Centre County Hospital Notes

HARRY W. CRAIN
Harry W. CRAIN, father of Mrs. Harold Reisinger of State College, died Sunday morning in Mercy Hospital, Altoona. He was a resident of Altoona and a locomotive engineer in the Altoona yard of the P. R. R.

CHARLES T. DAVIS
Charles T. Davis, 77, a resident of Jersey Shore section for the past seven years and formerly of Salona, died at his home Tuesday, Nov. 30, after a short illness. He was a retired farmer. Survivors include two sons: Lawton A., of State College; and John, at home; two brothers, Harry and Allen, of Benton, and a sister, Emma, of Berwick. Funeral services were held at the home on Friday at 2 p. m., with the Rev. Parker Gardnes officiating. Interment was made in Cedar Hill.

GEORGE H. HERMAN
George H. Herman, 81, a resident of Logan area for the past 38 years, died at 1 p. m. Thursday, Dec. 2, at his home after a lingering illness. He was a farmer. Very active in the Evangelical Church, Mr. Herman was a member of the official board and taught a Sunday School class for 45 years. He is survived by his wife, Kate, and a brother Edward, of Williamsport. Funeral services were held Saturday at 2:30 p. m. with a short prayer service at the Morris Funeral Home and further rites at the Evangelical Church with the Rev. T. R. Husler officiating. Interment was made in the Fairview cemetery.

JOHN ELMER SHANK
John Elmer Shank, 51, of 612 West Beaver avenue, State College, an employe of the State College Clover Farm Store for the past 15 years, died at the Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall at 7 a. m. Thursday, December 2, 1943, following an operation. He entered the hospital four weeks ago. Born April 27, 1892 at Yarnell, he was a son of Alfred and Mary Brown Shank. In 1922 he was married to the former Rebecca Miles, who survives with one daughter, Emily, at home, in addition to his father and the following brothers and sisters: Harry F. Shank, Altoona; Mrs. Roger Poorman, State College; Mrs. Willis Thompson, Walter Shank, and Miss Verna Shank, all of Orviston. Mr. Shank, who saw service overseas with the A.E.F. during World War I, was a member of the Methodist church. Modern Woodmen of America, and the State College Veterans of Foreign Wars post. Funeral services were held at the Koch Funeral Home, State College, Sunday afternoon, with Rev. W. E. Watkins officiating. Interment was made in the Centre County Memorial Park at Shiloh.

Surviving are three children: Mrs. Walter Beck, at whose home she died; Walter Glover, Akron, O., and Mrs. Bertha Zink, Unity Pa.; two half-brothers: Jeremiah Hutchinson Philadelphia and Archibald Hutchinson, Chicago; three half-sisters: Mrs. Rebecca McIntosh, Philadelphia; the former Margaret Hutchinson, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Eliza Shirt, Philadelphia; nine grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren. She was of the Presbyterian faith.

Common Cold Losing to Science
A new poison mist blazes the cold virus in the air, one of the sulfas combats it in the nose and throat and now Patulin, recently discovered, may be the long-sought cure for our most costly and prevalent ill. HISTORY OF SCOTIA

know if it was for the Irwins or the Thompsons.
It was difficult at times to mine the ore because of great quantities of clay which had to be removed in order to get to the ore. Another obstacle was sand rock which at times made much extra work. The depth of the ore deposits varied, ranging up to about 90 feet. The northeastern end of the mines had quite a bed of solid ore rock to a depth of about 30 feet. It was quite a task getting this ore rock out with hand drilling and blasting. No other drills would work in this soft rock. Ore was mined in the eastern end of the old Red Bank and hauled over a long wooden trestle to the Scotia ore washer.
The prospecting did not include only the area around Scotia, but took in the Barrens from the old Eckley bank almost to the Tow Hill mines. Different kinds of ore were found through the Barrens, such as needle, pipe, brown hematite, and many others. These ore shafts were dug to depths from 20 feet to around 100 feet. The depth of the deposit did not always warrant the expense of the find.

There is a little story connected with this work. A certain young man was going home one night from seeing his girl friend. The night was very dark and he wandered off the path into the brush and stepped into one of these shafts. Of course a great fear struck him for he knew the great depth of some of the holes and not knowing just which was which he grabbed onto a root and hung there calling for help. When there was no response, we are told, he started to pray and hung on until his strength gave out and let go, expecting to drop a great distance.

Instead he dropped only several feet as it was a shallow shaft.
It may be well to mention how they got their water for washing the ore. Some of the early operators took the ore to a creek or small stream of water, while in other operations washing was omitted and the ore run over a shaker screen. This was, of course, all done before the invention of the ore washer. At Scotia during the spring and part of the summer months water was pumped from the ten-acre pond where a large double action steam pump was installed which pumped the water for about a quarter of a mile into large wooden tanks where it was drawn by gravity into the ore washers. Here water was also supplied to the Pennsylvania Railroad engines which got water at this point twice a day. There also were drilled wells to supply the water needs. The first two were drilled at the mines, one being known as the Diamond Well, mentioned before, and the other was drilled near where the picnic ground now is located. These two wells did not give very good service and were abandoned as soon as others were drilled. Later a set of five wells were drilled near the ore washer. Two of these did not give very good service as they filled with sand and had to be pumped out quite often. Water from these wells was pumped by another large double action pump into the two wooden tanks. A small pump was installed at the No. 4 well to furnish water to the residents at River Hill.

In addition, there was a battery of six large steam boilers at the works which supplied steam for the engines and pumps, and for heat around the plant in cold weather. There were days when it would take a half day or more to thaw out the washers after a hard night's freeze.

Large quantities of steam were needed for this purpose.
