Shoots Self in Face While Cleaning Gun

Few persons are shot in the face with a .38-caliber revolver and live to talk about it, but such is not the case of 18-year-old James Perry, of Lock Haven.

Young Perry not only escaped serious injury but was able himself to call the city police headquarters early Sunday afternoon to report that he had accidentally shot himself with the revolver while cleaning it in his bedroom. He had been shooting on Saturday and thought all the bullets discharged. As he was cleaning the weapon, he had it pointed at his face and when it was accidentally discharged the bullet entered the fleshy part of one cheek, emerging right in front of the ear.
