law February 25, 1826. In March 24, 1828, the canal commissioners were authorized to locate and contract for the making of the canal from Northumberland to the Bald Eagle and on April 1, 1834 the Bald Eagle and Spring Creek Navigation Co. was authorized to be incorporated to continue navigation to Bellefonte.

Friday, Sept. 1, 1848, the first boat "George Crane" ascended to Bellefonte. These boats carried iron and agricultural products to Baltimore and Philadelphia. On their return they were loaded with merchandise which required their large warehouses as freight depots.

Much of this merchandise was transported by wagon into Nittany and Penna. Valley and also to the counties as far west as Jefferson.

There are in this assembly at least descendants of two captains who owned boats on this canal.

Capt. James Lingle owned the boat "Mariasetta" and carried iron for the Irvin and Gregg furnace.

Capt. William Levy owned the boat "Milesburg" in '48, '49, '50.

The manifest Oct. 2, 1848, on the return trip included: groceries, $7.41; coffee, $29.00; molasses, $113.25; sugar, $92.92; hardware, $6.55; Q. hardware, $4.35; D. goods, $37.20; salt, $10.00, and were assigned to John M. McKim, Thomas, Bellefonte, also to Clearfield and Curwensville and Milesburg.

Aug. 7, 1858, the beat Eleanor of Milesburg, Capt. Levy, brought 32 tons of hard coal.

It would be interesting to know the names of all the boats and their captains. This might be a project for some of our present high school pupils who are fond of the lore of the past.

By 1864 when the railroad through the valley was completed the canals were put out of business. There were 22 locks in 23 miles.

Railroads In 1853 there was a rivalry between the people of Penna. Valley and Bald Eagle in securing railroad rights. The Lock Haven and Tyrone Company were authorized by an act of Feb. 26. This company organized at Tyrone on May 10th with Maj. D. K. Jackson, president; William H. Blair, secretary and treasurer. J. M. McKim, Esq. was made surveyor. The portion between Bellefonte and Tyrone was surveyed by John M. McKim in 1854. The Commissioners met April 13 and elected D. William Underwood as president; James T. Hale, Gen. James Irvin, Harvey Mann, Dr. J. M. McCoy, W. H. Thomas, Roland Curtin, E. C. Humes, J. T. Matthias, M. T. Millikin, L. A. Mackey and John I. Thompson, managers. John McKim was elected engineer, May 7th, and on Saturday following the president with the engineer and corps staked out 100 feet of the road and after reading the charter took formal possession by himself first breaking ground. This event took place near Dr. William Underwood's home in Unionville, and my father helped to serve the dinner. Dr. Underwood to the company present. This road was completed and leased Dec. 7, 1864, to the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. for 99 years.

Some of the reasons for a railroad through the valley were the industries needed a more rapid transit for their products. Milesburg, at the time, had the prosperous iron works of Gen. Irvin, together with an iron foundry, axe factories and numerous mills. Also the railroad from Bellefonte to Snow Shoe will intersect with the Tyrone and Lock Haven at Milesburg.

Religious Life of Milesburg No part of the history of a community is more interesting and important than the belief in and practice of the principles of the Gospel of Jesus Christ the Head of the church.

In the same year (1792) of the purchase of Milesburg, the Philadelphia Baptist Association held in Philadelphia composed of 44 churches, including the First Baptist of Philadelphia, there is this record: "Elders Patten, Clinkan and Vaughan agree to travel for three months in the ensuing year, about the Juniata and West Branch of the Susquehanna to preach the Gospel to the destitute; and this Association recommends that a sufficient sum be subscribed by the churches and paid immediately into the hands of Col. Samuel Miles to bear expenses."

No records of results of their labors have come down to us. The next was Joseph Smith, a general missionary who preached along Bald Eagle Creek and at Birmingham. In 1820 came the Gilbert brothers from New York and were followed in 1821 by Calvin Phileo of Onondaga county, N. Y. Under this missionary, on July 29, 1821, the following persons: Gen. Joseph Miles, Susan Miles, Hannah Green, were solemnly, on profession of faith, buried in baptism and formed into the Baptist Conference on the Bald Eagle. They were joined by brother

Arthur Smith and sister Sarah Barrett, who had been baptized by the missionary, Joseph Smith.

