

Echoes From the Past

Fifty Years Ago

Under the head of announcements in another column of this issue, the name of William C. Heine, Esq., of Bellefonte, appears. He asks the Democrats of Centre county this year to give him their support for Congress.

The manufacturing plant at Axeman, formerly used as an axe factory, is being fitted up with new machinery for making garden rakes. The industry will be controlled by J. P. Mann and W. R. Jenkins. Mr. Jenkins' recent patent garden rake will be made by them.

The County Commissioners have had the yard in front of the Court House put in fine trim. The grass plots have been rolled and trimmed and look fresh and green. McCully Brothers gave the fountain a fresh coat of paint that makes them look handsomer than ever. Now if the front of the Court House were touched up things would be in a presentable shape.

On Friday night the large barn of Mr. B. L. Pifer, near Lamar, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. All the grain and hay in it were destroyed, but Mr. Pifer succeeded in saving all his stock. Some meat in the barn, belonging to Andrew McClintock and Lyman Loveland, also was burned. The building was insured in the Grange fire insurance company.

Marriage licenses were issued to the following couples: Charles C. Garris, Milesburg, and Edith A. Mitchell, Jeannette; Elmer Carl Ferguson Twp., and Maggie Halderman, State College; E. G. Matts, Patton Twp., and Mary Ginsery, Huston Twp.; James R. Hooton, Philipsburg, and Ethel Merrill, Munson; Wesley Emehizer and Susan E. Turney, both of Howard.

Prof. George P. Bible, principal of the Stroudsburg Normal, is visiting friends in this section. The school was opened last September and at present has over four hundred pupils enrolled. The faculty consists of fifteen instructors. Mr. Bible is a young man of much force and ability and has advanced in recent years quite rapidly. Some years ago he was managing editor of this paper.

On Saturday Robert Frazier, president and Col. Benson, Francis Milne, Henry Wheelan and George H. Wolbert, directors, with Mr. F. H. Thomas, superintendent of the Bellefonte Central Railroad, made a trip to State College where a meeting was held in the interest of the extension of the road to Pine Grove Mills. A distance of about seven miles. Some time ago a meeting was held at Pine Grove Mills for the same purpose when the same proposition was made. The committee named to investigate the proposal has run into some difficulty. It is claimed that the property owners ask exorbitant prices for their land. Some of them are actually worth, and that subscriptions are rather slow in coming in. The people living in that section should unite and give the necessary encouragement.

Twenty Years Ago

Michael Purl, of Runville, was admitted to the Bellefonte Hospital to undergo observation and treatment.

The Bellefonte Baking Company operated for a year or more by W. H. Sloner, was sold to Earl O. Armstrong, proprietor of a meat market on High street, and Harry Smith, of Pleasant Gap. The new owners took charge of the business immediately.

Abner Rider, of Coleville, suffered painful injuries of the right foot when the member became wedged between a dinky and a stone car at the American Lime & Stone Co. plant. Physicians believed the injury would leave no permanent ill effects.

The lives of a thousand or more young chicks were saved Sunday afternoon when effective work by members of the Undine and Logan Fire Companies checked a blaze in the David Washburn chicken house. The blaze was caused by a defective stove in a brooder house.

Many farmers of lower Penna Valley were obliged to buy hay to feed their stock until the new crop came in. It was an unusual sight in that section to see baled hay being hauled away from the warehouse at Coburn, since the usual procedure was for the hay to be moving the other way to be sold.

Harry S. Gates, of Port Matilda, had given up huckstering in that area to accept a position with Swift & Co. at Philipsburg as a truck driver. The McMullin truck, driven by S. J. McMullin, of Millheim, and an Overland sedan owned and driven by Rev. J. S. Hollenbach, of Aaronsburg, collided on Main street, Millheim. Quick action by both drivers prevented a serious accident and as a result the damage was small.

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson For April 30, 1944.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Being therefore justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ"—Romans 5: 1.

Lesson Text: Acts 15: 23-29; Galatians 2: 1, 2, 9, 10.

Our recent lessons have centered in the early Christian activity which sprang up in the City of Antioch. Two weeks ago we saw how the first organized missionary party was sent out and the work done in Cyprus and Asia Minor. Shortly after the reports of Paul and Barnabas, from their tour a question of ceremony arose to disturb the church at Antioch.

We have seen earlier how the gospel was deliberately carried to the Gentiles in Antioch and then by missionaries to Gentiles in other regions. When the news of the accession of many Gentiles into the church reached Jerusalem the conservative group there had misgivings. These Jews, who had followed for centuries, could not bring themselves to accept Gentiles into Christianity unless they, too, came into the church through the ancient Jewish avenue of circumcision, and other ritualistic requirements.

From Jerusalem then to Antioch, went a group of these critical Jews to advise the new Christians that their entrance into the faith had been irregular and their standing was imperfect. Quite naturally, Paul and Barnabas, exponents of liberality and freedom within the faith, combatted this viewpoint and challenged its wisdom. The discussion was involved and led to confusion and misgiving on many sides.

