COUNTY AGENTS, FORESTERS HELPING FARMERS OVERCOME PULPWOOD SHORTAGE!

WHILE pulpwood mill receipts are still lagging behind War and Home Front needs, increased pulpwood cutting by farmers has compensated in part for the loss in production at logging camps. The mills feel much credit for this accomplishment should go to the County Agents and Foresters who are helping farmers mark their woodlot trees for thinning, and advising them on marketing.

The Battle is far from Won The pulpwood shortage hasn't been licked. Pulp mills need much more pulpwood to keep pace with War orders. Much depends upon off-season farmer production this fall and winter. Your County Agent and Forester are on the job again this fall, advising greater pulpwood cutting as soon as the harvesting of field crops permits.
