'FIRE-EATER' BURNED

While "eating" flames, Sidney Brown, billed as a carnival "fire eater" at Marion. Ohio, accidently spilled some of his mealgasoline-down the front of his shirt. The gasoline ignited and to the amusement of the spectators who thought it was only a part of his act, the fire-eater leaped from the platform and rolled on the ground. He was taken to a hospital badly burned about the face, head, hands and

The National Pickers' Association is faced with the problem of getting the necessary number of pickers to insure an adequate supply of pickles for the coming season. The question they pose, which has not as yet, been answered, is "how can a packer get a peck of pickles packed if there aren't enough pickers to pick the pickles for the packers to pack?"

MATCH REUNION

While awaiting a bus, Andrew J. Poulton of Farwell, Texas, asked an occupant of the bench for a light. The two men struck up a conversation and it was discovered that the other occupant was Thomas Jefferson Poulton, of Maydee, Tenn., the twin brother of Andrew. They hadn't seen each other for thirty-two

Last week while the Grange Pair was in progress, members of he Wolfe family discovered that rom certain spots about the house they could hear announcements and music from the loudspeaker at the Grange Fair, more than three miles Tracing the noise, they found that it seemed to come from the barn roof. "It was as though we had a radio receiving set on the barn roof," members of the family said, adding "Sometimes the words would fade, and at other times they would come in clear and strong. The roof is covered with galvanized iron sheeting, but the same roof has been on the building for seven years and the Grange Fair loud speaker never was heard before this year. Members of the family are at a loss to explain the thing but they report that programs of music, announce ments, and other broadcasts from the Grange Fair speaking system were received frequently during the eats, who will certainly not be bro- gift they could confer because they week.
