Join Flying Recruits

Aviation Cadet Dallas Eugene Kaufman, Jr. of State College, R. D. 1, and Aviation Cadet Richard Eugene Barr, of Tyrone, are two Pennsylvanians who recently reported to the Greenwood Army Air Field, Greenwood, Mississippi, for basic flying training. The Greenwood Field is considered one of the finest basic flying training schools in the Army Air Force.

Cadet Kaufman attended State College and was accepted as an aviation cadet at Scott Field, Illinois, in May, 1942. Prior to his going to Greenwood, Cadet Kaufman was stationed at Kessler Field, Miss., Scott Field, Ill., Douglas Field, Ga., and Maxwell Field, Ala.

Cadet Barr attended Penn State College, had one year of R. O. T. C. and was accepted as an aviation cadet in Harrisburg. He holds a civilian pilot's license and received initial training at the Pennsylvania Air Depot.

The Warden

Shoots the Works

The local air raid warden of a small mountain village invented his own scheme for warning the community—but it didn't work very well.

Receiving the blackout order by telephone, he stepped to his porch and fired his shotgun. The shot severed a power circuit, which fell on the telephone wires and burned them through. The blackout was perfect, but for some hours the village had no lights, no power, no telephone service, no all-clear signal, plenty of confusion.

Since the whole civilian defense system depends so much upon swift telephone communication, telephone lines must be kept clear during and after air raid warnings. Please remember—for your own protection—when the sirens sound, don't use the telephone! The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

Graduate Mechanic

Trained as an expert airplane mechanic, and qualified to service and maintain the United Nations' huge B-24 Liberator bombers, Pvt. Harvey D. McCool, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCool, Spring Mills, was graduated last week from Kessler Field's Army Air Forces Technical Training Command School, Miss.

Now ready for the important job of keeping Allied planes in good flying condition, Private McCool and other members of the graduating class soon will be assigned to tactical units for active duty "on the line." In school they were trained in B-24 maintenance, structures, hydraulic systems, fuel systems, engines, electrical systems, instruments, propellers and inspection.

The last phase of the 17-week course is an eight-day training period under simulated combat conditions. The students must know how to service and repair their planes under mock attack, camouflage the ship, and even provide their own shelter against attack, as no buildings stand in the training area.

The B-24s, which these men will maintain, are the largest combat bombers used today by the Army Air Forces.

Pre-Flight Training

Naval Aviation Cadet Russell Smith, son of Leon Yorks, Milesburg, has reported to the U. S. Navy Pre-Flight School, Athens, Ga., for further training in Naval Aviation. Yorks was transferred from the Naval Flight Preparatory School at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

He will undergo three months of intensive physical toughening and pre-flight training in academic and military subjects, before being transferred to Navy flight centers for progressive air training preparatory to joining a combat unit.

Cadet Yorks completed CAA Primary training at Charleston, W. Va.

Youth Wounded

By Companion

Remember, too, that it is far better to "waste" a thousand hours in preventive measures than to undergo the risk of experiencing even ten minutes of the destruction, loss of life, and the horror of an air raid, he concluded.

So the next time you feel that civilian defense activities here are a "waste of time and effort," remember that the reason why they seem that way is because they are so effective in discouraging the enemy, the spokesman advised.

The youths took turns in carrying Catalano down the mountain. Yesterday police were continuing their investigation.
