

ARMY CHIEFS LAUD WORK OF RED CROSS

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower Gen. George C. Marshall Gen. Douglas MacArthur

By General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, United States Army: "The Army depends heavily on the Red Cross as a vital link between its individual soldiers and their families. As the only civilian organization which operates on military reservations the contribution made by Red Cross workers, and the highly organized assistance available to the Army through them, are of inestimable value to us in maintaining morale."

"The fighting efficiency of a soldier is greatly enhanced when he knows that during his absence the care of his loved ones is the subject of interested concern other than his own, and the service of the Red Cross is available to every man in the Army. Its representatives are scattered throughout the world wherever American soldiers are stationed, contributing to the comfort and care of convalescent soldiers in hospitals, maintaining clubs where wholesome entertainment and recreation are available to men off duty—and probably most important of all—caring for their families at home when they are in need of assistance."

"Thousands of Red Cross workers are efficiently lending a helping hand to the members of the armed forces with their individual problems, and the opportunity to share in their contribution to the well-being of our soldiers is offered to every man, woman, and child in the country. Gratitude and appreciation cannot be adequately measured in dollars and cents, but dollars and cents are certainly necessary for the continuance of these services which are so vital a part of the war effort, and I strongly urge every citizen to assume a part in the responsibilities of this great organization by contributing to the Red Cross War Fund."

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Commanding General European Theatre of Operations: "The American Red Cross is the one agency of its kind to serve our Armed Forces overseas. The services rendered in the European Theater have been invaluable. At the scores of American Red Cross Service Clubs established throughout Great Britain our forces, while on leave, are able to obtain meals, lodgings, information and recreation; all with an American home atmosphere."

"The Red Cross serves our forces well on duty, and is of even greater value when men are hospitalized. I cannot speak too highly of the benefits which have resulted from the unselfish efforts of those engaged in the work here. On behalf of our forces in the European Theater I desire to express appreciation to the American people for their generous support which made possible the operations of this great organization."

By General Douglas MacArthur, Commanding General Pacific Theater of Operations: "The American Red Cross is an expression of humanitarianism. When tragedy interrupts, as sooner or later it must, succor for the injured, the helpless, the destitute, speeds by land, sea and air. No call however great or small passes unheeded. The Red Cross never fails the soldier. It brings to him a hint of home, a touch of cheer, whether he be in teeming jungle or Arctic waste. It bears a gift to him from no one and yet from all. It warms him with the comfort that someone thinks of him and someone prays for him. It truly follows in the train of the 'Prince of Peace'."

Fire is Tax on the Nation's Food Farms to the value of two-thirds of a million dollars a day are destroyed by fire in this country, reports the National Fire Protection Association, announcing a Spring Clean Up Campaign, to be observed nationally during the months of March through May. A thorough spring cleaning of all farms and farm structures, says the NFPA, will eliminate the hazards that cause most farm fires. Proper safeguards against fire should also be built into farm buildings. Recommended by the NFPA are lightning rods, fire-retarding roofing, and properly ventilated storage barns for hay and grain. This loss of valuable food and food-producing facilities in effect constitutes a tax on every bushel of wheat, every pound of butter, every pound of meat produced in this country.

Any politician who advances the idea that you fight a war and reduce taxes will get a lot of popular support. We advise everybody to read the Bible, Shakespeare and our editorials.

Good Thing "Join the Army and see a telephone," suggests the New York Sun in a story about an Oklahoma farm boy. The lad joined the Army Air Force as a mechanic. In the recruiting office, he used a telephone for the first time in his life. "I just never lived around a telephone," he explained, "but it seems like a good thing if you can understand it!" Certainly the Army seems to think so. To supply its demands for telephones, radio-telephones, wires and other communications equipment, the factories of the Bell System are running 24 hours a day. Practically all the telephone equipment now being made is going to war. So please keep your calls to the minimum and be brief on the calls you must make. Help keep the lines clear for America's important war messages! The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

Poets' Corner PRIVATE EMBEL'S INDUCTION (Sung to the tune, "21 Years.") My dad said, stand up, boy, and dry out those wet pants. You're sentenced to the Army, to serve out one year. The sentence was sharp, folks, it cut like a knife. That year in the army takes the rest of my life.

I was sent to Camp Wheeler, where I got down on my knees. Before my Commander, and said: 'Sir, tell me, please. If there is a transfer or soon a furlough, I'd like to go north, air, and north I shall go.' He said: 'I'll tell you, soldier, as long as you're in the Army, you'll be in the Army. But all of my orders come from Washington. You cannot disobey them. It wouldn't be well. For I'd wind up like Hitler, in the bare depths of hell.'

