of Allegheny and Linn streets, displays Swiss architecture typical of the pre-Civil War period and is notable for its delicately cast iron fence.

The Brockerhoff residence, N E corner of W. Bishop and Spring streets is a fine example of early American architecture in brick. Indicative of Bellefonte's cultural adequacy is the many different faiths represented by Bellefonte's churches; the Bellefonte High School, built in 1941; and the Centre County Library.

The library, which is also the home of the Centre County Historical Society, was built about 1820 and was first the home of William W. Potter and later of E. C. Humes. The library contains 30,068 volumes and services through its bookmobile 97 rural schools, 5 branches, and 5 stations.

Important also are the advantages offered by the Bellefonte High School in athletics and other extracurricular activities. Not to be forgotten is the proximity of a leading institution—the Pennsylvania State College—through which high school graduates can get advanced training and specialize in subjects relevant to Bellefonte and the surrounding areas.

Affording both employment and educational opportunities are the important leading industries of Bellefonte—the Titan Metal Company, now undergoing expansion; the Warner Lime Co., and the internationally known makers of rolling mill machinery and straightening equipment, the Sutton Engineering Co.

Both beautiful and practical to Bellefonte residents is the spring from which Bellefonte derives its name. Spring Creek, into which the spring flows, is the site of the famous Bellefonte Hatchery. The hatchery, which contributes to many Pennsylvania streams, was built in 1902.

When the expansion program for fish research is completed, the hatchery will be the largest freshwater biological research station in the United States.

When Dunlop and Harris laid out Bellefonte in 1795, they were no doubt aware of the fact that they had picked a natural beauty spot which afforded many advantages. They probably could not have predicted, however, that Bellefonte would progress to the extent to which it has.

For the growth and development of a community depends not only on the natural advantages but also on the people that inhabit a community and their ideas and ideals. And because many individuals have contributed to the development of Bellefonte, it is there now for everyone to enjoy. Bellefonte, a comparatively small town, today offers the advantages of any big city plus the small town's friendliness.

Bellefonte gives both grown-ups and children alike the chance to live and grow in a well-rounded democratic community, the opportunity to be complete Americans.

Funeral services will be held at the Kuhlman funeral home at 2:30 p.m. Friday, with the Rev. Donald H. G. Miller officiating. Burial will be made in Union Cemetery, Bellefonte.

Dr. Martin, former moderator of the Presbytery of Huntingdon, was born July 13, 1869, in Leeds, N. Y., the son of James and Elizabeth Wood Martin. He was married Nov. 5, 1901, to Grace Howe, who survives.

Teachers Given—

Dr. Donald McGarey, associate professor in the School of Education at Penn State, has accepted an invitation to speak at commencement in June. It was announced. A bid of $2,451 for school supplies was accepted from Kurtz Bros. of Clearfield. There were two other bidders. Cambosco was low bidder for science supplies for $311.50.

The board accepted with regret the resignation of Mrs. Irene Segmiller Rauscher, 7th grade teacher. Mrs. Rauscher indicated she will join her husband, a member of the armed forces, in June. A leave of absence was granted Miss Mary Debo. Miss Debo is reported ill and is now in Florida. Miss Barbara Hoy was named to the position of secretary in the office of O. F. Sollenberger.

Tax Collector Jean Y. Bauer was exonerated from $2,803.50 in per capita taxes.

Superintendent Kenneth W. Miller reported the receipt of 100 bushel of apples by the school as surplus commodities. The apples are distributed in the cafeteria at noon and at recess periods in the grade schools. Mr. Miller presented an informal report of the School Administrators Convention held in Atlantic City this month. A shortage of substitute teachers is being felt in the schools, he added.

Human nature through the ages has responded very slowly to what reformers call the uplift, and little progress is made by applying the pressure too fast.
