Chemistry Makes Vast Progress

He also exhibited and discussed the amazing variety of other articles into which this tough, resilient, light weight fiber has gone during the war years...

He exhibited samples of nylon towlines which are pulling invasion gliders. In other arms of the service nylon is going into climbing ropes, parachutes, a fabric called the strongest type of cloth ever made for its weight...

Mr. Livingston demonstrated an unusual application of explosives which has helped speed aircraft production. A pinch of explosive is packed into a cavity in the shank of a rivet...

Among other du Pont products exhibited during the talk were samples of "Lucite" methyl methacrylate resin, the tough, clear plastic that has found a wide range of uses...

There were samples of pictures covered with a clear and lasting film to protect them from the ravages of time. There were flowers, leaves and plants, all in natural color and texture, preserved in plastics and mounted on panels for inspection...

There was a cellophane gas cap, furnished soldiers to protect them from being sprayed with gas from the air. There was a type of plastic which is transparent when held at a right angle to the line of vision, but which cuts off vision when tilted...

These and numerous other things developed to help us win the war are new-things products of constructive chemistry the speaker said, and will be available to make a happier, more interesting and more productive world in peace...

Mr. Livingston was introduced by William J. Tucker, Kiwanis program chairman. M. E. Romberger, president of the club, presided, and introduced guests for the day including members of the executive committee of the Centre County Agricultural Extension Association...