A local in the Bellefonte Patriot says: "This being the first occasion in which the ordinance by immersion had been administered in this neighborhood, the concourse of people was very great—between twelve and fifteen hundred people."

From this beginning the Milesburg Baptist church was duly organized in the stone house of Mrs. Hannah Green, Aug. 15, 1822, with fourteen constituted members. This house is now owned by Mr. Thomas in this square. Gen. Joseph Miles who was living in the Mine house in Bellefonte, now occupied by the Library, was elected deacon and ordained and served the church as well as the community for many years, faithfully passing away August 27, 1841. At the fifth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Baptist Convention held in Milesburg Baptist church in October 1841, part of the resolutions passed on his death say: "We do most devoutly express our regards for his hallowed attachment to the upper world—his piety and untiring efforts for the achievement of the interests of the Redeemer's Kingdom."

The first meeting house in the town was the old Baptist church, a stone structure on Catherine street, where the public school building stands at present.

The first services in it were Oct. 24, 1829, when the General Association of Pennsylvania, for missionary purposes was held at Milesburg, and the Lord's Supper was served on the Lord's Day, Oct. 25, 1829. However, the building was not completed until May 1830, when the church began to use it regularly.

The present church was begun in 1829; in 1866 the audience room was finished and dedicated in June 1866, and J. Green Miles preached the sermon. This was fitting as the ground was given by his father's family.

Religious Life—Methodist In data received from Mrs. T. P. Rynder (nee Ella Lee, daughter of William Lee of Milesburg), there is an interesting item concerning the religious life of the town.

Her aunt, Leah Lee Beaumont (whose school was what is the Baptist parsonage now), told her the first religious services were held in a wooden mill. The Methodists held their meetings in Uncle Isaac Lee's house, a log house that stood where Mrs. Mary McKim's home is and they used to shock Ella Lee's grandfather, who lived next door to the home owned by Newman at present; by shouting and stamping their feet on the stairs where many of them sat.

She also remembers the old log school house used by the Methodists as a church. It was back of the Isaac Buffington house and the door opened next to the Buffington home.

The authentic accounts say the first class was organized in Milesburg in 1818 and they worshipped in the parsonage house which was located when they began to build their first meeting house. It was dedicated in 1845 and part of its foundation still stands in the foundation of Daniel McKim's home on Pike street.

The trustees at this time were: Charles G. Ryman, Thomas D. Taylor, and Lewis Brown. The present edifice was dedicated Nov. 12, 1897.

The first house in the town to be occupied by a minister (Rev. J. W. Haughwont assigned to this circuit) was the stone house in which the Baptist church was organized, which is an interesting fact. In 1860 it was resolved to secure a parsonage; one was built adjoining the church on the hill and occupied first by Rev. Thomas H. Switzer in 1862.

When the present building was occupied this parsonage was exchanged for a home near the church and later the present brick parsonage was built. The present edifice was dedicated Nov. 12, 1897. Rev. George E. King was pastor and Rev. Thomas Bowman, D.D. LL.D., a retired Bishop preached the dedicatory sermon.

It is probable Methodist ministers were in this section as early as 1791 as the Conference held in Baltimore May 1791, appointed Richard Parline as Lewis Browning to work in Northumberland and along the Bald Eagle. Their work was truly evangelistic. The first appointment to this circuit was Rev. Amos Smith, and the territory he served extended from Lock Haven to Tyrone. They preached every night either in people's homes or in school houses.

Religious Life—Presbyterian The early history of those of Presbyterian faith is connected with the Bellefonte church as they held their membership there. Rev. Linn, pastor at Bellefonte for over 50 years, would preach in Milesburg in the school house that stood on the grounds of the present brick school building.

By tradition it was a log building and also a stone building plastered on the outside. When artificial light was needed the worshippers took tallow candles, melted the end so it would stick to the desk. A church building was erected in Milesburg on Hazel street by the Bellefonte church in 1856.

