

Youngsters Greet Santa Claus Here

to assure everyone of a gift, and to prevent duplication.

But Chamber of Commerce officials hadn't planned on such a throng. In vain Santa pleaded with the youngsters to get in line, but it was no use. They crowded and scrambled around his truck until, in desperation, the truck was moved to the east end of the Diamond in the hope that the move would enable officials to organize the crowd. Finally, after more than an hour's work the task was accomplished.

In the process many children lost hats, gloves, mittens, and oldsters lost pocketbooks and other belongings. In the very heart of the throng a Howard street woman lost her purse containing a considerable sum of money. The loss was announced over the public address system and after a half hour, when she had just about given up the purse for lost, B. B. LONG, proprietor of the public address system, looked down in a gutter beside his truck and saw an object there. Rescuing the item from the feet of the mob, he found it was the missing purse, intact but very much the worse for wear.

As Santa drove away at the end of his visit, Chief of Police Harry Dukeman had a large collection of children's clothing and other items which were held until their owners appeared.

The free movie at the Plaza theatre, Saturday morning, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, drew a near capacity throng of youngsters to see Gene Autry in "The Stumbling Tumbleweeds." The crowd there was orderly and no difficulty was experienced.

The trouble with a holiday is the work that comes afterwards.
