sweeper with a water sprinkler attachment. According to figures cited at the meeting a mechanized sweeper similar to one in use in State College, would pay for itself in about a year. Bids will be asked on a sweeper to meet specifications furnished by the street committee.
Several Councilmen and borough employees saw a sweeper in operation at Clairton last week and have also seen State College's operating.

He is unable to work for a few

Clarence Youth
Enlists In Army

The enlistment of Andy Onder, Jr., in the Regular Army for a period of three years on Apr. 5 was announced by T. Sgt. William S.
Nagle of the U. S. Army-Air Force Recruiting Station located at 220 1/2 West High Street, Bellefonte.

Private Onder, 19, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Onder Sr., of Clarence. Prior to his enlistment he was employed by R. S. Carlin Coal Co., Inc., of Snow Shoe.

In an interview the young soldier stated he enlisted to start a technical skill that will make money for him in civilian life. He stated further he wanted to take advantage of the educational facilities offered by the Armed Forces.

Private Onder reported to Fort George G. Meade, Maryland, on Apr. 6 for basic training.

of High and S. Potter be changed from a residential zone to a commercial zone to permit the present owner, Mr. Haupt, to erect a commercial building at the rear of that lot. Council decided that a public hearing should be held on the zoning ordinance.

Council approved a recommendation by the sanitary committee to advertise for bids on a new auxiliary pump for use at the sewage disposal plant.

The water committee reported that the survey of water users in the borough is progressing. Total receipts of the water department for water service amounted to $1881.45 and sewage service receipts amounted to $735.92.

Additional Data—

The new line, when completed, will carry approximately fifty to 100 million cubic feet per day of natural gas to the Pittsburgh area.

The Manufacturers Light and Heat Co. has been engaged in acquiring leases throughout this general area for a considerable period of time, and has well over one hundred thousands acres of leases taken at the present time.

The pipe line starting near Canonsburg will extend in an easterly direction and will cross the Monongahela River near Elizabeth. It will then swing to the northeast, via Irwin, Export, Indiana and Phillesburg. It will cross three other rivers enroute, the Youghiogheny, Conemaugh, and the Susquehanna at a point near Hymer. The northeastern terminus of the line is approximately three miles northeast of the Susquehanna river.

It is estimated that the cost of the main line, with numerous laterals to the producing fields, will cost approximately $10,000,000.

Meanwhile, indications are that drilling for oil may begin soon in lands in this area.

G. Edward Haupt, of near Bellefonte, executed a gas and oil option lease for lands owned by him in Centre and Clinton counties.

He said that the Shannon Gas & Oil Co. of New York leased approximately 4,000 acres in Keating township in Clinton County, and Boggs and Snow Shoe townships in Centre County. He reported that Dr.
F. D. Winner and Donald Murphy, of Lock Haven and Baltimore, Md., leased approximately 10,000 acres in Potter, Haines, Miles, Walker, Marlon, Curtin, Liberty, Rush and Burnside townships.

Mr. Haupt said that prospecting and drilling operations are "assured immediately."

Old Issue of—

marked "For the Centre Democrat" signed by "Harriet" who, whomsoever she was, seemed to be in charge of that section. The remainder of the page is given up to stories apparently taken from other news-sheets, with a few items of news. The first refers to a resolution of the Alabama legislature which contemplated moving that state's capital to a city that would be named "Alabama." Something that was not accomplished. Another noted that the U. S. Treasury has rules that imports for the benefit of local churches are not subject to revenue duty.

The Secretary of the Treasury of that date was the former Bellefonte boy, Robert J. Walker, whose father had been the judge of this district living in this town. When his father was advanced to the U. S. Courts at Pittsburgh, Robert became the secretary to Andrew Jackson in his first campaign for President, then moved to the state of Mississippi and represented it in the United States Senate for two terms before he was appointed as Secretary of the Treasury. Later, he went to Europe and there raised the money to finance the construction of the Illinois Central Railroad. He conducted the financing of the Mexican War which was to start in that year. During his term as Treasurer he was the author of the "Walker Tariff". After its completion he remained in Washington, was later appointed as governor of Kansas.

During the Civil War he was our Fiscal Agent in Europe where he sold $250,000.000 of bonds in London and Paris.

Evidently quite a tide of immigration had set in toward the "far west" with the prospect of the western coast becoming a part of the country. One in reference to the discovery of the California gold in 1848, since another item of news on the first page advises all travelers to California to arm themselves with either a shot-gun or a rifle before they start for that section.

The second page has two columns of editorials. One in reference to a proposal of the state legislature to levy ten cents per ton on the production of anthracite coal and four mills per bushel on bituminous coal. President Polk had nominated George W. Woodward, then the president-judge of our district, to the Supreme Court of the United States. In contemplation of a vacancy many names were proposed. A second editorial derides the proposal of the "Clinton Democrat" for the selection of our judge, styling its nominee as "weak and incompetent" and urging the appointment of J. S. McAllister, of Centre County. Another apparently later in date, refers to the turning down of the President's appointment by the Senate. The article continues, "This is the work of that prince of political scoundrels, Simmon Cameron and his tools, and proves them to be the very 'spit-tings of the womb of filth and meanness'."

This page also contains a letter from a correspondent in Washington, who signs himself "O. P. Q."

