

PINE GROVE MILLS

Despite the inclement weather last Tuesday a large crowd assembled for the Oscar Gilliland sale. Bidding was fast and high. Fresh cows and calves ranged from $200 to $382 per head; bull calf at $350. The sale totaled almost $12,000. After many years of successful farming, the Gillilands will remain on their farm for a deserved vacation. The well known implement dealer, Chester W. Behrens, will till their farm. The Ladies Aid sold $145 worth of dinners during the sale.

April 4th is the date of the annual committee meeting in Baileyville hall to elect three trustees for 2 years. Come and tell your friends.

In a recent basketball game at school LeRoy Harpster had the misfortune to get his right arm broken. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. David Harpster and assists William and Mary Gardner with their farm work.

The Thomas Walker family moved from the William Witmer farm on Buffalo Run, to the J. C. Shoemaker farm where Tom will be Joe's right-hand man on his large branch farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. C. Martz and Mrs. Claire Irvin spent several days this week in Durham, N. C., where they attended the funeral of Mrs. E. C. Martz, Jr., who died in a sanitarium Saturday morning after two years' illness. The young lady had many friends here by her frequent visits to our town.

Farmer Fred Wultz and wife motored to Clearfield county, Sunday, to visit with the former's aged mother who is quite ill at her home near Mahaffey.

Jesse Dean, Jr., who is in training with our armed forces, enjoyed a furlough recently with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Dean on East Main street.

One of our good friends Roy Gates of Lewistown, enjoyed a short visit Sunday with his Spruce Creek Valley friends. Roy always feels close home when the C. D. rolls in on Friday. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter.

The Guy Miller family of Altoona, were dinner guests Sunday at the Willis Schilling home on East Main street.

George Irvin of California, who is spending some time back home in the Keystone state, was a visitor in Centre county last week, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Alice Wright of Latrobe. They note many changes in the years that have rolled since their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel I. Irvin kept the last hotel in Baileyville.

Miller farm to the Reish farm; Albert Cori from the G. C. Snyder farm to the Miller farm which he recently purchased; Richard Lucas from Jacksonville to the Snyder farm; F. M. Dunkle to the Drebbel farm from which he purchased; Mahlon Campbell from Drebbel farm to the George R. Meek farm at Meeks church; Claire Bickle from the Meek farm to his own farm near Warriors Mark; Harry G. Sunday is retiring from the College farms and will farm his own farm near town. Earl Bickle vacates the Sunday farm and will occupy the Paul Campbell farm on White Hall road.

Mrs. Hannah Tressler from Baileyville to State College; I. G. Harpster to the Tressler house which he bought; Paul and Lee Harpster take possession of the I. G. Harpster farm on Tadpole; L. Hawley Krebs from State College to the Roy Strouse house; Dick Irvin from the Musser homestead on the Branch to Harrisburg; Ed Conrad from State College to the Musser house; Harry Cox from Dodd apartment to Leont; Harold Henry and bride from State College to the Dodd apartment; Roy Ripka from the 'Bus' Harpster farm house to the Lloyd Ripka farm; Donald Guyer from the J. W. Balgathe dairy farm to R. J. Wington's stock farm; R. H. Yingling from the D. S. Neidigh farm to the J. K. Alexander farm at Oak Grove; Glenn Strouse from State College to the Neidigh farm; Samuel Rudy from the Campbell farm to the J. Harry McCracken farm; the McCrackens to their town home on E. Main street; Charles Harpster from McCracken House to the Methodist parsonage.

Fred Markle from the Prof. Grau farm to the Mary Stuart farm in Harris Twp.; J. C. Taylor from Port Matilda to the Grau house; Marcellus Sankey from his Canoe Creek farm to his house on W. Main street; J. Myles Storch from the Snyder-Storch farm to Bradford county, his successor being James Houtz from the O'Brian farm; Harry Struble from State College to again till the soil on the O'Brian farm; Elmer Presler from Baileyville to the William Everhart Branch house; Norman Walters has his first farming lesson on the Judge Walker farm; Grover C. Beck vacated the Walker farm and moved to Halfmoon Valley; Thomas Walker from Buffalo Run, to the J. C. Shoemaker farm on the Branch; John Keller to the Edna Ward house on Water street, and Melvin Ellenberger from the Ward house to the Mrs. Bastian house at the dam, vacated by Kellers.

FARM PRICE INCREASE SIMILAR IN TWO WARS

Price rises to Pennsylvania farmers in the present war are amazingly similar to those of World War I. Dr. G. W. Hedlund, head of the department of agricultural economics at the Pennsylvania State College, points out in the current issue of Pennsylvania Farm Economics.

Although price determining forces and price controls are quite different for the two wars, the pattern of average farm prices thus far in Pennsylvania has been much the same. In spite of substantial price rises, the price increase is not enough to cover cost of production in some instances.

The level of farm prices in 1939 was similar to that of 1941. In both wars average farm prices in Pennsylvania did not rise during the first year and a half of warfare in Europe. However, average prices did rise during the year preceding our declaration of war.

Prices declined somewhat after April 1917, but they rose most of the time throughout our participation in the war, and even increased further for a year and a half after the armistice was signed. It is quite likely, Dr. Hedlund believes, that average prices will continue to rise as long as the present war continues and probably for some time thereafter.

CARROTS RECOMMENDED FOR THEIR FOOD VALUE

Carrots may not make your hair curly, but they do provide that essential vitamin A, some vitamin B, and 16 other raw some vitamin C, according to Miss Lydia Tarrant, extension nutrition specialist of the Pennsylvania State College.

With carrots plentiful on the market, serve them often and in a variety of ways, suggest Miss Tarrant. Raw carrot sticks are a favorite relish for the lunch box or dinner or nibble on between meals. Eaten raw they have all of their food values—none is lost in cooking.

Grated carrots in combination with cabbage, or raisins, or peanuts, or pineapple make delicious and attractive salads, either mixed lightly with salad dressing or combined with gelatin.

For a tempting lunch or supper soup, grind or chop carrots, onions, and cabbage or turnips, cook in hot meat drippings five minutes, stirring constantly. Then add ground or chopped potatoes and salt to taste. Cover with boiling water and cook about 20 minutes, until vegetables are tender.

Dilute with canned tomatoes or milk, bring to a boil, and serve the soup piping hot. This soup also is good for the school lunch if it can be carried in a thermos bottle or if it can be heated at school, says the specialist.

When you bring carrots home from the store, wash them and put in the refrigerator at once so they will retain their food value. Incidentally, there is no difference between the food value of topped and bunched carrots.

Scores of chemicals may be produced from brines found under thousands of acres of U. S. land.
