Management early was convinced that the men of Titan were primarily interested in improving themselves on the job. A comprehensive training program, begun in 1935, has been augmented by short, concentrated, study courses, designed to help employes on a particular job.

A 4-Point Training Program

Four major classifications of training are under way: apprentice training, supervisory training for foremen and sub-foremen, training for key-workers and training for technical, chemical and metallurgical as-

Supervisory training for sub-foremen and foremen was the first type of training undertaken. Pennsylvania State College, about nine miles from Bellefonte, sends resident in-the apprentice training school. Any young man, preferably a local resident between the ages of 18 and 21 years, with a high school or trade school education, may apply. He must pass a physical examination and his selection is based on five tests; intelligence, personality inventory, mechanical aptitude, vocational interest, and social intelli- following personal property Tests are conducted and