It laments the "foul operations of the malignant slanders" who were conspiring the nomination of Judge Woodward. It discusses the "Oregon Boundary Question" then agitating the Congress, and compliments John Quincy Adams on his stand for the whole of the Oregon territory. The letter also complains bitterly that Washington was centering the anniversary of the victory at New Orleans with "a fancy-dress ball", crying shame on our country to thus desecrate a day "so appropriately named the 'Sabbath Day of Freedom'."

An article writes about a proposed revolution in Mexico which actually has risen in the year to the Mexican War, and that is followed by one stating that the "magnetic-telegraph" line between Philadelphia and New York was expected to be completed by the end of the following week.

The third page opens with a copy of a resolution of Congress on which was based the "fifty-four forty or fight" cry which later swept the country. Next is found a reference to an earthquake which had occurred in Memphis, Tennessee.
Then comes a notice on a Sabbath School Convention to be held in the courthouse on Feb. 4th, and another by the "Democratic-Republican" party of a nominating convention to be held in the same building "on Tuesday evening of January Court" to select a county ticket. That was the branch of the Democratic party opposed to the Jackson element.

Advertisements are shown of the "Franklin House", William Ward, Proprietor, "at the S. E. corner of the Diamond near the Court House"; one by George Graham who has for sale the best quality of "Bituminous Stone Coal" from the Snow Shoe region; and another by John Brackbill advising the public that he has a complete line of household furniture and supplies, and that "house painting will be done at the shortest notice". James D. Turner advises that he is manufacturing an improved "Straw and Hay Cutter" and that he has the "Star Patent Wind-Mill" for sale.

Advertisements continue with one by John Livingston of the "The Book Store", in the office recently occupied by Dr. McCoy, headed by a quotation from Lord Bacon, and that he can also furnish "Superior Stationery" (The spelling may be the printer's error.) That office, or store, was probably in a portion of the building now occupied by the Electric Supply Co. on High Street.
Henry Baker, Agent, advertises the "New York C. Philadelphia Clothing Store" located in what was formerly the office of William C.
Welch, J. P. This was a portion of the brick building torn down to be replaced by the Murphy Store, and formerly known as the home of J.
M. Benner and his sisters, C. C.
Price, of Milesburg, advertises his own make of "One and Two-horse Sleighs" at his manufactory in that town. John H. McFadden, one of the paper's publishers, as Chief Clerk of the County, notifies all the county tax collectors that they will be charged with six per cent interest on their unpaid balances after January 13th. "John M. Hale & Co." propose to sell the best quality of "Saleratus" by the keg or the pound. That firm was located in Phillipsburg.

The fourth and last page is devoted solely to advertisements. An Orphans' Court sale of the Isaac Parsons real estate by John Tonner as clerk of the Orphans' Court, and the usual administrative accounts by Tonner as Register are fully set forth, as well as another Orphans' Court sale by James Potter as trustee of the real estate of Peter Jordan. An inquest notice is published by T. M. Hall, Sheriff, on the real estate of Evan Miles.

A sale of "calicoes, chintzes, mousselines and cashmeres" and another of "muslins, tickings, and drillings" are advertised by the firm of Reynolds & Leib". The first of these partners was Wm. F. Reynolds who had come to the town five years before and was a real estate maker. The second of the two was the father of the John D.
Leib (the name was spelled both ways) who became the head of our first High School. Another advertisement follows of the "Hewes Liniment and Elixer", warranted to cure rheumatism, by J. M. McCoy & Co., druggists. J. M. McCoy was later the McCoy of the McCoy & Linn ironworks.

Reuben C. Hale, then of Lewistown and later of Pittsburgh, advertises both annual and perpetual fire insurance of house property, furniture and merchandise. William Tipton advertises a Tavern Stand with its house at "Howardville".

Also another house and blacksmith-shop, Isaac Buck advises that he has found a two year old red heifer which will be sold if its owner does not turn up; another stray steer is announced by D. Beer, also of Patton Township, and a steer and bull by James Delien Jr. of the same section.

Thomas Shorter announces that he has opened a barber-shop "two doors east of 'Our House' and that he will also make Ladies' Curles".
"Our House" was Abe Baum's liquor store at N. W. corner of Bishop and Allegheny. A petition for a tavern license is asked for by George Taylor, "at his old stand in Pleasant Gap". This was the old hotel opposite Noll's store. Henry Bitner advises that he had been appointed administrator of the Barbara Bitner estate. C. H. Bressler, M.D., notifies the public that he will be at the Washington Hotel kept by Richard R. Miles on the week of Montgomery". This was a wooden building later removed to make way for the Curtin residence, now the Elks Club. At one time that building was also the location of the plant of the "Centre Democrat".

Nothing indicates the importance of the great iron plants of those days, more than the statement showing the value of the taxable of the third page of this issue.

Spring Township, with the Valentine and Thomas plants, led the valuation list at $527,823. Potter was second on account of its more thickly settled population, at $445,- 722. Harris, with Centre Furnace, followed, at $428,723. Ferguson, another of the largely populated townships came next, with Walker, the seat of Washington Furnace, and the Hecla plant followed. Evidently the Milesburg plant was out of blast at that time since Boggs Township is low on the list, and the rating of Bellefonte Borough comprising only about 150 acres at that day stood thirteenth with a valuation of $159,213 on the list of nineteen political divisions.