In 1868 the following members were dismissed from the Bellefonte church and the Milesburg Presbyterian church was constituted: John B. Thomas, Sara C. Thomas, Henrietta P. Thomas, Mrs. J. B. Hahn, James Alexander, William Holmes, Sarah Levy A. M. Lipton, A. D. Hahn, Nancy A. Thomas, Anna E. Thomas, Sarah I. Blair, Mrs. C. O. Holmes, Jacob Hahn, John Parsons, Mary Parsons, Mary Keyes, and Mrs. Kate Jones.

James Alexander, of high Christian character, and W. H. Holmes were chosen elders.

In 1868 W. O. Wright became pastor and served the church for many years. The next pastor in length of service is the present pastor, Rev.

Oakwood. The present edifice and parsonage were secured after the church on Hazel street was destroyed by fire caused by lightning. Rev. Wright was still the pastor.

Milesburg Sunday Schools No report concerning the condition of the Sunday school was made by the Methodist church until Sept. 7, 1846, as follows: Officers, Mrs. teachers, 16; scholars, 84; average attendance, 60.

There is no doubt this church had a Sunday school in the old log school house as Mr. Pounell, whom many remember as a fine Christian, told of attending there as a boy and then being attracted to the Methodist Sunday school in the old stone church, by George T. Miles teaching the children to sing and march.

But earlier than this there is a recorded account of the organization work along this line.

It was in an account book belonging to William Lee and is as follows: "In consequence of notices having been set up requesting a meeting to inquire into the expediency of instituting a Sunday school in Milesburg, a respectable number of both sexes agreeably to notice on Thursday, the 30th of July, 1818."

After the society was organized the following persons were chosen officers and teachers, and commenced teaching on Sunday the 2nd of August, 1818: William Lillyett, Supt. for 12 weeks; Moses Boggs, Supt. for 13 weeks; Samuel Miles, Jacob Hoover, Mrs. Hannah Green, Mrs. Jane Hoover, appointed teachers for four weeks by the Supt., David Blair, Archibald McMullen, Moses Boggs, Mrs. Mary Miles, Elizabeth Foster, Mrs. Rachel Blair, teachers appointed for four weeks, commenced teaching Aug. 30, 1818.

The second of August falls on Sunday this year. To show our gratitude for the sure Christian foundation of the past, what could be more fitting than on the coming 124th anniversary we fill our churches to their utmost capacity in the sessions of Sunday school.

Conclusion We have had a small survey of the past. That is our inheritance. The great future which is set for the carrying out of the high principles and sure foundations for the future and may those principles, our sincere hearts' devotion to God and true brotherly love for all mankind, be the ruling motives of the citizens of Milesburg.

Tyrone Girl Killed As Cable Breaks (Continued from page one) half complete turns before it came to rest, Potts said.

According to statements made to motor police, Potts is said to have heard the crash of the ticket booth being demolished and felt the throbbing of the controls which sometimes happens when the ride is not evenly loaded.

Stopping the ride as soon as possible, Potts went about helping the injured.

The accident was attributed to the breaking of a rear cable which allowed the car, built to resemble an airplane, to swing out and strike the ticket booth.

A woman attendant in the ticket booth received minor injuries when the car hit the building in which she was located. It was reported she was taken to her home in Roaring Spring.

Dr. C. E. Shope, coroner, reported that Miss Edmondson died of a fractured skull. There will be an inquest into the accident. Dr. Shope said.

Evelyn Miller Edmondson was born September 2, 1924, in Tyrone, Pa., a daughter of Clara and Isabel (Miller) Edmondson. She is survived by her father.

Miss Edmondson was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Tyrone, and was also a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Neptune Fire Company. She was a senior in Tyrone High School, and was popular with all.

Hunter's Death Is Accidental (Continued from page one) wound and on the clothing surrounding the point of the bullet's entry. The powder marks indicated that the shot had been fired at close range, probably within an arm's length, police said.

Other factors leading to the official belief that Muscarelli was killed by a bullet accidentally fired from his own gun include the fact that the point of entry of the bullet and its course through his body made it almost impossible for the shot to have been fired from a distance. The bullet entered his right side in the region of the lower ribs, and took a course upward and to the left, passing through part of the heart.

The strangest part of the case was fixed at 8:43 p. m., because Muscarelli's watch stopped at that hour and it was at that time that the fishermen reported having heard the shot.

