Watch Calories In Preparing Desserts

Something light is ideal for refreshments you serve these days, says Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre County.

Desserts you eat between meals do add extra calories, a real hazard for the overweight. However, when you plan a dessert party and serve low-calorie refreshments first they can complete the meal your guests have at home—calorie counters must always consider food they eat at parties and cut down on the amount of food they eat the rest of the day.

Chiffon pies are among the light and appetizing refreshments you can serve for party fare. They fit into almost any color scheme, combine eggs and fruit or fruit juices

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Gill motored to White Deer on Sunday for the opening of the fishing season. While there they visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Thomas. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Rinehart and sons Harry, David and Charles, of Pleasant Hill, visited relatives here on Monday night.

The Woodycrest 4-H Agriculture Club held its meeting in the E. U. B. church social room on Friday evening. More than 30 boys and girls attended the meeting.

Recent dinner guests at the M. C. Rinehart home were Mr. and Mrs. Hillman Hubler, Mrs. Theodore Pelton and Mrs. Dan English of Morrisdale, R. D., and Mrs. Max Forey of Woodland, R. D. and are good eating, colorful and full of flavor. Miss Butler suggests the following orange chiffon filling which you can put into a baked pastry shell, a crumb crust, or individual tarts. One medium sized serving gives about 215 calories.

Orange Chiffon Pie

- 3 egg yolks, large
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 1-4 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 3 tablespoons orange juice and 1 tablespoon lemon juice (strained)
- 1-2 cup orange juice, hot
- 4 tablespoons lemon flavored gelatine
- 3 egg whites, large
- 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 6 tablespoons sugar

Cook in double boiler the egg yolks, 6 tablespoons sugar, 3 tablespoons orange juice, and lemon juice until thickened, stirring constantly. Dissolve gelatin in hot orange juice, beat into hot custard and cool. Make a meringue of the egg whites, cream of tartar, and 6 tablespoons sugar. When custard mixture has partially set, beat with a rotary beater until smooth, then fold in meringue. Pile into 9-inch baked pie shell, and chill. Garnish with orange sections when ready to serve.

CONTROL BEETLES—Research entomologists of Penn State last summer found that a well-timed application of DDT dust, when 50 per cent of corn plants were in silk, controlled Japanese beetle and left enough residue for protection for 5 to 7 days.

Check Poultry For Parasites

You should not set aside one particular time during the year to examine your birds for parasites. You should check them regularly—the year around—for lice, fleas, or other parasites that endanger the birds' health and your profits. Yes, winter and summer alike, birds should be examined. Now is a good time to look over your layers. If you have noticed signs of unthriftiness in your flock, it may be due to lice troubling your birds.

Lice cause chickens discomfort and irritation, parasites are often responsible for reduced egg production or the poor development of birds being raised for meat poultry. When not controlled these tiny creatures can upset the health of an entire flock. That's why the problem of poultry parasites is not re-examining your chickens carefully for lice or other parasites, is a practice poultry raisers can easily put into practice.

It isn't necessary to check all the birds in your flock. Pick a few at random and part the fluffy feathers beneath the wings, through the upper thigh, and around the head. If lice are present, you will find them readily. Lice on chickens frequently run to many hundreds in number and numerous others are hatched contently—it is important to destroy them before they cause serious trouble.

Treatments Available A convenient way to combat the lice problem is to use a good roost application in the laying house. These are available commercially and are well worth the few cents they cost you. The preparation can be spread on roosts in the evening. The rising fumes penetrate the feathers and kill the lice while birds roost.

Another popular method of killing lice is with louse powder, a method used for individual treatment of birds. The results are good.

Leaders To Stress Need For Recreation

National and State leaders will express their opinions on the importance of recreation both in times of peace and in times of national emergency at the fourth annual recreation conference to be held at Penn State May 9 to 11.

Fred M. Coombs, professor of physical education at the College and chairman of the conference, explained today that the conference will be attended by recreation leaders of camps, parks, churches, industries, rural areas, communities, institutions, and schools, as well as representatives of local and state government agencies seeking answers to their recreation problems.

Much of the time spent at the three-day conference will be spent in discussing the problems brought to the conference by leaders in recreation. Coombs also pointed out that "while the American people need recreation as a part of national defense activities, it would be a tragic mistake to regard it only as an emergency stimulant for national morale."

Second Story Man Mamma, what's a second-story man? Your father is one dear. If I don't believe his first story, he always has another one ready.

The government hasn't lost any money on its program to lend farm laborers and tenant farmers the money to buy farms of their own.

Penna. Leading In Brucellosis Control

Pennsylvania is out with its revised State-wide program for elimination of Brucellosis (Bang's disease) from the dairy and beef cattle herds of the State. County Agent L. H. Bull reports Pennsylvania leads all other states in the number of herds certified or free from this disease.

The revised program now in effect is a cooperative effort among farmers, the Bureau of Animal Industry, the practicing veterinarians, and the Agricultural Extension Service.

This cooperative program is looked upon by the livestock industry of the United States as an example of what can be done through combining an educational and cooperating control program to get the job done.

The first full year's operation of this program produced surprisingly good results. These included:

- (1) Over 100,000 calves vaccinated in 23,545 herds.
- (2) 8,516 certified brucellosis-free herds—more than any other state in the whole country.
- (3) Three new counties entirely tested for the first time—Allegheny, Dauphin and Carbon.

(4) One new county was added to the list of certified brucellosis-free—Somerset.

Pennsylvania now has 23 counties certified as brucellosis-free, six counties completely tested but not yet certified as having less than one per cent infection required for certification, and 18 counties partially tested.

The goal of the State Brucellosis committee and its 66 county committee affiliates is to vaccinate all calves raised to give them resistance against possible infection; to test as fast as possible to locate infected animals and then to remove them with indemnity payments. In this way pockets of infection will be attacked until the State is free from this dreaded and costly disease.

USE SPARINGLY—Poultry manure is a good fertilizer but it is high-powered, J. O. Dutt, extension vegetable specialist of Penn State, warns. It must be used in small amounts in the garden. Due to its high nitrogen content, poultry manure stimulates plant growth and too much will cause spindling growth.

Stage Pig Derby A pig derby, in which coeds drive pigs over a specified course, will be one of the highlights of the Little International Livestock Show at Penn State, Apr. 29. The show is held annually by student members of the Block and Bridle Club.

Nearly everybody is for the common good until they come to the pocketbook test.
