exception of the take-off and landing. Planes are equipped with dual controls, and there are no solo flights in the present course, an instructor being with the student at all times. In addition to the flight instruction at the airport the students undergo rigid academic training at Penn State College. Upon completing the course here, the students either go to advanced flight training schools or are transferred into other branches of service better suited to their abilities.

Club Contributes To Organization

Army Nursing Corps now on duty at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., during a recent visit home reported that "funny books"—books of comics—are in great demand among the wounded soldiers at the hospital and that the books pass from hand to hand until they fall to pieces.

Club Contributes To Organization

After the business session of the Club members wishing to join a nutrition class are asked to get in touch with Mrs. Pearl Newman. After the business session of the Club president Mrs. L. G. Peters turned the meeting over to the program chairman Mrs. John Roberts, who introduced Dr. M. E. John, of the Penn State extension service as speaker. Dr. John spoke interestingly and entertainingly on "The Essentials for a Happy Life."

WAR

Life at home is easy. We may live for tomorrow. While life out there is painful, With heartaches, pain and sorrow.

WAR

We may plan our future. Cheerfully building castles in the air. As the boys are praying, That their lives may be spared.

WAR

For to see a Muncy Mountain Fairy You must watch with steady gaze, For it is hard to distinguish a Muncy Mountain Fairy.

WAR

By an old witch pine. But it was just an illusion Of these old copies of mine.

WAR

For it proved to be just a hound And some old guy. And I could not say if they had crawled.

WAR

From under that pine tree Or dropped from out the sky.

WAR

But they seemed to be searching. We slept here till the light of this early morn;

WAR

We can't buy a bond in the land where you live; While the boys across the big pond Are trying to bring the Axis down a peg.

WAR

You want protection In the land where you live; They only asked for ammunition And their lives so freely give.

WAR

"Back the Attack" is the war call So that another lad in death may rest.

WAR

Never thinking how many boys For that bond that wasn't bought today.

WAR

For that bond that wasn't bought today. Lettie Nilson, Bellefonte, R. D. 2.

JULIAN

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Myers over the weekend were Mrs. James Hunter and sons, James, Jr. and Dick, of Williamsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Myers of Altoona, Mr. and Mrs. William Books of Altoona, and Ronnie Crain of Port Matilda. It sounds like old times to hear of so many visitors at the Myers farm as that was the favorite spot for all the young citizens of this community when the Myers family was young.

The church meal served to the voters and election board on election day was quite a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Artz and family of Pine Grove Mills, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Artz and family of Altoona, also Mrs. Margaret Artz of Port Matilda, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander.

Mr. E. E. Barr, our chief of police, reports that he has just rounded out his fall work in preparation for a long, restful winter. We must congratulate him on seeing more winters than that of the other citizens of this community.

The community regrets the news of the death of Clark Steble, brother of Mrs. Margaret Williams of this place. Clark was held in high esteem by many friends in this community.

"Dick" Henney has taken up residence in the house vacated by Mrs. Nery Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. "Dick" Fye and son Joseph of Tadpole Drive, Penna. Furnace, were Sunday visitors among friends in Julian. Mrs. Fye is the former Mary Alice Adie, a daughter of Merrill H. Adie, one of our most respected Methodist ministers of the past.

Miss Ella Alexander was a Sunday visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Alexander.

On November 22, 1943, a meeting was held at Unionville to arrange for a grand circular hunt. Regions were laid out and a captain was appointed for each sector. One of the sectors was marked by the Turner farm in Hunt township and the captain of this sector was Thomas Harbridge, one of the first emigrants to the Hunt district. The purpose of the hunt was to rid the country of wolves and foxes. (Just think of all the foxes Bill Richards and Fred Andrews have dug out of holes). The rules of the hunt were that no firearms were allowed, no sprituous liquors, no boys under sixteen years of age, no dogs, and every hunter to be armed with a good club. The hunt, however, proved a complete failure. A great number of deer and other game were seen by the hunters but by some oversight or mismanagement one of the lines of men was not closed and when the several assigned lines converged to the ground agreed upon they found emptiness.
