

HISTORY OF SCOTIA

(Continued from page one) of Bedford county, and he mentioned in his survey report the Great Barrens located south of Buffalo Run. This name was also used in another survey, one of July 26, 1774. The French had explored these some time before that date but what attracted their attention at that time was the geological formation of the sand and clay, and it seems they had no knowledge of the underlying ore that was there.

The Indians did have knowledge of it and showed some of the early settlers some of the big deposits. We suppose that is why Col. John Patton and Col. Samuel Miles were the first ironmasters to take out ore at River Hill.

The first Indians known to settle in the Barrens were the Shawnee tribe, in about 1698. There probably were other earlier tribes than this but there are no records to that effect. Some believe that the Muncie Indians had settled there before the Shawnees. It is known that part of the Barrens were purchased from the Shawnee tribe in 1768. After the purchase from the Indians this area was incorporated with Cumberland county, where it remained until 1772, when it became a part of the newly created Northumberland county. Then in 1789 it was transferred to Mifflin county when that county claimed the central section of Pennsylvania.

When Robert Glover, William Wilson, William Ellis, James Newport, John O'Brian and Thomas West had taken up grants of land, they had in mind then not to operate it but to use it as an investment, which they did, for it wasn't long before a couple of ironmasters were looking for land which had iron ore in it. These men were Col. John Patton and Col. Samuel Miles. In 1825 Mr. Patton bought out his partner, Samuel Miles. Mr. Patton also owned some other land in Bald Eagle Valley but the location is not known to the writer.

Mr. Patton later on sold his interest to General Irwin, who operated it for some time and that is where it received the name of Irwin Cut. But there seems to have been a debt against him, so in order to clear himself of this debt he sold to Moses Thompson for the sum of $80,000. This bank had been operated more or less from around 1826 to 1832, but not steadily. We have a record of one that was mined at River Hill (later on Scotia), for Centre Furnace from 1852 to 1858, when the furnace finally closed down, never to operate again.

The records we have give the amount of ore produced and the amount of pig metal manufactured at the furnace. The tonnage of ore each year was as follows: 1852, 1,170 tons; 1853, 827 tons; 1854, 1,303 tons; and in 1855, 621 tons; Irwin Cut, 1854, 140 tons; 1855, 418 tons; Red Bank, 1853, 213 tons; 1854, 77 tons. We have the tonnage of iron for the three remaining years: 1856, 1858, but we don't have the ore records for these years. These records show that the largest amount of ore taken from any one bank came from River Hill (Irwin Cut). Historically the county has played an important part in the past in the production of charcoal iron.

J. Thomas Mitchell
Writes History of Bar

(Continued from page one) N. Lytle was admitted. Never in good health, Lytle spent most of his life in College township and died in 1880. John Blair Linn became a member of our Bar in 1871. He came here from Union county with some reputation as a criminal lawyer, and lived in the home now occupied by his daughter and son. He was scarcely settled in a practice in Bellefonte, when he was appointed deputy secretary of the Commonwealth in 1873 and, until 1882, spent a large part of his time in Harrisburg. There, he was in charge of the publication of the state archives and of the reprint of its early laws. The Governor could hardly have found a man better fitted for these tasks. In the interim, he published his "Annals of Buffalo Valley," and, upon his return to Bellefonte, completed his "History of Centre and Clinton Counties" for which he had been gathering the data for years. This last publication was most important to the citizens of this county. It contains a vast quantity of data which can scarcely be found elsewhere, and without which it would have been almost impossible to compile a review. It only details that it has no individual index. Linn had access, during his lifetime, to letters, journals and notes of men like Potter, Harris, Huston and Burnside, which have, in the meanwhile, entirely disappeared.

In 1873 two more members were admitted. Daniel S. Keller and Calvin M. Bower. One was from the extreme western end of Penn's Valley and the other from the extreme eastern end, and they were as different as possible in natural endowment. Keller was red-headed, with a quick temper yet always under control when necessary, but Bower was of the type of the phlegmatic "Pennsylvania Dutchman." Keller had been in service in the army, and was for some years thereafter connected with the Adjutant-General's office of the Commonwealth, and became a member of the Governor's staff, while Bower was too young to have been in the war. Both became specially interested in Orphan's Court practice, though Keller excelled in that line.

At No. 60 of August Sessions 1873, Hardman P. Richards was indicted for murder. The district attorney, John F. Potter, was assisted by Austin O. Furst and David F. Fortney, and the defense was in the hands of James A. Beaver and John H. Orvis. A second-degree verdict was the result. In the next year, an indictment for murder was brought against Henry T. Norris. This time Cyrus T. Alexander and Daniel S. Keller assisted district attorney Potter, while Beaver represented the defendant, who was acquitted.

