TRUCK OWNERS!

The TRUCK TIRE Situation Is CRITICAL

FACE THIS FACT! . . . Due to continuing heavy military demands, the latest Government directive limits the distribution of our production to the point where there are very few large-size truck and bus tires for civilian use.

THIS IS the unpleasant and unvarnished truth . . . a condition that exists in spite of the fact that the rubber industry is producing at approximately twice the rate maintained in 1940, the last normal year.

Any increase in the present enormous rate of production will be slow.

For the rubber industry is straining at the maximum production limit of its collective manpower, man hours, and machines.

We do not anticipate an early decrease in military demands and, until these demands decrease, some trucks and buses may go down for lack of tires. This critical period is liable to continue for the duration of active military operations.

THESE HARD-TO-TAKE STRAIGHT-FROM-THE-SHOULDER FACTS are given you today with the sincere hope that you will be sympathetic to the position of the truck tire dealers of the country who have done a splendid job in helping to maintain transportation, and who are still trying desperately to meet your needs.

There are no stocks of large truck tires in dealers' hands. When they say they haven't got your size in stock . . . believe them. When they say they can't tell you when they can get you a tire . . . believe them. THEY DON'T KNOW BECAUSE THE MANUFACTURERS CAN'T TELL THEM!

No matter how essential you may think your trucks are to the war effort or to the civilian economy, the hard fact is that they can't roll on ration certificates for which no tires are available.

Care for your tires today as you never did before. Keep speeds down—Victory speed gives longest tire life. Don't overload tires beyond their rated carrying capacities. Keep air pressures up to Tire & Rim Association standards—do not underinflate; do not overinflate. Match duals correctly. Have every tire inspected regularly for small cuts and bruises that need repair.

Timely vulcanized repairs will prolong the life of that precious tire body.

AND ABOVE ALL — RECAP IN TIME. High-quality material is available in sufficient quantities for recapping. Remember—the "last mile" may ruin the tire, when it might have been recapped and saved.

You must keep your tires UP if you don't want your trucks to be DOWN.