The investigation required about five days' time and officers who worked on the case were: Corp. S. Mollenkopf, and Pts. John Elnenuth, C. E. Hartman, Keith Dane, A. A. Verbitak and E. B. Barne, all of the Motor Police at Rockview station.

SHIPS There are many ships in which we ride Across life's stormy sea; Should you be asked which one is best, What would your answer be?

Friendship is a wonderful ship, From beginning to the end; How lonely this old world would be, If you didn't have a friend. Courtship is a lovely ship, Built very short of late; But it could easily be arranged By the captain and his mate.

There are hardships launched on the stream of life, Of them you should have no fear; Watch your compass and read your guide, They all depend on how you steer.

Scholarship is a welcome ship, To one who is seeking knowledge; It straightens up the financial end, When passing through some college.

Partnership is a dangerous ship, That is what so many people think; If it should happen to spring a leak It's most always sure to sink.

Penmanship is a noble ship, It requires a guiding hand; It uses up a sea of ink, High salaries it does command.

If all these ships you've been reading about, Were put to an honest test; True Fellowship of Christ I think, You'll find will be the best.

HOMESICK They say you'll get used to hanging if you hang there long enough; But I'm going to give something that will throw that in reverse.

Because hanging isn't nothing Compared to what I'm going to write— It's that awful homesick feeling When your home town's out of sight.

Oh, there's thousands of them got it In these days of war and strife; And the sad, sad part about it, They can't inoculate for that.

There's a cure for every sickness That the doctor knows about, But this awful sick feeling Is more stubborn than the gout.

There are not pills and "laxses" You can take and get a cure; Like you did for mumps and measles In those good old days of yore, It comes on you awful sudden, While you're thinking of the folks, Who you're to know and love you, When you were growing up.

It's not just a baby's sickness, It hits men and women, too; If you never had this sickness, Then you're one among the few.

But I'll swear it's worse than small-pox, For they know a cure for that; But this awful homesick feeling Makes a man feel like a rat.

Makes him think and toss and worry, Makes him worry, toss and think; And the more he tries forgetting, Only makes him that more sick.

Oh, it's awful when you get it, For there's nothing you can do; And you think your days are numbered— You don't care a damn how few.

Workman Injured Meyer Klein, of New York City, who is engaged in removing the rails on the spur of the S. and N. Y. R. R. from Marsh Hill to the coal mine tipple near Ralston, was struck by a steel rail which was being placed in a car by a crane, and knocked violently into the brush by its force. He suffered a badly contused and lacerated wound of the leg below the knee joint, but no bones are broken.

Letter to a Boy in Uniform

(Continued from page one) had been tipped far in his favor. So you see what can come of a chance thing done, of a favor here and a kind deed there, of being a regular fellow, of so living that men will say of you as you go hence, "He was a prince in overalls."

When you can, secure and read Edgar Guest's "The Simple Man." You will know then what I mean and what a poem can say.

As to your going into the service of your country, well Jack, I am an ex-serviceman who has many more than a thousand times, with love and reverence, saluted the flag we live under and I feel, honestly, that no sacrifice is too great for a man to make that that same flag may continue to wave. Some time stand for passing moments and look at the sheer beauty of a large "Old Glory" as it ripples in the breeze and if it doesn't speak to you of years and things that are gone and of the many years to come, and if it doesn't say "Peace to you, my son," and if there isn't a lump in your throat then you are not in tune with the sympathy that is America.

I hope that you both get in there and pitch and that each pitch will be a strike, but if the game is over and the Head Umpire says "you're out," let us take it with a smile and go on to that bigger and better game that is the reward of all true sportsmanship.

To close, Jack, let me say just Au Revoir, and as the Spanish so beautifully put it, "Go Thou With God." Thanks for everything and luck from us both.

Sincerely, Dad and Mom.

19 Babies in Hospital The story has been working overtime at Berwick Hospital. Nineteen babies are in the nursery of the hospital and a new record is set. Ten boys and nine girls are the new arrivals at present. Prior to the extensive remodeling of the hospital and the building of an addition to the institution about a year ago to provide a larger nursery, 12 was the capacity of the nursery.
