Jesse ADLER Looks at the NEWS

ONE thing we can be certain of. Hitler is making no plans to spend the winter at the French Riviera.

AS A matter of fact that isn't even necessary. Our boys will make it plenty hot for him wherever he is.

"CHICAGO Manufacturer Leaves Estate of $250,000," headline reports. Those manufacturers sure make money hand over fist!

WITH THE French Couturiers getting back into action, and announcing they approve of slacks, this might be a good time to repeat the late Alex Woolcott's line: That if the hindsight of some women was as good as their foresight—they wouldn't wear slacks!

A CHICAGO hotel guest took six sleeping pills, fell asleep and then took a walk up the street, in the nude, and asked a startled woman "Does the stop here?" A policeman wrapped him in a newspaper, under "Help Wanted."

ONE of the radio singing stars had so much difficulty getting a tune to mind her 2-year-old infant, she took him to the studio with her. The child slept fine.

A BOSTON barber has a sign in his window ready for V-Day. "I will close on the day of victory, leaving my customers, whether hair-shaved or with half a hair-cut."

A MILWAUKEE man, after going for his money, found a set of teeth in his pocket. His ad in the paper brought seven different people claiming they lost 'em.

SIGN in a N. Y. Cab: "Don't be a one-arm driver. Hall my cab and use both!"

A BEDFORD, IND. woman is advertising for a husband who's a good clean man, doesn't drink, doesn't smoke, doesn't stay out late at night but gets a pension. With a life like that he deserves one.

AN ARMY newspaper, in revealing that Paulette Goddard was elected their favorite Pin-Down Girl, commented: "She's the type that has a beautiful profile—all the way down!"

SIGN for Lewis & Conger's Sleepshop: "Getting the Best Sleep is hardest when she's about 18! You are welcome."

A NEW YORK woman died recently and left her $100,000 in cash to 15 Pekinese pups. So silly. Think how many days you could eat dinner at the Stork Club for that much dough!

SPEAKING of dogs, the tragedy of the flea is that he knows for sure that no matter how he brings up his children they'll go to the dogs!

A BROOKLYN burglar walked into his laundry and found a few days before from the man's home. He'll probably get out of his jail about the same time his laundry is delivered.

Man Injured As Auto Hits Buggy

Marvin Kerchensky, of Ambsry, was riding in a horse-drawn buggy about six miles out of Crescon in Gallatin township, when a car operated by William W. Naugle, 20, of Johnson, R. D. 3, struck the back of the buggy, knocking it on its left side.

He suffered a small laceration of the scalp, a possible jaw and head injury. He was irrational at the time of admittance and was unable to give any information. His identity was established by a ration book he had with him.

Juror in Slot Machine Case in Blair County Court Finds $100 'Gift'

Probe Started After Judge is Told of Money Left at Home of Talesman. Another Says He Was Approached

Judge Patterson of Blair county, on Friday ordered the trial of former Altoona Mayor Charles Rhodes continued pending investigation of a statement made by a juror that $100 had been left in his home as a bribe Thursday night.

District Attorney J. Calvin Lang said charges of embezzlement and bribery have already been filed against Harry Wolfberg, Altoona riding academy operator, and Buck Wayne, an insurance salesman, both of whom were named by the juror.

Judge Patterson continued the Rhodes case and ordered an investigation Friday morning, after the juror, 80-year-old Edgar O. Geesey of Altoona, produced four $20 and two $10 bills which he said a man left at his home.

Shortly afterward, another juror, William Lantz, came to the judge and said he had been approached by two men who promised him "a gift" if he would "do right in the Rhodes case."

Rhodes, defeated for re-nomination in the Republican primary this year, is being tried on a charge of willfully neglecting to report gambling machines confiscated by police during his term of office.

"This is the most outrageous and corrupt attempt to tamper with a jury we ever had in Blair county in over 100 years," Judge Patterson commented.

In the meantime, two truckloads of almost demolished slot machines and slot machine parts were taken to Hollidaysburg by Sheriff John Harvey Monday afternoon, on order of the court, District Attorney Lang announced, stating that he had petitioned the court to seize this evidence after he had learned that Bernard "Bucky" Wayne had sold 75 slot machines and a considerable amount of parts one hour after Judge Patterson had ordered an investigation into the jury bribery.

Bellefonte Police Car Painted Black

Bellefonte borough's police car, for years distinguishable because of its white paint, is back in service after having been painted black.

The sedan, which has been a bone of contention in Council for some time between "white car" advocate and those who believe police could do more effective work if their car was not readily distinguishable from the average machine, is now entirely black, with the exception of the "Bellefonte Police" in white letters on the sides.

Houtzdale Child Killed By Truck

Only Child of Father Overseas Meets Accidental Death

Glenn, age ten, only child of Pvt. and Mrs. Wesley Steele, met instant death at Houtzdale Saturday morning, Sept. 30, when struck by a gasoline truck entering Houtzdale.