Now I got my transfer, but it's not with this song, Fort Benning. Where they said I belonged. —By A. D. E. Private Emel is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Emel, Bellefonte.

OUT OF TRIBULATION. Doot thoo feel the stings and a-rows. By outrageous fortune cast? Do they cloud they say with sorrows. And embitter all thy past? Art thoo growing weary-hearted. With the strife that wilt not part. Doot thoo think thy soul has parted. For all time with joy and peace? Think not thus, through toils environ. Others have the same withstood. Thy by constant blows that iron. Grow more powerful for good. Every tree is fuller fruited. For the wound of pruning shears. Every tree is firmer rooted. Every branch a corded year. If the fire that burns thee sorely. Be indeed a fiery cross. It refines thee slowly, surely. Cleansing all thy roil of dross. And the perfect man is builded. Faster in the evil day. Every care a corded stay. Every care a stronger stay. So, that though the world grows colder. And thy bosom friends be less. Thy heart be ever warm. Shall increase in comeliness. So that out of tribulation. Thou shalt have more perfect light. And a fuller compensation. For the darkness of the night. —Contributed.

OUR BOYS ARE IN MALARIAL HELL HOLES

When Captain Eddie Rickenbacker came back from his trip to the Pacific front where he was sent to make a study of air fighting, he had much to tell us. Who is more worthy to speak, and should be listened to with more profound respect, than this knight of the air? He, during World War One, brought down twenty-six German planes, a feat that has not been equaled in the present war. He now speaks lightly of his twenty-one days in a little rubber boat in the open Pacific, with only four oranges to be divided among eight men.

He pleads with the American people for our troops who are undergoing such heart-breaking and health-breaking hardships. He tells us that he has experienced the stink and corruption of New Guinea and Guadalcanal. "Our boys," says he, "are in the hell-holes of the far Pacific, and they are begging this government for everything with which to fight."

Among the articles asked for are more medical supplies. They suffer from filth, vermin, diarrhea, malaria and the Japanese. The two last are the worst, and the hardest to overcome. If they escape the treachery and the bullets of the Japanese, they are apt to fall victims to malaria, and while they do not have sufficient means with which to combat it, the most important being quinine. If they escape death, but have an attack of malaria, and are not properly treated, it may incapacitate them for life. They may harbor the parasites long after their return home, and thus become a menace to their own loved ones. There is a very wide distribution of malaria throughout large portions of the world, where our troops are now located, and where they will be sent before the war is over.

Many of our soldiers are in India, where there is the worst malaria epidemic which that country has experienced for years. Malaria is the most killing disease in the world, and the one that, more than any other, was responsible for disease casualties in World War One; and it is going to be a tremendous factor in the present conflict.

During World War One, malarialogists were concerned about malaria among troops fighting in tropical regions, but they did not understand the far-reaching and crippling effects of the disease, until some of the campaigns had been actually halted. In East Africa, the strength of allied troops was about 50,000. Admissions into hospitals for malaria in 1916 and 1917 were estimated at 120,000. In the malarial region of Taranto in Southern Italy, and in Northern Greece, troops also were seriously affected.

In 1918 more than 2,000,000 service days were lost directly from the men being ill with malaria. This was a surprise to the Allies who suffered so much. It Duce profited from their experience, and ordered that the Italian army, during the Ethiopian campaign, be kept malaria-free. Castellani, who had complete charge of the medical department, practically succeeded in doing this, by seeing that the soldiers got a daily prophylactic dose of nine grains of quinine.

Other experiments indicate that in the tropics the daily dose of quinine must be kept up, in order to keep one free from malaria. Our soldiers in the Solomons and in North Africa are given daily prophylactic doses of ten grains of quinine.

YOUR HEALTH

Dangerous drugs poorly marked or mislabeled and too easily accessible during a black out bring about needless loss of life. The home medicine cabinet should be a benefit in the home. Not a harbinger of danger.

Yet too often the medicine cabinet is within easy reach of young children. Too often children find they can easily reach their goal by climbing on the bathtub or washbasin.

If the cabinet cannot be kept out of reach of children, it should have a lock and the key should be kept out of reach of little tots.

All bottles should be labeled so that there can be no mistaking the contents or the purpose for which they are intended.

Any drug of a dangerous character should be kept on the highest shelf and not mixed with the more common ordinary medicinal agents.

