Revenue Head Charges Don't Apply In County

Secretary of Revenue Edward B. Logan has refused to approve monthly settlements for mercantile and inheritance taxes on the grounds that payroll and expenses authorized by Auditor General P. Clair Ross are "unreasonable and thoroughly unjustified." Secretary Logan's charges are poorly founded in Centre county, for the county statistics show that insofar as this county is concerned there is nothing to support them. The County Register's office pays the salaries and expenses of the inheritance tax appraiser and investigator of deaths, and certifies these expenses to the Department of Revenue, which allows credit accordingly in settling the Register's accounts. A study of the records here reveals that possibly Secretary Logan's charges are based more on politics than on facts. For the ten years from 1927 to 1937, during the Republican administration of the Auditor General's office, a total of $15,896.24, or an average of $1,589.62 annually was paid out by the Centre County Register to the inheritance tax appraiser.

For the five years, 1937 to 1942, of Auditor General Ross' administration, a total of $7,912.27 or a yearly average of $1,582.46 has been paid out. In other words, under Democratic administration the appraiser received an average of $12.84 more a year or about $1.50 a month more than he did in Republican times, which doesn't seem like evidence of great graft or extravagance.

The picture in the investigator's office is not much more impressive from Secretary Logan's standpoint. In the ten years of GOP rule the Centre county investigator received a total of $14,410.11, or a yearly average of $1,441.01. In the five years under Ross' administration he received a total of $7,210.00, or a yearly average of $1,422.00. The average increase in the cost of the office in Democratic as compared with Republican administrations is $31.98 a year or less than $3 a month.

STATE COLLEGE MUSICIANS BECOME ARMY CAPTAINS

Dr. Richard W. Grant, former dean of the school of music at Penn State College, and Dr. George S. Howard, also a musician well known at State College, have been appointed captains in the U. S. Army Specialists Corps. The men will become music advisors in the Army. Dr. Grant has been assigned to the Second Service Command Area, including the States of New York and New Jersey. Dr. Howard's assignment is not known.

If you work for an organization, it is well to remember that, in return for a specified payment, you are supposed to give a certain amount of work.

To give visual and fitting expression to your love and regard, the medium on which the form must be chosen with care. Comforting assurance of a duty well performed will be yours if you choose a genuine Rock of Ages Memorial to stand as your record for the years to come.

URGES CARE AROUND THE ELECTRIC FENCE

With the death of two children resulting from electric fences in an adjoining state, extension agricultural engineers at the Pennsylvania State College warn against neglect of the electric fence.

Their report of a 15-month-old baby who was electrocuted after he had played around a watering trough and came in contact with the fence. In the other case, a 14-year-old boy was killed when a transformer was used with the house current, and a defect in the manufacture or hook-up allowed 115 volts or more to come in steady contact with the boy long enough to cause the fatal injury.

The Penn State engineers say that children should not bring in livestock from an electrically fenced pasture, and they insist that lightning protection be provided for the controller to keep it from being damaged. If the controller sticks, it could only be in the "off" position.

RECENT WEDDINGS

The Air Base Chapel at Key Field, Meridian, Miss., was the scene of a pretty wedding last Wednesday evening when Miss Ethel Heverly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Heverly, of Howard, became the bride of Pvt. Capt. Bobby Jones Will Aid Observers in Aircraft Warning

Bobby Jones, the great golfer, former emperor of the golfing world, has put aside his clubs to assume his duties as a Captain with the First Fighter Command. He reported for duty at Mitchell Field, Long Island, having just finished playing in his last tournament in Chicago. Jones was immediately put on a tour of duty at the New York Information Center where he will take a course. Later he will recruit and instruct volunteers in large groups to extend the work. He recalled at Mitchell Field that he had made one of his biggest contributions to the effort in World War I not very far from the Long Island air base. He was too young to join up in 1917, but he was already a golfing sensation. He engaged in exhibitions for the Red Cross benefit, and it is estimated that the entire series produced $150,000 for the fund.

Uncle Sam Needs Nurses

Now at war, this group includes the nurses who have married and retired from active nursing. We urge these nurses to realize their responsibility by offering their services and releasing eligible nurses for duty with the Armed Forces. All graduate, registered nurses who are single, under 40 years of age, and physically fit should enroll today in the American Red Cross First Reserve, and join either the Army or Navy Nurse Corps. Nursing today is the most challenging of professions. Army and Navy Nurses are located all over the world wherever Uncle Sam has his troops. They play a vital role in our struggle for freedom. All citizens of the United States realize the most important thing in the world is winning this war—we must make sacrifices. Can you conscientiously say you are doing your part in helping to win this total war? Remember—Time Is Short.

AMOS PINCHOT WITH WRIST SLASHED

Amos R. E. Pinchot, lawyer, outspoken critic of the New Deal and brother of former Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, was reported in serious condition at Westport, Conn., from cuts which police said were self-inflicted. Police said Pinchot locked himself in a bathroom at the home of William P. Eno, a relative by marriage, Tuesday night and slashed several veins. He was taken to Norwalk Hospital and treated by Dr. Eugene Beck.

To Return German Gun

Pennsylvania State College trustees have voted to return a captured 15-ton German howitzer on the school campus to its makers, via the nation's war scrap drive. They figure that it would do more good in this way than decorating the front campus as it has for the last 17 years. Penn State President Ralph D. Hetsel explained.

Health and Beauty

MALARIA EPIDEMIC DUE

We are told by government authorities that according to medical records an epidemic of malaria is due. For some unaccountable reason it occurs every six or seven years, and the last one was in 1936.

All over the United States there are army camps, efforts are being made to oil or drain standing water where the disease-carrying anopheles mosquito might breed. This work is being done within one mile areas adjacent to the military reservations to protect the camps naturally living near these camps naturally derive some protection from these efforts also, but in more remote areas where malaria is often very serious, all that the inhabitants will receive in the form of malaria prevention is the regular work provided by their own county health boards.