1874-1883—Terms of Judge Charles A. Mayer, and Judge John Holden Orvis
In 1874, with the large increase in the court business of the district, John H. Orvis was appointed as an additional law-judge, and the next few years saw many more new members admitted to the practice of law. In the first year these were Jackson Levi Spangler, Seth H. Yocum, Reuben M. Magee and John M. Keichline.

Spangler was born at Aaronsburg, and his ancestors had been early settlers in Penn's Valley. He was elected District-Attorney in the year following his admittance. A fiery speaker, he was at once successful in his practice. He was one of Beaver's aides at the time of the Altoona strike, and was the active partner of Beaver, Orvis and Hastings in their purchases of the Cambria County coal lands. He acted as Commissary-General in the Johnstown flood restoration and was always held in grateful remembrance by many of the surviving sufferers from this devastation. He was president of the Bellefonte Trust Co. at the time of his death in 1937.

Yocum was first admitted in Clinton county and came to Bellefonte in 1874 to look after the interests of his deceased brother, George. He remained in this county, mingling real estate dealings, with his law practice, and was elected to Congress in 1879. He died in 1894. Magee was first a school teacher, and was elected as superintendent of our county schools in 1866. He was a partner of Henry Y. Stitzer both in the practice of law and in the store business, but he was also a representative of the Equitable Life Assurance Co., and one of our first real-life-insurance agents. Keichline became tax collector of Bellefonte Borough for several years, also served as overseer of the poor, and for many years before his death was justice of the peace. Many political combinations were made against him for this office, but he always was the winner. His principal legal business was in the collection line. He died in 1938.

In 1879 another of our future Governors was added to the Bar list. Daniel Hartman Hastings had come from that portion of our county taken over by Clinton just before he was born. He started his career as a school teacher, and was the youngest principal the Bellefonte schools have ever chosen. Hastings was a real orator and, of course, successful in his practice. He was associated with a hard worker at the law in the person of Wilbur F. Reeder. Hastings was always interested in military affairs, became colonel of the 5th regiment, and received the appointment of Adjutant-General of the Commonwealth. With Beaver, Orvis and Spangler he helped in the development of the Cambria county coal fields and gave much personal attention to the operations. While at this work he learned of the Johnstown Flood, arrived there on horseback, and took personal charge of the restoration of the city. From every standpoint that was a great piece of work of his life. He nominated John Sherman for the Presidency at the Republican convention in Cincinnati in a speech which Murat Halstead called a gem of American oratory. He had the uncanny ability to remember everyone of the thousands whom he had ever met, and knew the first name of practically every voter in the county. He died at the early age of 64, in 1903. William F. Reber was admitted in the same year with Hastings. He was also a school teacher and practiced in Bellefonte but a short time. He moved to the West and died there within the next ten years.

In our national centennial year three new lawyers were admitted. These were Alfred A. Dale, his brother, Clement, and J. Wesley Gephart. The ancestor of the Dale brothers was the first settler at Oak Hill in the earliest days of our history. The Dales had an office partnership together during their entire practice. Alfred A. was a good speaker and had a pleasing personality, but remained a bachelor until the time of his death in 1924. Clement, on the other hand, was methodical, hard working and saving. He was burgess of Bellefonte, acted as borough solicitor and solicitor for the borough school board, and was county solicitor for four years. He took a special interest in land law and surveying, and acquired a large clientele. He died in the same year as his brother.

Gephart was also a student in the practice. He first formed a partnership with General Beaver, to which was added John M. Dale. In 1890 he became interested in the reorganization of the Valentine Iron Co., and soon left his firm to devote his entire attention to the iron business. To him must be given the credit for the revival of this business in Centre county in the closing years of the century. He was also the actual creator of the Central Railroad Co. of Pennsylvania, which only an adverse court decision kept out of the hands of the New York Central for the purpose of paralleling the Bald Eagle Valley railroad trade. Its creation added largely to the value of land in Nittany Valley. He died in 1905.

In 1877 Wilbur F. Reeder was admitted. Almost immediately he formed a partnership with Hastings, and with Reeder's hard work and Hastings' ability of speech the firm secured an outstanding position in our practice, which it held until Reeder's death in 1904. Reeder was also a member of Co. B, N. G. P., served for several years as county chairman of the Republican party, and, after the election of Hastings as Governor, formed a partnership with Henry C. Quigley.

In the next year William C. Hehline was admitted. He was elected District-Attorney two years after his admittance and re-elected for a second term. He also represented this district as Senator in Harrisburg. He was particularly successful in criminal cases, and also made a special study of the unseated lands of the county, of which, for some years, he was a large purchaser. He was very popular with all sorts and conditions of men. He died in 1913, having been a member of the Bellefonte school board for thirty-three years.

