pint-sized drill sergeant azen enviously at the 6-foot -inch frame of a Recruit, Alfred S. Linhart, of Pittsburgh, when he reported at Camp Pickett to begin basic training. "How high does the rhubarb get on your farm, Yardbird?" the drill sergeant asked. "Can't tell till it stops growing," Linhart replied. "Take my kid brother, Russell. he's a Tech sergeant at Camp Polk, and he's a half-inch higher than me. Then there's my older brother, Bill. He's an instructor at the army air school in Chicago. He's only a quarter inch taller than me. But we all kinda look to Paul to top the crop. He's only 16, and he's six feet, three inches already. Soon as he grows up, he's gonna join the navy." Linhart dislayed a family hoto to establish his yarn as fact.