When Ferdinand de Lesseps, who built the Suez Canal, undertook the construction of the one at Panama, he failed on account of the prevalence of yellow and malarial fever. When the United States Government took over the project, General Gorgas, from Alabama, was put in charge of the health work. He demanded and received from the government over a ton of quinine a year for the workers in his fight against malaria. "Without it," he said, "the canal could not have been built."

Now, owing to so many men from every state in the Union being brought into close proximity in army camps, it naturally follows that those who have malaria in a latent form cause the disease to spread.

We have no better remedy for malaria than quinine. Twenty grains a day from five to seven days for an adult; twelve grains for children five to eight years old; fifteen grains for those from nine to twelve. After twelve, the same amount is given that an adult receives. I repeat these statements on account of receiving so many inquiries, often from the same people. Send for your doctor whenever possible in case of illness, but it is well to know these things for the nearest physician may be miles away and overworked. He cannot always come when sent for, and delay is dangerous.

HOUSEHOLD SCRAPBOOK

Leak-Proof Bottles Picnic parties will appreciate this suggestion. Any bottle can be made leak-proof if, after the cork is tightly fitted into it, it is dipped into molten paraffin. Then tie a piece of heavy paper over the top to make it even more secure.

White Silks It is rather difficult to keep white silks from turning yellow when washed, but rolling the white silk garments in a Turkish towel as soon as washed will usually prevent their turning yellow. They may be ironed in half an hour, or can be left for twenty-four hours without harm.

Palms and Ferns Two tablespoonsful of olive oil at the root of your palm or fern once a month will make a decided improvement in the plant.

Burning Fat If the fat persists in catching fire when broiling steaks or chops in the oven, broil the bottom of the broiling pan with a little water. This will catch the fat from the meat and prevent its burning.

Water Bugs If you are troubled with water bugs gathering around the sink, try pouring a cup of kerosene once a week down the drain, and do not run the water until about a half-hour afterwards. The bugs will disappear very quickly.

Drying Clothes Sunshine is much more desirable in drying clothes than a high wind, since sunshine both sweetens them and bleaches them, while a high wind may tear the clothes and will take the stiffness out of starched goods.

Furniture Polish The finish on furniture may be renewed and small blemishes concealed by applying equal parts boiled linseed oil, turpentine, and white vinegar with a bit of wool material, and polishing with a silk cloth.

Greasing Cake Tins Never grease the cake tin with butter; use lard. The salt in the butter often causes the cake either to burn or stick.

Discourage Flies Kerosene applied to the window and door screens will discourage both flies and mosquitos.

Peanut Butter Try spreading peanut butter between crackers and placing them in the oven until crisp, and a golden brown. You will have a delicious little tidbit to serve with almost any kind of salad.

Negro Youth Dies In Electric Chair

He was sentenced to death by three judges in criminal court after he pleaded guilty to a charge of murder. He was arrested last March after a nurse was accosted on a lonely Pittsburgh street.

Police said Wilson admitted attacks on several women, including Rose Haber, who was beaten to death with a brick after she alighted from a trolley in Pittsburgh on July 22, 1941.

The Pittsburgh Negro, whose body was unclaimed, and who has no known living relatives, was buried at noon Monday in the Rockview cemetery.

Milesburg Schools to Open

At a recent meeting of the Milesburg School Board, the opening date of the borough schools was set for Tuesday, September 8.

CENTRE COUNTY RETAILERS ARE UNDERGOING PRICE CHECK-UP

Officers of the Pennsylvania Office of Price Administration moved into Centre county this week for a sweeping inspection of the manner in which local retailers are complying with the various requirements of the General Maximum Price Regulations.

Participating in a nationwide "August for Compliance" drive ordered by Price Administrator Leon Henderson in all areas in which adequate educational work had been conducted, the OPA representatives visited retail establishments of all kinds throughout the area and, in the presence of the retailer, filled out comprehensive reports on the degree of compliance found in his establishment.

Merchants were called upon to demonstrate that they had posted their ceiling prices on all cost-of-living commodities as defined in the regulation, and that they have posted them clearly, correctly, and at the point of sale.

They were required to produce their base period price records for examination, state whether they had filed with the State OPA office as required their lists of cost-of-living commodity prices, and show their familiarity with various pricing methods for new merchandise.

The compliance reports covering all of this information were then filed with the legal department of OPA in Philadelphia. Early reports have indicated a high degree of cooperation by Pennsylvania merchants.

All merchants visited by the OPA inspectors were invited to attend a forum and clinic to be held in each section as it is covered by the survey, at places and times to be announced locally. A slide-film, a dramatized presentation of merchant-customer relationships under price regulation, and exhibits of proper price posting methods were used to further an understanding of requirements.

The program was in line with Price Administrator Henderson's statement that "while we are going to continue our educational efforts, OPA enforcement officers are going to move in on those stores that are taking the law lightly and cheating the public." "OPA views this step," Henderson said, "as a necessary protection for honest storekeepers, who are legion, and the buying public."

RUBBER EXPERIMENTATION PROGRESSING AT PENN STATE

Possibility of utilizing a Russian dandelion, kok-saghyz, as a rubber substitute is being experimented upon at the Pennsylvania State College Agricultural Experiment Station where the plant was seeded this year as part of a program of the United States government.

The college agricultural expert have indicated that the first growth of the Russian dandelion has not produced as well as the common dandelion. The crop requires considerable handwork and is expensive to grow. If the plants prove winter hardy, they may be carried over and not harvested until the second year.

Some insecticide manufacturer can get rich by offering a powder to exterminate amateur magicians and card trick artists.