Therefore, the church at Antioch decided to send a delegation to Jerusalem, where the recognized leaders of the faith resided, and secure an authoritative utterance on the question.

To Jerusalem Paul, Barnabas, Titus and others proceeded. In his epistle to the Galatians, it is generally accepted now, Paul wrote about this conference. The three leaders from Antioch held preliminary conferences with Peter, the foremost apostle, and with James, the earthly brother of Jesus, who seems to have been accepted as the head of the Jerusalem church. So momentous was the question involved that a general meeting of apostles and elders was called. At this meeting, fortunately, the exponents of the liberal viewpoint prevailed over the narrow and restricted opinion. Peter recounted his well-known experience with the Gentile, Cornelius at Caesarea, and reminded the conference that his action there had been specifically approved subsequently. Paul, Barnabas, and probably others, related the outstanding events of their missionary enterprises, dwelling particularly upon the fact that, as at Caesarea, the Holy Spirit had confirmed the conversion of Gentiles, inescapably to the conclusion that, as had been said before, "to the Gentiles also hath God granted repentance unto life."

The decision of the conference was adopted upon the suggestion of James, who suggested that only a few necessary observances be requested from the Gentile Christians. These were particularly necessary to make social intercourse with Gentile Christians possible and friendly. The verdict was forwarded to the church at Antioch in a written communication carried by Judas and Silas. The latter remained in Antioch and subsequently went with Paul on another missionary tour. The decision of the council made no ritualistic observance necessary for salvation. It was a charter of liberty for the Christian conscious, although in subsequent centuries organized Christianity forgot the principles declared. In subsequent ages, with one predominant church, and the communion of saints was a chain-gang at lock-step with the long whip cracking down in the line to prevent any man's deviating.

At length, under the leadership of outstanding exponents of freedom, such as Luther, Calvin, Knox, Wesley, and others, the principle of freedom in Christianity from superimposed requirements and dictated thinking was achieved.

STRAWBERRY PLANTS NEED CARE IN SPRING

Did you place straw mulch on your strawberry patch last fall? asks County Agent R. C. Blaney. If so, much of its value depends on proper management this spring.

Use of mulch retards early spring growth, delaying blooming and reducing the probability of loss from spring frosts. If a delay in blooming is desired, the mulch should be left in place, until periodic inspection reveals that growth is taking place beneath it. This new growth will be white or yellow in appearance, and is a sure sign that removal of the mulch cannot be further delayed with safety.

A common error in raking mulch to a place between the rows is removal of all material from the plants. Some straw should be left on the plants to protect the berries from dirt. It also helps smother weeds and retain moisture, the County Agent points out. New leaves and flower stalks will grow through considerable straw if loosened at this time and scattered over the plants.

Specialists at the Pennsylvania State College recommend the practice of piling the straw between the rows. In this manner, any threats from frosts when the plants are in bloom can be avoided by merely re-covering the plants. Frequently there is not enough of this material in place beneath the plants to be added to provide adequate covering to protect the flowers for several days until the cold wave passes.

Because cockerels grow faster and are more greedy, they usually crowd pullets away from feeders, stunting future layers. With Leghorns, cockerels can be recognized with high degree of accuracy at about four weeks of age. Barred Plymouth Rocks also can be separated in an early age, with males usually lighter in color than female.

Birds of most other breeds usually are several weeks older before sex can be definitely identified. Larger body size and faster combs development usually are used to identify the cockerels.

The County Agent said that during cold weather, when the birds still require heat, the birds may remain grouped for a longer period if only one stove is available.

Studebaker Champion a money-saver says Civil Air Patrol pilot

"MY 1940 Studebaker Champion has traveled more than 110,000 tough miles," reports Civil Air Patrol pilot Lieutenant J. E. McGaiggan of Squadron 3 who is employed by Universal Studios of St. Paul, Minnesota.

"I average 25 miles to the gallon and my original tires stood up well over 60,000 miles. Of all the cars I've owned, this Champion is easily the most satisfactory and economical."

From coast to coast, it's the same story these war days—tires last longer, gas goes further, repairs are required less frequently in a Studebaker, thanks to advanced engineering principles and quality materials and craftsmanship.

How a Pulpwood Shortage Handicaps the Farmer...

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES WOULD ROT IN THE FIELDS

MILLIONS OF EGGS WOULD NEVER REACH THE MARKET

FEED STOCK AND FERTILIZER WOULD SELL IN BULK ONLY

...WITHOUT PULPWOOD TO MAKE CONTAINERS

Pulpwood helps the farmer both in the marketing and the planting of his field crops. Feed, fertilizer, seeds and other farm essentials come to the farmer in containers made of pulpwood. Fruits, vegetables, dairy products and other farm produce are packed in pulpwood wraps, liners, and paperboard boxes before they reach the consumer. And most important, pulpwood containers help the farmer feed our armed forces overseas.
