

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

THOMAS GOODLIN

Thomas Goodlin, 77, died at the Fairbrook Manor in Pennsylvania Furnace about noon Sunday, April 22, 1951. He had been ill three years.

Born May 13, 1873, he is survived by a brother, James, who lives in Virginia. A gardener by trade, he was employed at the manor.

Funeral services were held from the Baileville Presbyterian Church Tuesday afternoon, with the Rev. Charles L. Best officiating. Burial was in the Methodist Cemetery at Pennsylvania Furnace.

CHARLES PLETCHER

Charles Pletcher, formerly of Boggs township, near Milesburg, died at the Centre County Home at 9:15 p. m. Sunday, April 22, 1951. He had been a guest at the home for two years and 11 months.

Mr. Pletcher was born in Curtin township March 14, 1877, a son of Nathaniel and Emeline Mann Pletcher. His wife, the former Susan Swires, died in 1931.

Children are Melvin, McElhattan; Mrs. Paul Gettig, Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Stewart, Milesburg. Two half-brothers, Thomas and Lewis; two half-sisters, Herbert and Blair Pletcher, and a half-sister, Miss Trevena Pletcher, all of Howard, survive. He leaves seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the Wetzlar Memorial Chapel in Milesburg with the Rev. J. A. Fasset of Milesburg officiating. Burial was made in the Schenck cemetery.

HARRY I. HOY

Harry Irvin Hoy, 73, of near Jacksonville, died at his home at 4 a. m. Sunday, April 22, 1951. He was a retired farmer and was believed to have died of a heart attack. Acting Centre County Coroner, John Weber, investigated.

Mr. Hoy was born Dec. 16, 1877, in Porter township, Clinton County, a son of Zwingle William and Clara Agnes Zeigler Hoy. On Dec. 22, 1898, he married the former Anna Mary Fisher, who survives with three children.

They are Mervin E. and Willard

Edward Gibbs

His wife, who had not seen him since he gave himself up to college authorities several days after the mutilated body of Miss Baker was discovered, gave no signs of relenting at the last minute. She has been working under her maiden name near her home.

Gibbs, a World War II veteran and F. & M. student, testified at his trial that he first choked, then slugged Miss Baker with a lug wrench "on an impulse." He said his mind went blank as he began choking the girl and he didn't remember anything until I saw blood on my hands and the lug wrench.

He recounted how he met the Franklin and Marshall College girl in downtown Lancaster, drove her to a petter's hangout near the city and there murdered her.

Gibbs hid the body under some brush, returned to Lancaster, attended college classes, then later in the day went back to the scene of the crime and dragged the girl's body to a nearby cottage, where he stuffed it under a porch.

du Chien, Wisconsin, now maintained as a house museum under the sponsorship of the Wisconsin State Historical Society. I know of another in a southern California home which was originally in the Indiana home of its present owner's grandparents.

The tail-post spool bed was made from 1850 to 1865 of black walnut in the full-size, six feet, four inches long by four feet, four inches wide, in single size and in child's and crib size. Several present-day furniture factories have now revived their making but the copies can be readily recognized by the posts which are noticeably slender, not over two and a half inches in diameter as against three or more with the originals.

Readers of this column who are interested in learning more of any items or subjects described may find their time well spent by visiting the Centre County Library. Numerous volumes are available available there for more complete study.

Some of the most popular titles, as listed by Mrs. Carl Iverson, librarian, are:

"Nutting—'Antique Furniture', 'Living with Antiques', 'Furnishing with Antiques'; Peters or Crouse—'Currier and Ives'; Eberlein and McClure—'Practical Book on Antiques'; Moore—'Old Glass'; Drepper—'ABCs of Old Glass'; DeBies—'General Antique Furniture'; Halsel and Tower—'Homes of Our Ancestors'; Yates—'How to Restore Antiques'; Ormsbee—'Story of American Furniture'; Morse—'Furniture of Olden Time'; Drepper—'First Reader for Antique Collecting'; Burgess—'Antique Jewelry'; Williams—'Old American Houses and How to Restore Them'; Hawkins—'New Houses from Old'; McKearin—'American Glass'; Stout—'Pennsylvania Folk Art'; 'Collectors Guide to Furniture Design'; Lee—'American Cup Plates'; Palmer—'Book of American Clocks'.

Reedsville Soldier Wins CI Badge

Private First Class Carl R. Hoy, son of Carl F. Hoy, of Reedsville, has been awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge in Korea while serving as an Infantryman with the 5th Cavalry regiment on the Korean battlefield.

This badge is only awarded from line combat infantrymen and distinguishes the actual fighting man from the rear area and service troops in a combat zone. A soldier must be a member of an infantry regiment to be eligible to receive it.