If the cabinet is provided in the bathroom, drugs and first aid agents may be kept elsewhere. They should not, however, be kept in the pantry along with articles of food. If, in spite of all precautions, poisons are taken, the following suggestions may help until the doctor arrives.

Call the doctor at once when poisoning is suspected. Find out if possible what the victim has taken, so that the doctor may have some indication as to what to bring with him.

At least give the doctor a brief and calm description of how the patient acts. How about cleaning out that medicine cabinet now?

DO YOU KNOW

In Florida is located the only plant where rattlesnake meat is canned. Canned rattlesnake tastes like chicken with a slight fishy flavor. Smoked rattlesnake meat tastes like dried beef and is packed in cellophane and sold as "snacks."

Gelatin is a by-product of the meat-packing industry. Chemically there is no difference between gelatin and glue, except that gelatin is made from better material and with more care.

FORESTS MAY YIELD MILLION FEET OF LUMBER

A million board feet of timber may be cut from the growing stock of the experimental forests at the Pennsylvania State College, according to V. A. Beebe, head for the forestry department.

Such a cut from the three experimental forests would represent about 5 times the usual annual timber harvest. These timbered tracts are conducted on a continuous yield basis which allows for an occasional concentrated cut when necessary.

The experimental forest areas comprise about 6000 acres all located within its miles of the College. Nearly 11 million board feet is the conservative estimate of the hardwood timber growing on them, limited to trees above 7 inches in diameter. In addition, there are approximately 6 million board feet of softwoods.

The nation is already in the midst of what might be called a political campaign, and there is no way to avoid it.

Sarah Ann's Cooking Class

Lack of the proper vitamins in the daily food can be responsible for ill health. The vitamins obtained in a well planned and balanced diet stored in milk and dairy products, vegetables, fruits and eggs provide the ideal way to health protection. A good pattern to follow in planning the day's meal is: milk, one quart for children, one pint for adults; two vegetables, two fruits; one egg, plus enough whole grain meal or bread, butter, potatoes, cheese and meat to satisfy energy requirements.

Bran Bread

2 cups bran 1 cup flour 1-2 cup brown sugar 1 cup cornmeal 1 teaspoon salt 3-4 cup raisins 1 teaspoon soda 1-2 cups milk 1 tablespoon shortening melted 3 tablespoons baking powder 1-2 cup molasses Combine bran flour, sugar, cornmeal, salt and raisins. Add soda to the flour mixture. Beat thoroughly and add melted shortening and baking powder. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven 250 degrees for 1 hour or until firm to touch.

Pennsylvania Dutch Spinach

3 cups chopped raw spinach. 4 slices bacon 3 tablespoons flour 1-2 cups potato water 2 tablespoons sugar 1 tablespoon vinegar Salt and pepper 2 hard-boiled eggs sliced Place the cleaned and drained chopped spinach in a bowl. Dice the bacon, heat in a skillet and stir until crisp. Remove the bacon and add to the spinach. To the remaining fat add the flour and smooth to a paste. Add the hot potato water and cook to a thin smooth sauce, stirring constantly. Add the sugar, vinegar, salt and pepper. Pour over the spinach, stir well and garnish with the egg slices. Serve with boiled potatoes.

Beets With Mint

1-2 cup butter 3 cloves 2 tablespoons vinegar 1 teaspoon sugar 1-2 cups small cooked beets 1-2 cups mint leaves Melt butter, add cloves, vinegar and sugar. Add whole beets, simmer 10 minutes. Sprinkle with mint leaves cut in bits. Serve hot.

Baked Tomatoes

Peel and cut the tomatoes in halves, arrange in a shallow pan. Sprinkle with cracker crumbs and dot with butter. Bake in a hot oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

Short Ribs With Vegetables

Brown 3 pounds of short ribs of beef in a little fat in a heavy kettle. Cover with hot water and add salt and pepper and simmer for about 1-2 hours. Add the vegetables, (seven of each: carrots, potatoes, onions, turnips). If there is not enough liquid to cover all the vegetables, put the onions and turnips in the liquid and place the carrots and potatoes on the meat. Simmer until the vegetables are tender. Remove meat and vegetables and arrange on a platter. Make a gravy by thickening the liquid with browned flour (2 tablespoons flour to each cup of liquid).

Cheese Salad

Mix chopped toasted nuts with cottage cheese. For each serving place a long roll of this mixture on lettuce leaves and cover with alternate sections of orange and grapefruit between the segments. Place narrow strips of green pepper. Serve with 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, 4 of salad oil, season with cayenne, tabasco, mustard, freshly ground white pepper, Worcestershire sauce and paprika.