The boy was playing with a companion near the home of his maternal grandparents, and ran onto the highway after a truck had passed, failing to note that another vehicle, a gasoline truck driven by Harry Kyle of Phillipsburg, was following.

Dr. E. S. Erhard, Clearfield county coroner, reported after making his investigation that the child's death was purely an accident.

The investigation revealed that the driver not only stopped his truck promptly but swerved in an effort to avoid hitting the child, who was struck by the side of the truck. Mrs. Johnson, the grandmother, witnessed the accident.

Funeral services were held the following Tuesday from the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, Jr., with burial in the Briston cemetery. The father is believed on his way overseas, or perhaps now in the foreign war theatre.

Death of Gov. A. G. Curtin Occurred Fifty Years Ago At Home In Bellefonte

Anniversary of Life's Ending for Centre County's Distinguished Citizen Is Subject For Brief Biography

Andrew Gregg Curtin, Pennsylvania's "War Governor," and one of the leading political figures in the long and distinguished history of Centre county, died in Bellefonte 50 years ago on October 7, bringing to an end a long period of service as a diplomat and statesman.

Governor Curtin, who was in his 79th year, had suffered injuries in a fall on the ice in February 1894 and had apparently recovered, but during the summer developed a stomach ailment which caused his health to fail steadily.

The Monday prior to his death he went out on the porch of the family home on West High street (now the Elks home), when firemen were summoned to the steam laundry. He stood in the cool evening air, bareheaded, and appearing exceedingly frail in body. Finally his daughter induced him to return indoors. Later that night he suffered a severe chill and his condition rapidly grew worse until about 5 o'clock Sunday morning when he passed away peacefully.

Present at his bedside when death came were his wife, Katharine Wilson Curtin; these children: Mrs. George P. Harris, Mrs. D. R. Breese, William W. Curtin of Philadelphia, and Mrs. M. D. Burnett of Syracuse, N. Y., and Dr. George P. Harris, his son-in-law and attendant physician. Governor Curtin and his wife had celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on May 29—a little more than four months before his death.

Announcement of the former Governor's death brought many expressions of condolence from eminent statesmen and high officials. Among them were: Hon. A. K. McClure, editor of the Philadelphia Times, who was one of Gov. Curtin's closest friends and political advisers; Gov. Robert E. Pattison, General D. H. Hastings; Gov. Rowell P. Flower, of New York; Edwin S. Stewart.

Took Wrong Drink For Cough Syrup

Tyrone Man Swallows Small Quantity of Cleaning Fluid

William E. Welch, 21, of Tyrone, took one-half teaspoon of an unknown fluid by accident Saturday night. He had been visiting at the home of his sister and suffering with a head cold asked for medicine. She offered him some cough syrup and he went to the medicine cabinet and took some of the liquid.

At the Altoona hospital he said he noted the peculiar odor and didn't take the full amount. It was determined that he possibly had taken an ammonia cleaning fluid. He was admitted to the hospital for observation Saturday night, and was discharged Sunday afternoon. He was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Titan and Union In New Agreement

Officials of the Titan Metal Manufacturing Company, Bellefonte, and representatives of Local Union 1961 affiliated with the A. F. of L., signed a new labor agreement on September 19, 1944, the Titan News reports.

The new contract, which covers hours, wages, and working conditions for all Titan employees, will remain in effect for one year from August 11, 1944.

The new agreement contains, among other things, a maintenance of membership clause with a 15-day escape period during which time any employee can resign from the union. In the event that employees remain in the union they must maintain their membership in good standing for the duration of the agreement.

Under the new contract vacations were liberalized, allowing all employees with over five years' service 30 days pay for two weeks' vacation rather than 56 hours pay for one week off as provided in the old agreement.

Certain stipulated penalties were agreed upon between the company and the union to be applied against employees in case of violation of company rules.

Another important addition provided for the training of several union members in Time Study and Job Analysis work. These trained individuals will assist the union in ironing out technical grievances which may arise in the future concerning matters in both of these fields.

FOUL BALL!

We don't know what you think of it, but we're "agin" Council's action last week in restoring parking meters to all stalls in the business district.

Council gave out with the explanation that half the money received from the meters is to be used for post-war projects. We're still not impressed. In the first place we think post-war planning should be based on something more substantial than half of whatever the curbstone bandits will produce.

In the second place we don't think the public likes the idea any better now than it did at that time. In the fourth place we fear that stores in surrounding communities are again enjoying a tremendous increase in business from persons who feel that after all they don't HAVE to come to Bellefonte to shop.

The system in force up to this time has been quite satisfactory and the borough has been receiving a steady income from the meters. We predict that the Councilmen who backed the full-metering move, apparently in the belief that twice as many meters will produce twice as much money, are going to be fooled.

