Centre Hall-Potter—

sometime during the 1750's. It is believed that General Potter built the fort on his second trip to this locality. In the Indian Massacre of 1755, 68 men were added to the fort to protect the frontier. The fort was abandoned during the American Revolution, but thereafter, General Potter returned to the fort for a time. When apparent peace with the Indians was made, the fort was abandoned permanently, and was left to ruination by the elements. Conflicting reports exist about its size, exact location, etc. Some informers believe that it was large and included the Old Fort Spring inside the stockade, while another report tells of a tunnel from the stockade to the spring. The location is believed to be on a hill directly north of the Talitha Delaney farm house, a rather high point, from which the landscape can be viewed for miles in all directions.

EARLYSTOWN: Today a mere group of farms on the Centre Hall-Boalsburg road, but once a post village, laid out by William Early, a country squire. It was first called Williamsburg, but later Earlysburg and finally Earlystown.

POTTER TOWNSHIP: At one time one of the most thickly populated sections in the county. It was also considered larger in area than today. The population in 1840 was 1,787 persons, including negroes. It derives its name from General Potter.

TUSSEYVILLE: Named for its proximity to Tussey Mountains. It was formerly called Churchville, but when a post office was located there it was necessary to change the name since another village by the same name existed elsewhere in Pennsylvania.

TUSSEYSINK: Named for the Tussey Mountains and the numerous sink holes in the locality.

CENTRE HILL: Named for the hill midway between the North and South Mountains in Penn's Valley.

CENTRE HALL: From the English meaning "Headquarters of the Manor." Founded in 1846 and incorporated as a borough in 1885.

HUSTON CEMETERY: Located about 100 yards southeast of the Plum Grove school, on the Keller farm, James and Catherine Huston and two children are buried there. James Huston committed suicide there while he was squirrel hunting and was buried there in 1800. He was a Revolutionary War veteran.

INDIAN LANE: Located to the right of Route 45 one mile east of Old Fort Hotel. A marker stands along the dirt road, showing the site and commemorating the death of two white men killed in an encounter with Indians.

OLD STONE MILL: Foundation still standing on the Walter Holt farm. Some years ago a small village about the size of Tusseyville was built around the mill, which included a store and blacksmith shop.

THE RED MILL: Stood on a portion of land now owned by John Stringer. Burned down about 20 years ago.

awarded to Lewis Haupt for masonry, and Russell Witmer for plumbing.

In addition, $200 was received by the YMCA as a donation from the proceeds of the Bellefonte high school faculty play. This fund will be used to renovate the girls' locker room.

This summer a new boiler to heat water for the swimming pool and heat the building will be installed. Guy W. Lyons is the contractor. Secretary Chester Narvel reported $2,800 has been received or pledged for the work. Fred Warner, a member of the board, solicited the funds from local industries for the boiler work.

It is reported the Young Adult Club of the "Y" will renovate the room in the basement formerly used as a bowling alley. The room will be used as a young adult department.

Together with her brother and two pixies she goes in search of them. Not until she is confronted by a jealous witch who tries to keep her from reaching the slip-pers does she realize the full meaning of the fairy's warning, that "True happiness cannot be found where needs of others linger around."

The over-all director of both the casts and the chorus, Mrs. Mary Beaver, who has been assisted in the direction of the play by Mrs. Joyce Rine and Mrs. Annette McGonigal, announced the following committee:

Costumes: Miss Alice Musser, Mrs. McGarvey, Mrs. Gillen, Publicity: Mrs. Ruth Jones and Miss Musser.

Prompting: Mrs. McGonigal and Mrs. Rine.
Make-up: Mrs. Williams and Miss Mary Stolitz.
Property and stage settings: Miss Bixel, Mrs. Keasinger and Miss Musser.

First Graders Visit College Activities

The children from the First Grade Bishop Street School, with Mrs. McDowell as teacher, spent Monday morning at State College, where they visited the turkey farm.

There they saw eggs being prepared for the incubator, others in the incubator, and the baby birds just hatched out.
After their tour of the experimental pens the children visited the barns where they saw so much of interest.
Mothers assisting and furnishing transportation were Mrs. Warren Olsen, Mrs. Fred Malory, Mrs. Herman McClure and Mrs. Philip Benner.