Shot Load Provides Necessary Weight

"A recent hearing inquiring into the facts surrounding the shooting of a hunter in 1950 uncovered a benefit, or a detriment, dependent on how the person wounded views it," says Game Protector Phillip S. Sloan, of Dalton. He explains:

"The injured hunter was struck by 75 or 80 fine shot. He had been examined for injury several times. On each occasion he was rejected because he was underweight. A short time after he recovered from his wounds, he was again examined for the service and this time he was accepted. So it seems the extra weight he picked up from the shot was all he needed."

to do so and was shot down immediately by the Germans. Gus lost no time thinking, but pulled a hand grenade from his pocket and threw it. His aim was good. Nine of the soldiers were dead. The tenth was badly wounded.

Like any other persons away from their folks, who were in this case in America, the boys looked forward to mail time. The boys received letters from their father who wrote of the wonderful freedom and opportunities in this country. They read the letters with a great deal of skepticism. It was hard for them to imagine such things when they were in the midst of fighting, killing, and constant turmoil.

Today Gus and Angelus like to keep their memories in the past. They are living normal lives in this country. Gus even has a car.

Gus, now 17, was born in Bellefonte where he lived for seven months. He then moved with his parents to Greece. A few years later Angelus was born.

It was in June, 1948, that Gus came to America. Two years later, August 15, 1950, Angelus arrived.

later the Bookmobile which distributes books throughout the County. His statement pointed out that he has been a strong supporter of the veterans administration.

Mr. Keeler has been particularly solicitous of the welfare of the boys called into the service and there has never been a contingent of boys leaving for service that Mr. Keeler was not present to assist with the farewell, as a representative with best wishes of the people of the County," the statement said.

Mr. Keeler is an honorary member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Methodist Church, Odd Fellows, Elks, Undine Fire Company, auxiliary police and the Army Board.

Mr. Keeler announced that because of illness he would be limited in calling at homes in the County as he had done in previous campaigns. He pointed out, however, news and will be fully capable of administering the duties of the office which he now seeks.

men in the northcentral and northwestern portions of the State during the critical winter period. In the northern counties, Game Commission crews, sometimes aided by sportsmen, felled many inferior tree species that are relished as food by deer and snowshoe rabbits. Wind and sleet storms leveled many trees last winter, providing much natural food and protection in some areas.

M. E. Sherman, long time supervisor of the Game Commission's Northcentral Division, pretty well summed the program conducted during the recent lean months this way: "Winter feeding of wildlife was the most extensive and the best organized by game protectors and sportsmen's organizations that I have had the opportunity to witness in my career with the Commission."

Dry Beans For Protein

Dry beans are one of the high protein foods, says Miss Helen S. Butler, home economics extension representative of Centre County. Because the proteins in beans are not complete, that is, they don't contain all the amino acids necessary for life and growth, serve other complete proteins during the meals of the day. Milk, cheese, meat, fish and poultry are some of the complete protein foods that can supplement the protein in dry beans.

The division of congressional sentiment, largely along party lines, shows the danger of military leaders becoming politically-minded.

Veterans Reenlisting Get Posts in State

Regular Army assignment in Pennsylvania awaits qualified male veterans, Sgt. Nagle of the U. S. Army-Air Force Recruiting Service stated.

A limited number of vacancies exist for assignment to the U. S. Disciplinary Barracks at New Cumberland. To qualify, the applicants must be veterans of any of the Armed Forces, honorably discharged on or after May 12, 1945. The minimum age and height is 22 years, and five feet six inches tall, respectively.

Qualified enlistees may choose to serve for 3, 4, 5, or 6 years and are assured the minimum grade of private first class. Local men selected report to a nearby camp for initial processing, after which they must attend the Correctional-Custodial Methods Course in preparation for assignment.

Sgt. Nagle may be contacted for complete details, Monday through Saturday, from 8:30 to 5 p. m., at the Bush Arcade building, Bellefonte.

Compilation Of All Vegetables Started

Dr. Russell E. Larson, horticulturist at Penn State, heads a committee of scientists making the first complete tabulation of all vegetable varieties in the United States, Canada, and U. S. territories. Plant breeders, hybrid producers and commercial sources are included in the vast list.

This committee was named by the American Society of Horticultural Science. It will compile the first complete record of the many varieties, hybrids, and strains of all vegetable crops, listing their sources, characteristics and their pertinent information the list is expected to aid in producing many improved vegetables, as scientists learn sources of materials of pure stock for exchange purposes. Dr. Larson explained. To launch the project, each member of the committee is tabulating the information on 100 varieties, through a nationwide survey now underway.
