learned the trade under the late Mr. Twitmore. Mr. Badger for 12 years served as a member of Bellefonte Borough Council and during that time was head of the Street Committee.

Commenting on his half-century of business here, Mr. Badger declared that this winter has been one of the "worst" he's ever experienced. Not that there is a lack of material—but because he can't get material to work with. Furnaces, sheet metal and tin, the tools of his trade, are almost impossible to secure. As a result he has a long backlog of orders to fill, if and when he can get material. "People come in and want work done, and some of them become angry when I tell them I haven't the material to do it with," Mr. Badger said. "So I tell them if they get the material somewhere else, I'll do the work."