Harry A. McKee was admitted in 1879, but he soon gave up the practice of law for the insurance business, which held his attention until the time of his death in 1890. In the next year Sylvester D. Ray was admitted. He was, in the beginning, a land surveyor, and continued that business, serving for a term as County Surveyor, but continuing the general practice of law. Toward the end of his life he became interested in the shirt manufacturing business and established a factory for that purpose in the building adjoining the Pennsylvania Railroad station on High street. He died in 1925.

In 1881 we find the admittance of Ellis L. Orvis, the only son of Judge John H. Orvis. The first two years after his admittance he divided his time between the editing of the "Centre Democrat" and the practice of surveying. In 1883 he became the junior member of the firm of Orvis, Bower & Orvis. He spent nine years in steady practice with this firm, and eleven more years in a partnership with Bower. In 1904, a year after Bower's death, he was elected president-judge of the district. He was a brilliant lawyer and an expert practitioner. At the end of his judicial term, he was admitted outstanding in the legal profession of our commonwealth. Chief Justice Taft has been quoted as saying that he was the only lawyer known to him who had ever forced the Supreme Court of the United States to reverse one of its decisions.

In 1883, an Act of Assembly, created a separate judicial district of the counties of Centre and Huntingdon, and Orvis automatically became its president-judge. In that year John B. Kline was admitted to our Bar. He was particularly interested in land law and surveying, opened an office in Bellefonte, and died in 1898.

JULIAN
The many friends and relatives of Mrs. Sophie Wilson were saddened by the news of her death last week. Mrs. Wilson was a resident of this place for many years. She leaves behind many friends who held her in the highest esteem. We wish to extend sympathies to her many relatives.
Mrs. Clarence Flack has been very ill for the past few days. She has been suffering from pneumonia. We are glad to hear that she is greatly improved at this writing.
The neighbors are glad to see William Dando back home again after spending some time confined in Harrisburg due to an attack of pneumonia.
Harold Alexander has been on the sick list but has managed to continue with his work.
Miss Bonetta Rowan is confined to her home due to illness. We hope her speedy recovery.
Master William Eckert is spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander. His mother, the former Marion Probst, is in the Altoona Hospital undergoing an operation and treatment. Her many friends in this community wish her a speedy recovery.
Promotion Announced.
The War Department has announced promotion in the Quartermaster's Corps of Walter Frederick Mitchell, of State College, from second lieutenant to first lieutenant.

Mrs. Fred Reese's mother, Mrs. Breon, died at Millheim last Saturday, and was brought to the Fred Reese home by Undertaker Wetzel, and was buried Tuesday afternoon at Farmers Mills. A short service was held at the Reese home by Rev. R. H. Courtney.

PENN STATE TO TRAIN DAIRY HERD TESTERS

First short course of the new year for training dairy herd improvement association testers at the Pennsylvania State College will be January 26 to February 9, instead of January 12-26, as was planned originally.
In announcing the new dates, C. R. Gearhart, state supervisor of cow testers, says that 160 persons attended the six short courses given at the College last year. Seventy-one accepted positions. Seventy-two of the students in last year's courses came from 35 of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania and 33 came from other states.
Gearhart says that present vacancies in the ranks of testers will be filled by those who complete the forthcoming course.

Road Spots

To remove rust stains from clothing, soak them in boiling rhubarb juice. It is claimed that the most stubborn spots will yield to this treatment without injuring the material.

Furniture Marks

It is often possible to remove the white marks on furniture, that are caused by heat or water, by holding a hot iron near the spot, but not near enough to burn or scorch.

Mr. F. S. Bish has closed up his home until spring and with his family moved to a furnished house in Phillipsburg, as it will be closer to his work.

Blair Lykens, who is employed in Lykens & Sons store, has been called for examination to enter the armed forces.

Mrs. Grace Orwick, who has had pneumonia, is able to be up and getting along as well as can be expected.

Mrs. George Hoover is some better. He has been in the bed the past two weeks with the flu.

H. C. Woodring, one of our oldest residents, has been reported somewhat better at this time. He had been very seriously ill.

The Presbyterian Missionary Society will hold their regular meeting this month, Friday, Jan. 14, at 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Ben Nickodemus instead of Mrs. George Hoover's, due to Mrs. Hoover being ill.

The Boy Scouts are asking every one to save all the paper they can, as they will make a drive and collect it as soon as the roads are fit to get around. Anyone having any paper and can deliver it to the Eagle Hall will help a lot in this drive. Due to such bad weather, folks living out of town are asked to bring any paper they might have in if they are driving to town, as it is hard to get gas and trucks to go out after it.

Mrs. John Thomas, who was sick at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Wisler, is better and able to be taken home.

One of the best ways for sick people to get well is to become convinced that they can get well.
