Sea-Bee And Pals

The photo above, taken in a South Pacific setting, shows Donald Smith, seaman first class, U. S. Navy, of Belleville, and a couple of South Sea hopefuls.

Seaman Smith, son of Mrs. Louise Abt Smith, of West High street, Belleville, better watch that stuff. Those South Sea Islanders, we're told, have a way about them, and the first thing he knows he'll be getting off a boat in San Francisco with a small brown fist hanging out of his hands.

COL. G. G. MILLS TO SPEAK AT FLAG DAY FETE

Parade to Precede Annual Ceremony By Local Elks Lodge
CHORUS AND GROUP SINGING SCHEDULED

John G. Love to Preside; Will Read Impressive "History of Flag"

Lt. Col. Guy G. Mills, assistant professor of military science and tactics at Penn State College will be the principal speaker at Flag Day ceremonies to be conducted here Monday evening by the Belleville Elks Lodge. It was announced yesterday.

Col. Mills, who was on the program at Philipsburg recently at the dedication of the Philipsburg honor roll, is a speaker of outstanding ability, and his close association with military matters gives him a soldier's viewpoint of present-day conditions.

The Flag Day program will begin at 6:30 p. m. when a parade will move through the central part of the town, coming to a halt at the Court house.

TO OBSERVE FLAG DAY AT COLLEGE
Alpha Fire Company To Hold Annual 3-Day Carnival

Detailed plans for the State College Elks Flag Week observance which began Tuesday and will continue until next Monday have been released by G. R. Hershberger, general chairman, with Col. E. D. Ardery cooperating on arrangements.

The high school stadium has been reserved for retreat ceremonies at 5 p. m. daily from Tuesday of this week through Friday, with the Air Forces students and A. S. T. P. personnel taking charge on alternating nights.

A softball game between the Air Forces and A. S. T. P. units has been scheduled in the stadium at 2 p. m. Saturday, after which both groups will march to the parade ground on the College golf course for a mill-anniversary.

MISSING MAN IS FOUND IN STREAM
Drifting Poultryman Wandered Into Water After Car Wrecks

The strange disappearance of George Zetts, 52, a poultryman of Drifting, missing since Wednesday morning of last week, was solved on Sunday when searchers found his drowned body in the waters of Moshannon Creek, four miles downstream from a bridge where his badly damaged automobile had been found.

Zetts had not been seen since Wednesday morning before 8 o'clock when he left home for Karthaus. His car, a Chevrolet coupe, was found a short time later overturned near the bridge at the foot of the mountain. It was completely demolished.

Three small spots of blood were found on the inside of the car which gave rise to the belief that the victim might have met with foul play. This theory, however, was discounted by the coroner, after the finding of the body. In the opinion of that official Zetts had received a skull fracture before entering the water, probably from the accident, and that he wandered along the bridge and fell in.

The death theory advanced by the coroner and state police was that Zetts, who had suffered a heart ailment for several years, had been going down the Moshannon mountain last Wednesday morning and may have suffered a heart attack, losing control of the car.

The victim, officials pointed out, suffered a fractured skull and a fractured arm and other cuts and bruises. One window of the car was down and blood stains indicated that the driver had left by that exit.

Mr. Zetts, a well known poultry dealer and farmer, was well known throughout Philipsburg, Snow Shoe and Moshannon areas. Four children are included among the survivors.
