his efficiency rating was very satisfactory. "Although your son was not engaged in actual combat with the enemy, he was engaged in a mission that was vital to the effort against our enemies and was gallantly carrying out this mission when reported missing in action."
"We, as you, are still clinging to the hope that your son is still alive and well. Consequently we are keeping all of his personal effects until we receive definite information concerning his status."
Regardless of all the criticism you hear the United States and Great Britain, under able leadership, are fighting an unusually intelligent war.