GREETINGS:

Little things, like receiving cards from friends when you are ill, really mean a whole lot. If more persons took a little time out once in a while to do little acts of kindness the world would be a much happier place.

Instead, most of us blunder along in our own blind, thoughtless way, and only once in a great while do we stop long enough to discover that we've been living pretty much for ourselves.

WAITING LIST:

Don't know whether we ever reported this before, but any rway Rockview prison officials have a "waiting list" of women who have volunteered to be witnesses at electrocutions in Pennsylvania's death chair if and when the rules are broadened to admit women witnesses. There are at least 100 names on the list—one of them a well known Bellefonte business woman.

CITIZEN DIES:

No one will ever know, of course, what role Wendell Wilkie would have played in the post-war era had he survived. We expected big things of him as soon as the GOP high command got around to the realization that he was one of the greatest men of our times. Certain it is, Wilkie's great interest in the post-war world and his vast courage would have been tremendous assets to the United States in what promises to be a troubled future.

We never could understand why he wasn't the Republican candidate for president in 1944. We still think he could have won—but perhaps Fate would have intervened anyhow.

SCENE FUN:

Every time we mention in this corner that President Roosevelt still looks good to us, we get a lot of moans from some customers. We don't recall ever having said that a man was an oak for voting for Hoover; a doll for voting for Landon; a nit-wit for supporting Dewey. We don't even feel that way. But when a man's for Roosevelt, according to some persons, he's just one mental degree above being clapped into a padded cell.

GREAT AMERICAN:

If we remember correctly Al Smith was candidate for president when we cast our first vote. We weren't much interested in politics as such, those days, but we came to have a wholesome respect for Al Smith through seeing many of the social changes he promoted come to fruition in the Roosevelt administrations. Al Smith dropped from the public view in later years, but you always felt that he was in the background, keeping a watchful and a well-balanced eye on things.

REMODELING:

When the Bellefonte Moose lodge remodels, it really goes to town. They've begun to remodel their home, damaged by fire some months ago. As a starter they tore down everything but the front wall, and some of the curbstone contractors are betting that wall will be removed before the thing is finished.

MISCELLANEOUS:

Lots of people who attended the War Fund dinner at the high school cafeteria, Monday night, praised the quality of the food and wondered why there wasn't enough of it. A reader wonders why the lettering on the sides of the Bellefonte Police car is so large. "Looks like an advertising car," he commented.

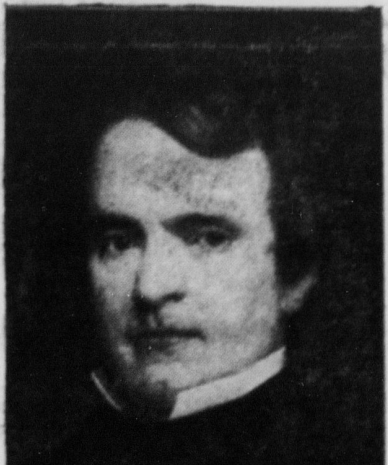

Friend W. W. Sieg notes that one reason cars appear to be aging so fast these days is because the quality of fuel is decreasing. He encloses interesting clippings about gasoline conditions. The more modern your car is the more it will hammer and ping on the post fuel.

Final examinations will begin at the Pennsylvania State College on the second Friday—the 13th—of October.

The Rev. Castleberry has engaged in evangelistic work in Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Alabama and Arkansas, and is a sincere and forceful speaker. Everyone is invited and cordially invited to attend the services.

Bellefonte Boy Lets Loose with Haymakers

In a recent letter from Paul M. Shawley, 7 p.c., who is stationed near San Diego, Cal., to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Miller Shawley of Bellefonte, he told of an encounter with a German sympathizer while on a visit to Los Angeles, Cal. His letter revealed that while walking along a street directly behind a wounded U. S. Marine, who had recently left a hospital, the German sympathizer spit in the face and struck the Marine, knocking him to the ground.

When the latter tried to get up the German pulled a knife and was ready for "business" when Shawley and several friends grappled with the man and were able to remove the knife from his hand. Within a short time Military Police were on the scene and removed the man to a prison, where he will be confined for the duration. In Shawley's own words he said, "When the ugly rat saw me and he had that knife, I saw 'red' and I gave him both my feet and hands at the same time and as for the wounded Marine, he didn't do bad either."

WARNS BICYCLISTS

James O'Connor, Spring township constable, reports he has received a large number of complaints about persons riding bicycles at night without proper lights. In addition to being an extremely hazardous practice, Constable O'Connor said, the practice is illegal. Many of the riders are residents of Bellefonte, and the official warns that in the future any cyclist failing to observe the laws regarding lights will be prosecuted.
