Describes Visit In Sunny South

sunshine if you can sit protected from the north wind. And unless the day is rainy, as very few are, the green benches on Central Avenue are filled to capacity with people, either summer clad or overcoated, the thermometer indicates.

This series of letters—for I hope to send you three or four more—might be entitled "Life in a Trailer." That is my present abode. "I bought one last Spring as a sort of experiment, as well as insurance against house hunting every year, so far have found it fairly comfortable, largely because we are located in a very attractive tourist village of 10 acres where every convenience is provided. Each trailer has its own water tap, and grassy space 900 square feet. There are four avenues of surfaced roads, electricity, postal service, laundry and bath houses. A large community house where parties are held twice a week in addition to its being open all day up until 11 p. m. There is a store attached, and even a resident minister in the village who preaches every Sunday evening in the community house, assisted by choir and pianist to make a regular worship service. Although Rev. E. Radcliffe is a Baptist, the service is not denominational. Mrs. Radcliffe, his wife, was much interested in learning that we were from Centre county, because her training as a registered nurse was completed there. She was the first graduate of the Bellefonte Hospital, as Miss Eunice Clark, in 1906. Beginning in Dr. Hayes' private hospital which was moved to the site of the present building and converted into public use. Miss Clark remembered a number of Bellefonte people whom she later nursed, and as Mrs. Radcliffe now and for the past thirty-odd years is reading the Centre county papers I turn over to her after finishing them myself.

So far I have lived alone here. George had gone to Bay Pines Veterans' Hospital at the other end of the city, before I arrived. He is still there, although now able to be across the way in the Home where he gets treatment three times per week. Also, he can come into town and and on out here for a day or more when he so desires, and so has spent Christmas and New Year's Eve here with me. It was our 39th Christmas and New Year's together. He said that so far the record hadn't been broken—nor did he mean to let it as long as he was able. On our wedding anniversary, December 8, I went over to the hospital, which he couldn't leave then, for the afternoon. We are hoping that the end of this month will see him well enough to spend the rest of the season in the Village, where there is as much sunshine as there is at Bay Pines.

This is getting too long, but now that the family history and background is established, I won't need to be so personal hereafter.

Among the interesting events about to occur are Sherwood Eddy's series of lectures in the Congregational Church. He comes every winter for a week, and opens this year on Friday evening, Jan. 5, with a talk on "The Pattern of a New World." Tonight, Jan. 4, is a lecture by Dr. Sam'l Rugep on "Germany a State, Never a Nation." The DAR is giving a tea at one of the hotels Saturday from 3 to 5, for visiting members. And for the future we have Josef Hoffman to anticipate in February. Tickets are already on sale, and very reasonable, $1.20 and 50. He is featured as the world's greatest living pianist. However, as to prices for lectures and most music, they seldom go beyond a silver collection, and most folks put in only a dime. Last year the ministers began to urge people to look closely at what they were contributing, because so many appliances in pieces turned out to be white pennies.

Quite frequently I see Mrs. Hugh Taylor of Bellefonte at the shuffleboard and card club. I haven't asked her if she is enjoying life, because it wasn't necessary. She seems to have made a number of new friends—and if this were not the newspaper I would add that they are not all women, either. She and Mrs. Radcliffe, by the way, are friends of long standing.

There are many Pennsylvanians here in the Village. Mrs. W. R. Treasure are themselves from Pa. We now have about 200 folks here, altogether. It is only 10 minutes' ride from Central Avenue, with bus service regularly. All 42 of the cottages are filled and more than 50 of the 180 trailers' lots. And as an afterthought, it is situated on the Gandy Boulevard, better known as 4th St. North, on the way to Tampa. Next time I'll write about the grading and packing of oranges and grapefruit.

Best New Year wishes,
MYRTLE MAGARDEL.

War or no war the average American has to balance income with outgo.

Keeping up with fashions set by friends and neighbors becomes expensive.

The loudest cries about taxation come from those who pay the largest income taxes.

It's about time for somebody to get off another denunciation of the younger generation.

Car and Truck Tire Quotas Are Reduced

Passenger car and truck tire quotas in the Williamsport OPA district for the month of January were slashed by 866 tires to new low totals of 6930 Grade I, passenger car tires; 899 7.50 and smaller truck tires; and 382 truck tires of size 8-25 and larger. District OPA Director Joseph L. Ray, announced this week.

The 14-county OPA district quota of Grade I passenger car tires for January has been cut from 7508 to 6931, a reduction of 578 tires; truck tires 7.50 and smaller, from 1077 tires to 899, a reduction of 208; truck tires 8-25 and larger, from 462 to 382, a reduction of 80; and tractor and implement tires, from 209 to 175, a reduction of 34.

"It is apparent," Ray said, "that A card holders must live with existing tire casing for a good part of 1945. Camelback of adequate quality is available without restriction. Recapping whenever needed—a now more than ever—the answer for the non-essential driver.

"B and C card holders cannot expect to receive as many Grade I tires as had been planned. They, too, must conserve existing tire carcasses in every way if they are to continue to use their cars in essential occupations. Car-pooling, as well as recapping, is essential. A car-pool of four will save 75 per cent wear on tires."
